SENATE VOTES FURLOUGHS; PAY KEPT UP

BONUS GROUPS IGNORE POLICE PLEA TO LEAVE

Waters Again Is Selected Commander in Chief of Army.

NEARLY $3,000 GIVEN BY 15,000 AT BOUTS

$125,000 for Food Sought in House; Garner Against Move to Balk Vote.

The man who safely convoyed 300 bonus marchers across the Continent from Oregon, Walter W. Waters, last night was restored as commander in chief of the bonus expeditionary forces and his first act was to disregard the evacuation request of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

"The attitude of the men," he said, "is to disregard the offer of transportation at this time. When the bonus bill is passed, we will gladly accept the offer."

Though the District has warned that the food supply of the men will cease at 8 a. m. today, Waters refused to evince any worry. "Just say that we are not going to starve. We have assurances from the people back home that we will eat."

Meanwhile at Griffith Stadium, 15,000 persons witnessed 26 boxing matches, which were staged for the benefit of the marchers. The bouts were without an admission charge because of District regulations forbidding the charging of admission for boxing. However, a collection was asked from the patrons. At press time, $2,490 had been counted and the committee in charge hoped that the total would reach $3,000.

With 8,000 veterans now quartered in billets throughout the city, and 10,000 en route, Commander in Chief Waters blandly predicted that there will be 50,000 former soldiers in the Capital within two weeks.

Had Been Stricken Ill.

After a 3½-hour session, the executive committee of the bonus expeditionary forces, composed of one representative of each of the seven regiments, yesterday decided to unite under command of Waters.

After Commander in Chief Waters arrived here from Oregon he was stricken ill, and his aid, George Alman, Portland, Oreg., lumberjack, took command and withstood an attempt of a "rump" executive committee to depose him. With the return of Waters to the ranks, he was again elevated to command.

The Sixth Marine Reserves Brigade, which has been extending medical treatment to the men of the bonus army, will be unable to care for them after midnight June 13, it was announced last night by Lieut. Comdr. Don S. Knowlton, brigade surgeon.

Inadequate Transportation.

The reason for the discontinuance of the medical service at the brigade headquarters is the inability to procure adequate transportation for the men, who flock to the headquarters by the score. More than 200 were treated yesterday. Aiding Commander Knowlton are Capt. Howard H. Strine, regimental surgeon of the Twentieth Marines, and Capt. W.

Coolidge Is Urged For Post of Dawes

Hoover Also Considering Strawn for Finance Corporation Place.

(Associated Press.)

With the names of former President Coolidge and Silas H. Strawn definitely before him as the possible successor to Charles G. Dawes as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it appeared yesterday President Hoover would withhold a decision in the matter for a week or ten days.

There was considerable doubt among friends of the former President that he would accept the post if it were tendered. Well-informed persons close to President Hoover, however, confirmed reports that the appointment of Mr. Coolidge had been urged.

The name of Mr. Strawn, who has just retired as head of the United States Chamber of Commerce, also has been placed formally before the President. Gen. Dawes will serve until June 15, and President Hoover is not expected to name his successor until after that date.

Seabury's 15 Charges Are Sent to Roosevelt

Hofstadter Counsel, Acting as Private Citizen, Submits 600,000 Words of Testimony on Walker to Governor for Action.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

New York, June 8 (U.P.).—Samuel Seabury, acting in his capacity as a private citizen of New York, transmitted to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight fifteen definite charges against Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

Supporting his charges with 600,000 words of testimony, the counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, which for fourteen months has been conducting an investigation into the municipal government, left the decision of Walker's removal in the hands of the governor.

"From the record submitted," he said in a letter to the governor, "you can determine whether the public interests and the maintenance of decent standards among public officials require that the Hon. James J. Walker should be removed from the office of mayor of the city, and can be just to Mayor Walker and the people of the City of New York."

Seabury pointed out that he was following the same procedure as that of the Sheriff Thomas (Tinbox Tom) Farley case, which resulted in the removal by the governor of the New York sheriff.

"I think the testimony justifies the following conclusions with respect to the conduct of the Mayor of New York," Seabury said in his "covering" letter. Then followed the fifteen points raised by supporting testimony. They were:

1. That Walker failed properly to execute the duties of mayor, that he has been "actuated by improper and illegal considerations;" that he has been guilty of "gross improprieties," and that his explanations have been "either so incomplete or so unworthy of credence as not to constitute acceptable explanations."

2. That the mayor was guilty of possessing bonds in a company interested in bringing about a change in taxicab ordinances.

3. That the mayor furthered legislation desired by one of his benefactors, the J. A. Sisto Brokerage Co.

4. That Walker violated clauses of HOOVER IS PRAISED BY INDIANA G. O. P.

Convention to Renominate Senator Watson Today; Hastings Keynoter.

Indianapolis, June 8 (A.P.).—Tributes to President Hoover and to United States Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, and reaffirmation of Republican policies and principles were uttered today by speakers at the opening session of the Republican State convention.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, the keynote orator, saying that because of distress in the Nation, people had lost faith in public officials and confidence in themselves, declared representatives of finance and industry can not escape their own mistakes by trying to make believe the fault lies with Congress.

Will H. Hays, of Sullivan, Ind., head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, praised the President for his "tireless efforts to help every man, woman and child in the country."

Neither Senator Watson nor Senator Arthur R. Robinson was present. They are slated, however, to be Indiana delegates-at-large to the national Republican convention at Chicago.

The convention tomorrow will name candidates for State offices, and will renominate Senator Watson for a six-year term. He is unopposed for the nomination.

The platform committee tonight wrestled with the prohibition question. Most of the candidates favor a plank urging resubmission, but there were insistent demands from First District (Lake County) leaders and others that the party recommend modification of the stringent State enforcement act. State Chairman Ivan Morgan was making strenuous efforts to prevent the question being carried to the convention floor tomorrow.

Dry Law Referendum Approved in Louisiana

Baton Rouge, La., June 8 (A.P.).—A proposal to submit the eighteenth amendment to a referendum at the November elections in Louisiana was approved today by the State Legislature.

The House of Representatives adopted it by a vote of 71 to 35. It had been approved by the Senate previously.

MRS. M'LEAN TELLS JURY OF MEANS DEAL

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of The Washington Post publisher, took the witness stand yesterday to tell a jury her strange story of being swindled by Gaston B. Means of $104,000 she paid him to recover the kidnaped and murdered Lindbergh baby.

Mrs. McLean testified in Means' trial on charges of larceny and embezzlement of the money after the prosecution asserted that before she hired Means to contact the kidnapers Means had approached a connection of the Lindbergh family with proposals for negotiations.

Means, the big detective who once investigated for the Justice Department, and who served time in Federal prison for prohibition violation, faced his accusers unperturbed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. He stretched his legs, twirled his hat and eyed Mrs. McLean as she gave her reason for employing him last March 4, weeks before the flier's son was found dead.

"I told Means that I had great sympathy for the Lindbergh family," Mrs. McLean testified. "* * * I told him that for five or six years my first son (now dead) was the subject of kidnaper threats and I had to keep guards around him, and it made me a nervous wreck."

The amazing chronology of Means' alleged negotiations was given to the court by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover before a jury of eleven men and one woman. The jury was se-

Drunk-Driving Charge Holds Wife of Member

Mrs. Bertha Huddleston, 40 years old, wife of Representative George Huddleston (Democrat) of Alabama, was arrested last night on a charge of driving while drunk after police said the automobile she was driving crashed into a parked car in front of 1327 West Virginia avenue northeast. She was released on $500 bond.

A man who was in the car with her, Mark Middleton Penn, 43-year-old salesman, of 2316 Nineteenth street northwest, was arrested on a charge of being drunk. Mrs. Huddleston and her companion crashed into the machine of Mrs. J. K. Moore, of Kenilworth, Md. Representative Huddleston was called to the Ninth Precinct station after the accident.

51 Are Slain in Honduras Election Campaign Revolt

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, June 8 (A. P.).—The tension of campaigning for the October presidential election has snapped into revolution in the north, and 51 men have been slain in battle.

The conflict became known today in an announcement that Gen. Justo Umana and 500 government troops clashed with a slightly larger rebel force at La Barranca yesterday.

The government said that the revolutionists carried the colors of Gen. Tuburcio Carias Andino, Nationalist candidate for the presidency, and that after a battle of several hours they were routed.

The loyal troops were pursuing the rebels into the mountains northward today.

Gen. Carias this morning issued a statement condemning the revolt, and asserting he and his Liberal followers had nothing to do with it.

Meanwhile, President Mejia Colindres declared martial law in the departments of Cortes, Santa Barbara and Copan to cope with the situation there. The rest of the country was said to be quiet.

CAPITAL SUPPLY BILL RETRIEVES $3,875,918 SUM

Senate District Group Restores Funds That House Denied.

$600,000 IS INCLUDED FOR LOCAL JOBLESS

778,000 for Municipal Center Included; Federal Figure $8,550,000.

Restoring $3,875,918 in local funds denied by the House, the District supply bill, carrying a $45,789,728 appropriations total, was reported to the Senate yesterday by Senator Hiram Bingham's District appropriations subcommittee.

It was the first appropriations measure reported this session with an increase over House figures. Liberalized throughout, the bill fixes an $8,550,000 Federal lump sum, appropriates $600,000 for unemployment relief and restores street, bridge and building items dropped by the House.

The Senate committee threw out the House limitation on pay increases, promotions and filling of vacancies of District employes. The provision goes for nought, however, in the light of economy bill provisions extending these restrictions to the District government.

Taxi Meter Issue.

Another generous gesture on the part of the subcommittee was lost when the bill was reported to the full appropriations committee. The subcommittee wrote into the bill a lump sum of $10,153,391, the amount recommended by the Bureau of Efficiency as "just and equitable." The full committee reduced it to the $8,-500,000 figure on which the current budget was based, then applied the 10 per cent cut used on other Senate appropriations bills, shaving the total to $8,550,000.

The appropriations committee stood by the House on the taxi meter issue. The House inserted a provision denying the Public Utilities Commission funds to publish its order requiring cabs to install meters. The Senate committee retained this provision. It added a proviso that this not affect any order other than that requiring the installation of meters.

Outstanding among the building increases included in the bill was $778,000 for continuing construction of the District Municipal Center. Under the House provision construction would have to be postponed indefinitely, District officials had not urged its inclusion.

The Senate committee went even farther and authorized preparation of plans and specifications for the second unit of the center by the sp-

Dawes May Join Insull Receivers

Reported Planning to Take Part in Rehabilitation of Enterprises.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—The Times says Charles G. Dawes, who announced Monday his resignation as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, effective June 15, is reported in Wall street circles as planning to engage in the rehabilitation of the extensive Insull enterprises, and principally of the Middle West Utilities System.

The reports indicated, the paper says, that Dawes would be invited to succeed Samuel Insull as one of the three receivers of the Middle West Utilities Co. He would represent the large group of Chicago and New York banks which share control of the company as a result of the default of various Insull bank loans.

The former Vice President and Ambassador to Great Britain was quoted as saying he "had not been asked," when questioned in Washington on Tuesday, as to whether he would become a receiver for the company.

Bill to Make Kidnaping Federal Offense Passes

(Associated Press.)

The Patterson bill, making interstate kidnaping a Federal offense, was passed yesterday by the Senate.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Patterson (Republican), Missouri, now goes to the House. Its approval by the Senate judiciary committee followed the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. The bill would make it a felony to carry a kidnaped person over State lines or conspire to do so.

UNIT IN SENATE BACKS AID PLAN OF DEMOCRATS

Ignoring Garner Measure, Group Favors Program Involving 2 Billions.

PROPOSAL INCLUDES WORKS BOND ISSUE

Committee Disapproves Idea of Loans to Competitive Private Industry.

(Associated Press.)

A $2,000,000,000 Democratic relief program was put before the Senate yesterday in the face of a prospective veto from President Hoover.

Ignoring the Garner $2,300,000,000 bill which passed the House Tuesday, the Senate Banking committee voted out the plan presented by Senate Democrats, including the controversial provision for a $500,000,000 public works bond issue.

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders were preparing to call up for action in the Senate the emergency bill approved by the banking committee Tuesday to authorize the Reconstruction Corporation to lend $300,000,000 to States for direct relief to the jobless.

The action of the banking committee yesterday placed before the Senate the entire $2,300,000,000 program recently approved by the Democratic steering and policy committees.

The committee, however, divided the program into two bills. The first, providing the $300,000,000 for direct relief, was advanced as an emergency program, the second as a long-range proposal.

Little Controversy Over Bill.

There is little controversy over the $300,000,000 bill, as President Hoover has approved it in principle, and Democratic leaders hoped to shove it through quickly.

There is great difference of opinion, however, over the $2,000,000,000 portion of the program which was approved yesterday, calling for the bond issue and increasing by $1,500,000,000 the capitalization of the Reconstruction Corporation for self-liquidating construction loans.

President Hoover repeatedly has voiced his vigorous opposition to bond issues for further extension of public works and leaders at the Capitol have accepted that he would veto any program embodying this feature.

The Garner bill did not reach the Senate until after its committee had acted. It was referred to the banking committee, but Chairman Norbeck was indefinite about plans for its consideration.

Senator Wagner, of New York, sponsor of the Democratic program in the Senate, suggested that after the direct relief bill has been approved,

3 New Quakes Hit Colima, in Mexico

6,000 in Jalisco Reported Homeless; Many Fear to Sleep Indoors.

Mexico City, June 8 (A.P.).—Three new earth shocks were felt today at Colima, Mexico, where volcanic activity also was reported.

The Colima volcano was smoking and large cracks were noticed in its base, dispatches said. The inhabitants were alarmed, many of them refusing to sleep indoors until the quaking stopped.

The governor of Jalisco reported that at least 6,000 families in his state were homeless as a result of recent earthquake destruction. Relief brigades were ministering to the people. Another thousand or more families were reported homeless in the state of Colima. Reports said cattle and fish have been killed in that state by the fumes of an undersea volcano, which spread over the land after escaping from the water.

Hoover Urged to Stop Funds for Farm Board

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—Protest against granting further funds to pursue the policies of the Federal Farm Board was wired to President Hoover tonight by Thomas R. Cain, of Bloomington, Ill., president of the Farmers National Grain Dealers Association.

The protest, which Cain said was in behalf of 900,000 stockholders and patrons of cooperative elevators, was sent also to chairmen of the appropriations committees of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Relief or Pork?

A Compilation of Public Buildings, Mostly Postoffices, Provided by Speaker Garner's Bill, for Cities and Towns Throughout the Country.

The Washington Post publishes herewith a compilation of "certain new projects" carried in that amazing piece of legislation officially cited as the "National Emergency Relief Act of 1932," but better known as the Garner relief bill or the Garner pork barrel bill.

Although the bill, which was rushed through the House on Tuesday under the whip and spur of the Speaker himself, provides for an expenditure of some $3,200,000,000 of public funds for various things the compilation which follows deals with only building construction, mostly postoffices. This section of the measure, known as part 1 of Title 3, calls for an appropriation of $374,837,000. The Speaker's own State of Texas would get $7,450,000.

When the measure was reported to the House, the minority report stated:

"It is difficult to find words adequate to characterize this proposal from the standpoint of public finances. After great effort to bring our budget into balance by drastic economies and by imposing on the people of the United States the most severe taxation ever imposed in peace time, for the all-important purpose of preserving unimpaired the credit of the United States Government, and thus laying the foundation for economic recovery, this bill would undo all our efforts, unbalance the budget on a huge scale, impair the credit of the United States Government, destroy the confidence of the people in their government, and indefinitely postpone all hope of early economic recovery."

The compilation includes the States, cities and towns in which the projects are proposed and the amounts of money to be appropriated. Some of these postoffices have been approved before. Others are new. Many are opposed by the Postoffice Department. Districts referred

HOOVER WET-PLANK STAND IS UNDECIDED

White House Denies Tale That He Has Approved Resubmission Plan.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A fog of uncertainty enveloped President Hoover's stand on prohibition last night, following a report at the Capitol earlier in the day that he had approved in principle a resubmission plank for the Republican platform.

The White House last night authorized this statement:

"No plank has been submitted to the President and therefore no plank has been agreed to."

The President, according to the story circulated in the Senate, gave his approval to the resubmission principle at a White House conference Tuesday night attended by James R. Garfield and members of the President's Cabinet.

Thereafter, according to the story, Mr. Garfield, prospective chairman of the Republican platform committee, left Washington for his home in Cleveland, Ohio, from which place he is to go on to Chicago, scene of next week's Republican national convention.

In Cleveland last night Garfield told the Associated Press that he had "no statement whatever" to make regarding the report that President Hoover had indorsed the resubmission idea.

The President, according to the Capitol version of what took place at the White House Tuesday night, gave his approval to what is being called a naked resubmission plank—that is, a plank indorsing the idea that the Chicago Asks U. S. Loan Of Millions to Save City

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—Mayor Anton J. Cermak today appealed to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan to rescue Chicago from the financial morass into which it has floundered as a result of the tax muddle. The mayor said the city could use up to $150,000,000, but had imperative need for $40,000,000.

He presented his request to local representatives of the corporation and followed it with a telegraphic plea to officials at Washington. He also enlisted the aid of Illinois senators and representatives there.

EASTERDAY PARTNER APPREHENDED HERE

D. W. Carey Had Been Sought Since December, 1930, in Mail Fraud.

David William Carey, 37, said by postal officials to have been sought by them since December, 1930, on an indictment for using the mails to defraud, for which W. W. Easterday and others were convicted and sentenced to terms in Federal penitentiaries in March, 1931, was arrested in a downtown hotel here yesterday.

Carey, Easterday and nine others were indicted October 20, 1930, on charges of using the mails to defraud while operating as Sloane, Logan & Co., in New York, and as L. A. Congdon & Co. here. Easterday was indicted in 1929 in connection with the operations of De Wolfe-Stewart & Co., a brokerage firm here.

According to Postal Inspector C. A. Battles, of New York, at least $100,000 was mulcted from District investors by the firm with which Carey was connected. The latter was said to have been the "Logan" of the concern, while Easterday was the "Sloane."

Carey was being held incommunicado last night at the First Precinct station. The charge against him was "held for postal authorities." Mr. Battles, who with Washington detectives arrested Carey, said the man had stated he would not fight extradition to New York.

Easterday was arrested here in November, 1929, on a bad check charge preferred against him in New York City involving $13,000. A brokerage firm he was interested in here was subsequently closed, precipitating considerable legislation.

Others convicted with Easterday in New York in connection with the mail activities of the brokerage firm were Charles H. Greenhaus, one-time "boy wizard of Wall street;" Harry Greenhaus, his younger brother, and Joseph Cataldo, alleged strong-arm man of the outfit. The latter has since died, Mr. Battles said yesterday.

Senate Passes 100 Bills In Adjournment Dash

(Associated Press.)

Hoping for an early adjournment of Congress, the Senate raced through its calendar yesterday, passing nearly 100 bills within less than three hours.

Most of the measures were of sectional interest.

30,000-Gallon Still Found In 'Pillbox,' Mystery Shaft

Woburn, Mass., June 8 (A.P.).—Twenty Federal agents, headed by the Rev. Jonathan Lewis, prohibition administrator for New England, today penetrated the "Woburn Pillbox," a solid concrete structure without apparent means of entrance, and found a 30,000-gallon still.

The building, which had defied searchers for more than a week, yielded when means were discovered of operating an electrically controlled steel door, 6 inches thick, imbedded in concrete a foot thick.

Lewis told newspapermen the still was "the largest and most elaborately equipped ever found in New England."

The pillbox has a depth varying from 40 to 60 feet below ground. Above ground it rises to a height of nearly 30 feet.

The structure stands on property allegedly leased to the Massachusetts Refining Co. Efforts of Federal officials to contact officers of the company were said to have been unavailing.

$155,000,000 SAVINGS BILL THEN PASSED

Economies Are Short of Estimated Needs by $82,000,000.

DEMOCRATS BRAND PROGRAM FAILURE

Elimination of Wage Slash Reverses Previous Action; Conference Fight Due.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Compulsory furloughs without pay were substituted for 10 per cent Federal pay cuts by a close Senate vote yesterday.

Immediately afterward the Senate passed the "budget balancing" economy bill, carrying about $155,000,000 in savings. Economies fell $82,000,000 short of estimated needs.

The vote for furloughs was 38 to 35, reversing action of the previous day. Just prior to the ballot, the Senate decided 36 to 33 to reconsider the earlier decision, following a vigorous appeal by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., (Republican), Wisconsin.

Protested by Democrats.

The vote to reconsider, almost wholly along partisan lines, was followed by an outburst of Democratic protest. Charges laying the "wrecking" of the economy bill to the door of the White House were bruited by Democrats, who throughout bitterly opposed the furlough plan.

With the furlough ballot cast, recrimination against the measure broke forth anew. Branding the entire economy program "a disgusting failure," Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, moved to send the bill back to the appropriations committee. His motion was beaten 48 to 22.

The furlough plan as adopted throws out the economy committee's proposal of 10 per cent pay cuts on salaries over $1,000. In its stead, every Federal worker is made subject to a 30-day annual furlough without pay on the "five-day week principle." Workers earning less than $1,200 are exempted from its provisions.

Services Excluded.

District police and firemen also are excluded from the furlough, along with enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps. In services, such as the legislative, where the plan could not operate successfully, an 8.3 per cent pay cut is substituted.

Salaries of the Vice President, Speaker of the House, senators and representatives are reduced 10 per cent.

Provision that no Federal employe be furloughed more than five days in any one month without his consent was inserted on recommendation of Senator La Follette.

Numerous inconsistencies exist in the bill by reason of the last-minute substitution of the furlough plan.

2 Furlough Plans in Bill.

For example, the committee wrote another furlough provision into Title 2 of the bill which would allow heads of departments to furlough workers indefinitely to keep within appropriations. The President's furlough plan

FEDERAL BAR GROUP FAVORS FURLOUGHS

Association Changes Stand to Show Preference Over Slashing Pay.

While the Senate was working toward approval of the furlong plan last night, the Federal Bar Association gave the subject a thorough discussion and went on record approving it in preference to the pay cut.

The executive council of the association took action first on the furlough, and then presented its recommendation to the entire association. In the past, the Federal Bar Association had opposed any form of reduction for Government employes.

Talks were made to the association by Fred K. Nielsen, commissioner in the American-Mexican arbitration on the subject of "Recognition," and by George P. Barse, general counsel, division of insolvent national banks, Treasury Department, on the subject "Liquidation of Insolvent Banks."

Mr. Nielsen declared that the record of the United States, with respect to foreign governments, reveals "consistent generosity." Mr. Barse showed that the cost of liquidation of national banks is surprisingly low.

The meeting was held at the University Club. William R. Vallance presided.

High Suicide Rate Found in District

Exceeds Average in 180 U. S. Cities, Insurance Survey Shows.

There were more suicides in Washington in relation to the population last year than the average number of self-inflicted deaths in 180 American cities, according to a statistical report by Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician for the Spectator, an insurance paper.

"The cheapest commodity in the United States at the present time is human life," he said. "We waste human lives by murder and self-murder on a prodigious scale, increased to stupefying proportions by automobile, gas, firearms and other convenient means of life destruction." The record of suicides, he pointed out, indicates an increase in the rate from 19.9 per 100,000 in 1930 to 20.05 during the last year. The Washington suicide rate is tabulated at 24.6 in 1931.

Manhattan and Bronx of New York leads the larger cities in a high death rate with 28.3 per 100,000 population. Los Angeles also registered a high total of deaths by suicide. A number of the smaller cities registered a death rate over 30 per 100,000. Tabulating results from 180 cities, the insurance sheet stated that the death rate increased in 95 cities, declined in 83 cities and remained constant in two cities.

Air Mail Postage Rate Increased to 8 Cents

(Associated Press.)

Increase of the air mail postage rate within the country from 5 cents to 8 cents for the first ounce, and from 10 cents to 13 cents for each additional ounce, effective July 6, was announced yesterday by the Postoffice Department.

The increase is expected to yield $3,000,000 annually in revenue.

72 Columbus U. Diplomas Granted

President Leahy Attacks Pessimism on Future of United States.

Seventy-two students were awarded diplomas at Columbus University graduation exercises held last night in the Mayflower Hotel.

The principal address was delivered by William E. Leahy, president of the university, who attacked the pessimistic spirit which prevails at present. He said:

"I can find no reason to strike a note of pessimism and despair. We have had depressions before. This country has emerged from similar conditions in the past a bigger and better country than when it went in. Our country was founded in despair, misery and hardship. Again we shall return to the stern and rugged courage of the men who founded this Nation. We shall return to a more normal outlook upon life. Don't be discouraged by the attitude of despair about you. There is always room in this world for a man of action, a man of courage, of industry. The world is crying for the man who can climb the top rung."

Other speakers were Frederick J. Rice, chairman of the trustees, and the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, who delivered the invocation. Degrees were conferred by Mr. Rice, John R. Fitzpatrick, dean of the school of law, and James D. Cushman, dean of the school of accountancy.

Body of Man Accused By Iowa U. Identified

Daytona Beach, Fla., June 8 (U.P.).—An elderly man who died of lung hemorrhage in a Daytona Beach hotel last night today was identified as W. J. McCheaney, missing former treasurer of the University of Iowa and sought on a charge of embezzlement.

McChesney came here three months ago and registered under the name of W. J. Andrews, police said. He posed as a winter visitor recuperating from a nervous breakdown, and hinted his wife was in Paris getting a divorce.

How New Taxes Will Hit $6,000-a-Year Americans

Married Business Man With One Child Will Contribute About $235 More to Uncle Sam, Luxuries Claiming Large Share.

(Associated Press.)

If you are a married business man with one child and a net income of $6,000 the new Federal taxes will cost you something like $235 a year.

That sum is arrived at on the basis of figures used by members of the House and Senate when the new rates were before Congress, taking $6,000 as a starting point so as to allow a man enough money to buy some of the taxed luxuries.

If you are that $6,000 man your exemptions will be $2,900, including $400 for your son or daughter. The income tax on the remaining $3,100 will be $124 against the old levy of $23.63.

The automobile you buy, which the manufacturer sells for $600, will cost you $18 in taxes. Unless the car comes fully equipped, you'll probably buy a couple of bumpers and a spare tire costing $30, on which you will be taxed 60 cents.

You'll use, say, 700 gallons of gasoline a year, if you take any trips, on which you'll pay $7. If you use 30 gallons of lubricating oil, you'll give another $1.20 to the Treasury. Your tires and tubes will cost about $1 a year in taxes..

If your wife gets a $200 fur coat, that's another $20 tax. Should you by chance indulge in beer-making, using brewers' wort, the national Treasury collects another $3.

Then your wife's perfumes, cold creams, powder, rouge and what not will cost another $3 in taxes, and if you buy her a $50 watch the Government gets $5 more.

When your radio gets fuzzy and you buy a new one for $75, your tax is $3.75, and if you put in an electrical refrigerator that the manufacturer sells for $100 you are out an additional $5 in taxes.

If you play golf and your wife and child take part in any sports $50 a year isn't too much to expect to spend on sporting equipment. The tax on that is $5.

When you make the annual hunting trip—even though you use your old gun—and spend $10 for shells you give the Government $1 more in taxes.

For your vacation trip you buy a $15 camera and pay a $1.50 tax; you'll use enough matches, if you are a smoker, to pay $1 a year tax.

If there should be a sweet tooth in the family and you buy $50 worth of candy a year, that tax will amount to $1. When a few soft drinks are thrown in, another $1 goes to the Treasury.

Suppose your electric light bill, including the power for your new electric refrigerator, is $5 a month, then your annual tax is $1.80.

When you use the telephone and telegraph in your business at varying taxes, it won't be much trouble for you to roll up a $10 annual tax bill on those.

If you and your family write an average of seven letters a day, the increase in postage from 2 to 3 cents will make your stamps cost $75 instead of $50.

If you average $2 a week for movies and shows, you'll donate $10 to the Treasury and if you write only two checks a day the 2-cent tax will cost more than $12.

Your total new taxes under these estimates will be $310.85 against $74.23 under the old rates, or an increase of $236.62.

SENATE VOTES FURLOUGHS; PASSES ECONOMY MEASURE

was substituted for Title 1 of the bill. The committee's provision still stands.

Title 2 contains also a provision restricting annual leave permanently to fifteen days. The President's furlough proposal abolishes all annual leave without pay.

Senator Byrns (Democrat), South Carolina, argued that, nullifying the fifteen-day provision, the furlough plan knocked $22,000,000 more in economies from the bill, reducing their total to $120,000,000. Appropriations Chairman Wesley L. Jones disputed this assertion.

The whole problem of furloughs versus pay cuts now goes to conference for settlement. The House provision for an 11 per cent cut, with $2,500 exemption, must be harmonized with the plan substituted by the Senate.

Bitter Fight in Prospect.

What will emerge from House and Senate conferees is altogether a matter of conjecture. The House defeated the furlough plan by 176 to 159, but, as a choice between their own plan, which yields only $9,000,000 in savings, conferees may decide to accept it. In any event, a bitter fight awaits its resubmission to the House.

In launching the drive for reconsideration of Tuesday's furlough vote, Senator La Follette summed up arguments for and against the President's proposal, concluding:

"The Senate admits its incompetence if it can not find somewhere else in this Government's $4,000,000,000 annual expense account the $33,000,000 difference in savings between the furlough plan and the proposed pay cut."

He read letters from labor leaders and representatives of the employes in support of the five-day week principle provided in the furlough plan.

Speak Against Plan.

Taking the floor against the plan were Senators Jones, Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico; McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee; Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi; Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina; Bingham (Republican), Connecticut; Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma; Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, and Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky.

Urging adherence to the 10 per cent flat cut proposed by the committee, Senator Jones called on the Senate to defeat the furlough proposal. He denied Democratic charges that the President had "meddled" by interposing his furlough plan. He said he was in conference with the President yesterday and Mr. Hoover had not mentioned his plan.

Senator Jones, who will be chairman of the Senate conferees, pledged himself to stand rigidly by the Senate's decision, however, whatever it be. He "warned" the Senate that House opposition to furloughs might mean that the bill might be sent back to the Senate by the conferees for reconsideration.

Senator Byrns said he thought it highly probable that the House will insist on its own plan of 11 per cent cuts, with $1,200 exemption, in which case the whole economy program would go for nothing.

"Disappointed in Hoover."

"I am more disappointed in the President than I have ever been in any one man," said Senator Byrnes, charging that after supporting the committee's economy proposals before the Senate Mr. Hoover sought Senate support for his own proposal.

"The only straightforward, manly thing for him to do now is to come before this body and demand that additional taxes be levied to make up the loss from adoption of his proposal," he said.

Senator McKellar charged the President had acted in "bad faith." Senator Harrison said the Senate will be held up "to the scorn of the country." Senator Ashurst said the furlough plan would "devastate, disembowel, wreck and destroy the civil service." With the furlough provision, Senator Bratton said, the bill is "a sham and a mockery in the name of economy."

Barkley's Views.

Senator Barkley said:

"We might as well pass no bill at all, so far as economy is concerned, as to approve this provision with its $80,000,000 saving. What is $80,000,000 compared with the $80,000,000 we have just saddled upon the backs of the American people?"

But the tide against pay cuts had turned, and all of the Democratic opposition speeches, combined with the few Republicans who opposed the furlough, failed to change the 3-vote margin for the President's plan when the final ballot was taken.

Then it was that Democratic Leader Robinson took the floor to denounce the entire economy program as "a deplorable failure that will prove a great disappointment to the country."

"Its doubtful results do not justify the effort that has been made," he said, moving to have the entire bill recommitted.

Senator Bingham vainly sought to have Senator La Follette denied the privilege of moving to reconsider the furlough ballot, holding he had paired with the minority side when the original vote was cast. The chair overruled Senator Bingham's point of order.

Following defeat of the Robinson motion to recommit the measure, the economy bill was approved without a record vote.

CRUCHAGA RESIGNS AS CHILEAN ENVOY

Recognition by U. S. of New Regime Is Contingent Upon 4 Points.

The problem of recognition of the Chilean junta government by the United States was suddenly brought to the fore last night by the abrupt resignation of the Chilean Ambassador here, Don Miguel Cruchaga de Tocornal.

Ambassador Cruchaga resigned, it was learned, because former President Montero, who he represented, is no longer in office and also in order to give the new government a free hand in the establishment of foreign missions.

The ambassador had been in Mexico clearing up the final details of the German-Mexican mixed claims commission, of which he was chairman. He arrived yesterday morning and a few hours after his arrival cabled his resignation. He will go to the State Department today formally to inform the department of his decision.

Secretary Stimson had previously declared his intention of making recognition contingent upon four points: Observance of all international financial obligations, maintenance of order, holding of elections as soon as feasible, and the representative nature of the new government.

However, as long as Ambassador Cruchaga remained at his post the special problem of recognition would not have come up since the United States recognized him as the diplomatic representative of the Chilean government here.

If and when, the junta government nominates a successor to the retiring ambassador, it will be necessary to determine in what measure the Davila government has fulfilled the requirements for recognition announced by the Secretary of State.

The new government in Santiago cabled to all diplomatic missions abroad the announcement of the recent coup d'etat which placed in supreme command of the government a triumvirate composed of former Chilean Ambassador Carlos Davila and two military leaders.

This is the fourth time that Ambassador Cruchaga has resigned since he was first appointed here in January, 1926. On the other occasions the government had refused to accept his resignation, but he persisted and returned to private life. During the war he cabled his resignation to his government on three different occasions when he was Chilean minister in Berlin.

Ambassador Cruchaga is one of the most eminent figures in international legal circles. For some time he has been chairman and arbiter of various mixed claims commissions, notably between the Spanish-Mexican, German-Mexican, Italian-Mexican governments and more recently between the United States and Panama.

It is believed he will be invited by the United States to assume the direction of the very important American-Mexican mixed claims commission, which will shortly be formed.

Official Arraigned In Massachusetts

Hull, Former State House Speaker, Pleads Stock Sale Innocence.

Boston, June 8 (A.P.).—John C. Hull, former speaker of the Massachusetts House and present head of the stock sales division of the State department of public utilities, today was arraigned before Chief Justice Walter P. Hall in superior court charged with conspiracy to defeat due administration of the laws of the Commonwealth.

Hull was one of a group indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury, whose investigation of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Co. extended in scope to an investigation of the utilities department and the sale of stock of the closed Medford Trust Co.

Arraigned with Hull were three others—Silas P. Waite, former Boston police inspector now employed in Hull's department; Frank Jenks, an auditor for the public utilities commission, and Francis C. Norton, a director of the General Management Co., an organization reputed closely allied with the affairs of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. All four pleaded not guilty.

House Told of Protests By 9 Nations on Bill

(Associated Press.)

Wilbur J. Carr, Assistant Secretary of State, yesterday read to the House immigration committee protests of nine nations against the Schneider bill for exclusion and deportation of alien seamen not nationals under the flags of the ships on which they sail.

Carr pronounced the measure contrary to commercial comity between nations. The countries whose objections he presented were Great Britain, Canada, Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Netherlands, Norway and Sweden.

WORKERS MAY TAKE UP ARMS FOR DAVILA

Nitrates-for-Oil Swap With Russia Is Planned; New Revolt Collapses.

Santiago, Chile, June 8 (A.P.).—Workers of Chile offered tonight to take up arms in support of the new socialist government.

Labor groups, after two mass meetings, submitted to the government a proposal for the formation of a republican socialist guard, composed of workers, who would be given arms.

The guard would assist the revolutionary junta, headed by Carlos Davila, former Ambassador to Washington, at any time it needed such aid.

The junta, which earlier had promised a throng of laboring people that the welfare of the workers would be its first concern, said it would give consideration to the plan for armed Threaten Rich Club.

More than 5,000 unemployed men demanded at a mass meeting today that the government turn over to them the Club de la Union, owned by an organization of the wealthy residents of Santiago.

The jobless, who assembled in Boulevard Alameda, the city's principal street, asserted that the club building should be used by working class people as a social gathering place.

Members of the revolutionary junta that seized power last Saturday promised them that the welfare of the workers would be the first consideration of the new government.

It was announced that a plan was under consideration which would bring about public operation of the sugar refinery at Vina del Mar. This action would be the first step toward the recently announced state sugar monopoly.

Courts Are Reopened.

Orders were issued reopening the law courts suspended as a result of the Socialist coup d'etat which ousted the regime of President Juan Esteban Montero last Saturday.

The new administration took under consideration a plan to swap Chilean nitrates for Soviet Russian petroleum. This plan was advanced after the dwindling supply of gasoline had made it necessary to resorting to rationing.

Finance Minister Alfredo Lagarrigue is making a study of the possibilities of the nitrates-for-petroleum project.

Need for Petroleum.

Chile's need for petroleum has long been pressing, and during recent months, because of the scarcity of foreign exchange with which to buy it, increasing difficulty has been encountered in keeping a supply in hand.

The finance minister announced that orders had gone out to stock exchanges to reopen tomorrow, a measure taken to avoid a panic. The exchanges will operate under strict regulations.

The new government made a bid for support in the provinces today by sending out airplane propaganda missions.

Junta officers reiterated assurances that all efforts by oppositionists to stage a counter-revolution had failed.

Mexico City, June 8 (A.P.).—Mexico will continue its diplomatic relations with Chile following upon the revolutionary change of government there, Foreign Minister C. Tellez announced tonight.

He specifically pointed out this move did not constitute recognition of the new Socialist junta in Chile, as the term "recognition" is understood.

MAPES INCOME TAX HEARINGS FINISHED

Committee Vote on Entire Program to Be Delayed by Capper.

Hearings on the Mapes income tax bill, last of the House measures for swelling local revenues by increasing taxation, were concluded before the Senate District committee yesterday, with witnesses from Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland vigorously opposing the measure.

Chairman Arthur Capper will delay a committee vote on the entire Mapes program until the Bureau of Efficiency completes its report on the House resolution abolishing the 60-40 basis of Federal-District fiscal relations, he said.

Witnesses opposing the income tax yesterday included Frank P. Lord, who favored a single real estate property tax for the District; H. S. Weaver, representing New York life insurance companies with offices here; J. Bond Smith, of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, and Hugh H. McGrath, of the Arlington County Federation.

Anniversary Today

Dr. Christie Points Out Its Progress Since Founding Here 80 Years Ago.

The Washington Young Men's Christian Association today celebrates its eightieth birthday anniversary.

Calling attention to the founding of the association June 9, 1852, at a meeting of church and lay leaders in the old Masonic Temple that stood at Tenth and E streets, Dr. Arthur C. Christie, president of the Y. M. C. A., in an anniversary statement, contrasted the present membership of 5,510 men and boys with the 25 or 40 who enrolled at the organization meeting.

"Approximately 4,684 boys and men cross the Y. M. C. A. threshold daily," Dr. Christie declared. "The association had 679,640 contacts with boys and men during the year. There were 182 different clubs, classes, teams or other groups. There were 469 boys and leaders at Camp Letts and Camp Young. More than 1,000 students benefited by educational work, under which 87 different subjects were taught by a faculty of 64.

School Appropriations.

Altogether, $366,089 was restored to District school appropriations, including $100,000 for an elementary school in Foxhall Village, and $35,000 toward the Roosevelt, and $30,000 for the purchase of equipment for the Roosevelt High School, $7,000 additional for remodeling old Business High School and old Cardozo High School, and $5,000 for remodeling Western High School.

Nearby Maryland and Virginia residents urgently requested the committee to take this action.

Liberality was extended to both the police and fire departments. Additions to the police fund reached $121,744. An appropriation of $13,988 was included for the purchase of an additional broadcasting unit for the police radio system; $70,036 for pay of officers and members, and $20,000 additional for the purchase of automobiles.

Fire Department.

Fire Department appropriations were increased $121,400, $63,500 of which would go for a truck house to be located in the vicinity of Fourteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, and $32,900 for pay of officers and members.

Over and above the $600,000 voted for emergency unemployment relief, the Bingham subcommittee allotted $226,320 in additional funds for public welfare, including $11,620 for home care for dependent children, and substantial increases for all local public institutions.

The subcommittee met Col. U. S. Grant's request for additional funds to maintain local parks and care for dying shrubs and trees by a $125,000 appropriation for the purpose.

Other Provisions.

Other provisions included $8,000 additional for social hygiene and tubercular clinics; $5,000 additional for roads, walks and bridges in the zoo park; $15,000 for preparation of plans for viaducts in line of Michigan avenue and New Hampshire avenue; $26,200 additional for the local militia, and an $85,000 increase for improvement of water service.

An increase of $540,100 was voted for street and road improvements. For the widening and paving of Constitution avenue, $126,200 was authorized, and the following additional street improvements were au horized:

$2,000,000 Is Given For Cancer Work

Death of Son Leads Retired Steel Magnate to Set Aside Fund.

Philadelphia, June 8 (A.P.).—The death of a beloved son three years ago has led to the creation here of a $2,000,000 foundation for world-wide cancer research.

The moving spirit in the new force to battle the dread disease is William H. Donner, of Villanova, retired steel manufacturer of Pittsburgh, who today was elected president of the International Cancer Research Foundation, a Pennsylvania corporation.

Mr. Donner, it is understood, has placed at the disposal of the foundation cash and securities on the basis of today's values amounting to $2,000,000. This was set aside by Mr. Donner as a trust in 1929 when his son, Joseph W. Donner, died.

[illegible]S AMONG 6 VICTIMS OF CRASH

Two Suffer Skull Injuries; Both Autos Overturned in Downtown Collision.

Six men, including five who were drawn to Washington through their interest in the bonus fight, were recovering in Emergency Hospital last night from injuries received in an automobile collision at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue early yesterday. Both cars were overturned and badly damaged.

The five veterans are from McKeesport, Pa., and were to meet friends here. The automobile in which the veterans were riding was in collision with another machine operated by Larson B. Culp, 42, of Silver Spring, proceeding south on Fourteenth street. Culp suffered a fractured hip and cuts and bruises.

The Pennsylvania car, going east on Constitution avenue, after overturning, was thrown against a tree. The injured were removed through windows of the sedan by members of the Fire Rescue Squad and Park Police. The most seriously injured are William Fitzpatrick, 35, and Dr. Felix Andrew Jawoski, 39, both of whom have possible skull fractures. The other injured are Francis Marrley, 37; Dr. Harry Reper, 34, and Joseph Kirk, all of whom were badly cut and bruised.

Friends whom the veterans were to have met at a Capital hotel were taken to the hospital to assist in their identification.

$101 Assessed on Charges of Drunken and Reckless Driving.

Guy N. Church, of Falls Church, Va., was fined $101 on charges of driving an auto while intoxicated and reckless driving yesterday by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. Church was arrested by State Policeman C. Parker, of Laurel substation, while driving on the Baltimore boulevard Tuesday night. The policeman said the man was driving on the wrong side of the road.

Judge Sheriff dismissed charges of violation of the county roadhouse law and of the State blue laws against Charles Burke, proprietor of Chillum Manor. Burke was tried two weeks ago on charges of having operated more than one dance a week for profit and for permitting dancing on Sunday morning.

Fred Grobmeier, a wrestler of Iowa, was fined $1 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. He stopped his machine so short that a bus following barely avoided striking him, State Policeman T. T. Griffin testified.

LEADERS SELECTED AT BONUS ARMY SESSION

On the shoulders of these men rests the destiny of 8,000 bonus marchers. They are pictured after a decision by the executive committee and Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters to disregard the offer of the District Commissioners to start them on their way home. Seated, left to right—Joseph B. Jeck, jr., Commander in Chief Waters and Arthur H. Milton. Standing—I. C. Schooler, Joseph M. Fabiano, Thomas J. Tooney, Fred A. Hoover and Edward J. Heany.

ARMY REFUSES TO DEPART

Lewis Schafer, regimental surgeon of the Twenty-third Marines.

The executive committee chose Thomas Kelly, of Camden, N. J., as aid to Commander in Chief Waters. Fred A. Hoover, of Portland, Oreg., was named treasurer and Joseph B. Jeck, jr., of Illinois, was elected secretary. All donations of food will be received at the national headquarters at 854 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, and donations of money may be sent to the treasurer at that address.

Final plans for the voluntary evacuation of the veterans, to be accomplished without "force or coercion," were announced late yesterday by Gen. Glassford, who said sufficient trucks will be available at the various camps at 8 o'clock this morning.

Proceeds of the athletic entertainment in Griffith Stadium last night will be turned over today to the executive committee of the forces. Trucks will leave today for other cities, two heading for Baltimore, to get food supplies.

$125,000 Asked for Food.

Capitol Hill again became the focal point of the veterans in their hope for Federal aid for subsistence when Representative Loring M. Black (Democrat), of New York, introduced a bill asking an appropriation of $125,000 to provide food and shelter for the men.

Fears that Congress might adjourn before the vote is taken on the $2,000,000,000 bonus bill were dissipated yesterday with an announcement by Speaker Garner that he would veto any effort to prevent a vote on the bill, which is scheduled for next Monday.

"It would not be fair to prevent the vote by some parliamentary maneuver for adjournment," he said. "We will stay in session."

Defended Against Charges.

Defense of the bonus marchers against charges of selfishness came from Senator Gerald P. Nye and Representative James H. Sinclair (Republicans), of North Dakota, in a joint statement, which said:

"The bonus is a sound economic proposal capable of lifting the Nation, at least to some extent, out of the depression," they said. "The depression is not due to a shortage of wealth, but a shortage of the medium used in the exchange of wealth. It is a well-known fact that international bankers and big business men maintain luxurious lobbies here, and the veterans have the right to ask for their own money."

The bill of Representative Black also would provide transportation home for the veterans at the adjournment of Congress. Chairman Byrns, of the House Appropriations committee, said there was little chance that his committee would consider the measure until it has been considered in the House District committee.

Herbert M. Young, one of the leaders of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, was arrested last night in the Anacostia camp by veterans' police. Young, who says he came here with instructions "to organize the men to overthrow the Government," was court martialed at the camp for trying to agitate the veterans, and turned over to the Eleventh Precinct police. He is being held for further investigation.

In his effects were radical literature and receipts showing that he made collections for the Communist organization. He admitted he was an officer of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League and that he was a correspondent for the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper. He gave his address as 18 Clinton street, New York.

Nothing is left but confusion of the Communist plans for a demonstration at the Capitol. The Communists' original plan was to hold a "monster" demonstration at the Capitol yesterday. When they were refused permits they changed the plans and decided to present petitions to Speaker Garner and Vice President Curtis. This was then changed and a decision made to try again for a parade permit.

The violent reaction on the part of the ragged army of veterans against the Communists who try to spread Red propaganda in the ranks caused a change of tactics on the part of the Communists. A small colored boy was caught yesterday distributing leaflets at the Anacostia camp. The child was unmolested, but was warned not to come back.

Race Discrimination.

The literature devoted much space to race discrimination, obviously intended to inflame the hundreds of Negroes in the camp. The leaflets asked support of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, a Communist organization.

Extra precautions are being taken at Bolling Field against any attempt at violence. The field adjoins the Anacostia encampment. While no violence is expected, all leaves have been canceled and guards doubled and other emergency measures taken.

The executive committee of the forces, composed of representatives of the seven regiments, gathered in the bedroom of one of the members in a drab rooming house in the Southeast section and began the formulation of policy for the forces.

The committee is composed of Hoover, Jerk, Thomas Tooney, of New Jersey; Arthur H. Milton, of Illinois; Joseph Fabiano, of New York; I. C. Schooler, of Texas, and Edward J. Heany, of Pennsylvania.

Dummy Only Passenger.

The only passenger the trucks will have when they reach the billets at Eighth and I streets southeast will be a dummy, rigged up by the men, bearing the sign: "The only one who is going home."

Trucks will be sent to Seventh and L streets southwest, Twelfth and D streets southwest, Eighth and I streets southeast, and to the Anacostia encampment. The movement, if any, will be under direction of Inspector Ernest W. Brown. Sufficient food will be allotted to the departing men to last one day.

Trucks going west will carry any home-going veterans as far as Frederick, Md., and those going north will take the veterans as far as Baltimore. From these points, the State of Maryland will carry the men to the Maryland boundaries, under an arrangement made between Gen. Glassford and Adjt. Gen. M. A. Rechord, of Maryland.

Assurance by Rainey.

Further assurance the bonus bill of Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, would be called to the floor of the House for a vote was given yesterday by Democratic House Leader Rainey.

"One hundred and forty-five men signed the petition to discharge the rules committee from consideration of the cash bonus proposition, and they are entitled to a vote in the House. A lot of those who signed the petition have been coming to me asking if we are not going to adjourn before June 15, but I told them 'No, you signed the petition and you can go to the mat on it.' When members take such steps they should go through with their proposition. In fact, I think the House and Senate both ought to vote on the question and settle it."

Representative Patman predicts he will have 225 votes, enough to insure passage of the bill, when his bonus measure comes before the House for a vote.

Respect for Authority.

In his introduction of the bill to provide the $125,000 for the veterans, Representative Black said: "The plight of the veterans who are here in a strictly American fashion urging legislation calls for help from the Government for which they fought. The economic pressure in these men has been almost unbearable and yet during their stay here they have manifested a great respect for authority and a confidence in Congress which far more prosperous Americans would well emulate."

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Church in Pittsburgh, Pa., who led 12,000 in an unemployment march on the Capitol several months ago, will arrive here today to urge the men to make their plea to Congress and return home. He said Robert Williams, of Cleveland, was sent from Washington to ask him to assume command of the forces. None of the leaders of the march has any knowledge of such an emissary being sent to Father Cox.

Gen. Jacob Coxey, who led Coxey's army in a march on the Capitol in the early '90's, visited the camp at Anacostia yesterday and addressed the veterans. He is now Mayor of Massilon, Ohio.

POLICE TURN BACK 200 RED MARCHERS

Trucks Are Provided to Take Men Out of Pittsburgh; They Are Defiant.

Pittsburgh, June 8 (A.P.).—State police were summoned today to take charge of 200 members of the Workers' Ex-Service Men's League after their leader had been arrested.

The group is en route to Washington to seek payment of the soldier's bonus. Their organization is Communistic.

The men were prevented from marching to the City-County Building when they reached the downtown section of the city. Trucks were provided to haul them to a point between Irwin and McKeesport. There they were told to "keep going."

When C. B. Cowan, of Cleveland, leading the delegation, announced his intention of returning to the city, he was taken into custody and brought here under police escort.

Assistant Superintendent of Police Ben R. Marshall told Capt. Albert Carlson, of the State police at Greensburg, that "these men are a bad lot and they're in an ugly mood."

Marshall said the men are members of the group that invaded Cleveland railroad yards and clashed with police last week.

Free State Senate Cuts Abolition Bill

Defeats Two of Four Sections in De Valera's Drive on Oath to Crown.

Dublin, June 8 (U.P.).—The Free State Senate today interrupted President Eamon De Valera's campaign to abolish the oath of allegiance to the crown by defeating two of the four sections of the abolition bill.

The Senate then adopted, 33 to 22, an amendment declaring that the bill should not come into force until an agreement on it is reached by the Free State and British governments. The Senate acted in committee.

Mr. De Valera at present is in the midst of negotiations with Britain for settlement of outstanding differences, including the oath bill and Free State government's decision to withhold land annuities usually paid to the British exchequer.

Howell to Head Campaign Inquiry

Nebraska Senator Named as Leader of Group in Funds Probe.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Howell, of Nebraska, was selected yesterday by Senate Republicans to head the committee to investigate this year's campaign expenditures of presidential and senatorial candidates.

Approval of the resolution authorizing the inquiry was blocked in the Senate previously by Senator Watson, Republican leader, because he said he had been unable to find two "regular" Republicans willing to serve.

The last campaign expenditures committee was headed by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota.

Suspect Captured By Two Veterans

Man Held for Police After Allegedly Robbing Avenue Store.

Two of the "bonus expeditionary force" were credited by Lieut. James Lee, of the First Precinct, with an assist early yesterday morning in the arrest of a man on a charge of housebreaking. The two veterans are said to have captured the man when he insisted on using their automobile to haul away a quantity of goods he had taken from a shop at 233 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The bonus marchers, Edward F. Benson and Raymond Wilkins, both of Johnstown, Pa., were attempting to catch a nap in their automobile parked on Pennsylvania avenue near Second street northwest about 3 a. m., according to police, when the man approached them with a proposition to help remove the goods from the store which he had just entered.

Benson and Wilkins are said to have told the man to go away and let them sleep. The fellow left, but a few moments later returned and started dumping a pile of goods into the automobile. The bonus marchers collared the man and called police. He was arrested by Lieut. Lee and Sergt. E. P. Myers. He gave his name as John R. Taylor, 46, of 219 Third street northwest.

Bonus Army's Commander Is a 'Natural Born' Leader

Walter W. Waters, 34-Year-Old Veteran From Portland, Called in to Smooth Ruffled Waters; Married and Has Two Daughters.

Soft-spoken Walter W. Waters, the commander in chief of the united bonus expeditionary forces, is a "natural born" leader.

For a time after his arrival here he took charge of the arrivals, until illness waylaid him. As soon as he was able to join the ranks again, which was for the "big parade," the men immediately looked to him for leadership.

Factionalism threatened to disrupt the ranks and he was called in to smooth oil on the waters. He is a lithe, active man from the Northwest. He is 34 years old and participated in every major engagement of the American Expeditionary Forces, including the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne.

He saw five months' active service with the 146th Field Artillery of the First Army, and in all spent 22 months overseas, 9 months of which was in the Army of Occupation. He was born in Burns, Oreg., and has lived in Idaho and northern Indiana. He served on the Mexican border in 1916.

He is married and has two children, both girls. "After we get the bonus," he said with a twinkle in his gray eyes, "I'm going back to Portland, Orge." His adjusted compensation certificate entitles him to $1,586.

Dispatches Concerning Bonus Army

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 8 (A.P.).—Jeff Davis, "king of hoboes," sent word to "jungles" and "tanks" throughout the Nation today for hoboes to stay out of Washington and give World War veterans free rein in seeking payment on their bonus certificates.

The orders are to be passed by word of mouth, circulated by hoboes reached here while passing through to East or West, North or South.

His instruction, Davis said, followed word from Washington that Dan Brien, calling himself a hobo, had issued a call for the wanderers to gather in Washington and demand "good food and clean beds."

Kansas City, June 8 (A.P.).—The alleged attempt of a World War veteran to commandeer a United States tugboat in the Missouri River to aid in a bonus march from Denver to Washington resulted in injuries which sent him to the general hospital.

Answering a riot call, police found Walter E. Baker, 36, La Veta, Colo., aboard the tugboat. Fourteen comrades of his watched from the shore.

In his efforts to seize the craft, police were informed, Baker met the combined resistance of Capt. Robert L. Wilson and Noel C. Wilder, watchman, who beat him severely with their fists.

Grafton, W. Va., June 8 (A.P.).—One World War Veteran was killed and two others may die from injuries they received last night in an automobile accident while en route from Lexington, Ky., to Washington to join the "bonus army."

All of the men are residents of Lexington. Joseph Gordon, 35, Negro, who was serving as captain of the group, was killed. The condition of John Scott, 54, and Frank Jenkins, 38, both Negroes, was described as critical today.

Wesley Wilson, 40, a white man, and Arthur Williams, 31, Negro, also are in a hospital here. Wilson suffered a head injury and was cut and bruised. Williams' left arm was fractured, and he suffered head injuries, cuts and bruises.

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—Seven-year-old George J. Frank, jr., of Houston, Tex., is seeing the world with a "bonus army" from Denver, Colo.

Accompanied by his father, he left last night by bus for Hammond, Ind., with the Denver contingent of World War veterans en route East to join the veterans demanding payment of the bonus at Washington.

George's mother is dead and his father had been long out of work. So both joined a detail of Houston, Tex., veterans marching to the Capital.

Pittsburgh, June 8 (A.P.).—The Rev. James R. Cox, rector of old St. Patrick's Church, will fly to Washington tomorrow and urge the bonus seekers there to return to their homes by Monday.

Father Cox will also present the former soldiers' bonus plea for a cash bonus to Congress.

The priest, who last winter led a caravan of jobless to the Capital, received an invitation to go to Washington in the bonus seekers' behalf from Robert R. Williams, Cleveland World War veteran, who said he was sent by the general committee of veterans.

Williams said 20,000 persons, most of them former service men, will hear Father Cox speak at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 11:30 a. m. and that the priest will be one of a committee of three to appear before Congress.

Indianapolis, June 8 (A.P.).—Three delegations of World War veterans en route to Washington to seek payment of a cash bonus were in Indiana today.

Thirty-six arrived here from Decatur, Ill., last night and were provided food and shelter by the Indianapolis Police Department.

A delegation twice that size spent the night in an abandoned building at Terre Haute. They were reported to have received donations to pay their fares from Danville, Ill.

Peoria, Ill., June 8 (A.P.).—Twenty-two World War veterans from the Northwest rode into Peoria today on freight trains and will leave tonight for Washington to join the bonus "Army of the Potomac."

Five Peoria veterans joined the marchers. Food was furnished by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, East Peoria Camp.

Springfield, Ill., June 8 (A.P.).—Bound for Washington carrying "beer and bonus" slogans, 50 veterans of the World War caught a Wabash freight train eastward at 4:35 a. m. today.

R. G. Bell, C. R. Blazier, Harry Gaffigan and H. E. Duffy were in charge of the Springfield group.

Paducah, Ky., June 8 (A.P.).—Six hundred "bonus marchers" from Texas, who left Memphis today on an Illinois Central freight train, arrived here tonight over the same road after changing trains at Fulton, Ky.

Officials of the Illinois Central arranged to send them from Paducah at midnight tonight on another freight train bound for Louisville. They probably will arrive in the Kentucky metropolis tomorrow around noon.

Crossville, Tenn., June 8 (A.P.).—Between 450 and 500 Oklahoma and Texas "bonus marchers," being convoyed from Nashville to the Tennessee-Virginia line in a fleet of 16 Army trucks, reached here at dusk and encamped for the night in the baseball park.

Food was provided by the Crossville American Legion post.

The veterans had planned to reach the Virginia line at Bristol at 9 p. m., but motor trouble slowed their trip across the eastern half of Tennessee.

They plan to leave this Cumberland Mountain town at 5 a. m. Thursday for the Tennessee line, about 200 miles from here.

Rainey Asks Delay On Majority Rule

Urges Issue Not Be Taken Up Before Democrats Pick Nominee.

(Associated Press.)

A suggestion that the Democratic national convention delay its fight over the two-thirds majority rule until after the nominee is named was advanced yesterday by Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the House Democratic leader. Rainey is a delegate-at-large from Illinois, whose delegation is pledged for Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of that State.

"I feel that it would be a grave mistake for the forces supporting Gov. Franklin Roosevelt of New York or any other candidate to bring the issue over the abolition of the two-thirds rule up before a nominee is selected," Rainey said. "It might act as a boomerang.

"On the other hand, if the issue is taken up after the nominee is selected, I have no doubt that it can be easily abolished. It ought to be. It has been the source of trouble in every convention I have attended."

Excess Rum Fatal To Indian Heiress

Mary Elkins, One-Time Lavish Spender, Is Found Dead.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 8 (A.P.).—Mary Elkins, Osage Indian oil heiress, whose lavish spending and marital adventures focused public attention on her for the last decade, was found dead today in her home at Ivy Wild, a suburb.

Homer R. Gillett, acting coroner, pronounced death due to excessive use of liquor and removed earlier suspicion that she might have been the victim of violence. He said it was learned she had been intoxicated for several days. Sheriff's officers had been seeking her for a week to serve papers on her in connection with an alienation of affections suit brought by a Negro woman.

At one time she was one of the richest of the Osages.

Her first husband was Bobby Corbett, a prize fighter, whom she married in 1922 in Kansas City. The marriage was dissolved. Miss Elkins claiming she was drugged at the time of the ceremony. She afterward married Harry Bowles, a Colorado Springs taxi driver, whom she divorced to marry David Derryberry. She was granted a preliminary divorce decree from Derryberry last January.

ELECTRIC FANS LIFETIME GUARANTEED VACUUM CLEANERS

GRAIN COOPERATIVE TELLS CASE TODAY

Will Give Arguments for Keeping Its Clearing House Privileges.

(Associated Press.)

Each charging the other with trying to put it "out of business," the Chicago Board of Trade and the Farmers National Grain Corporation stood with horns locked last night as a Federal commission prepared to hear the argument of counsel in the cooperative's fight to retain clearing house privileges.

Further testimony on the grain corporation's financial condition will be submitted this morning, although Arthur F. Lindley, president of the board's clearing house, declared that question was not considered in denying membership to the Farmers National.

Lindley sought to absolve the board of responsibility by testifying that the directors of the clearing corporation had on their own authority unanimously voted in a twenty-minute session to deny the cooperative clearing privileges. The decision, he said, was based entirely on amended rules of the clearing house, which since 1929 have denied membership to corporations.

The Farmers National still is represented on the board of trade by J. M. Chilton and George S. Milnor, its general manager. Counsel insisted that by virtue of membership by two executives the cooperative is entitled to all the rights and privileges of the board regardless of the clearing house rule against corporations.

MRS. M'LEAN TELLS JURY OF MEANS DEAL

cepted after the defense challenged eight talesmen and the prosecution four. Justice James M. Proctor admitted the prosecution's statement charging Means' original negotiations after the defense strenuously objected.

The prosecutor said that about an hour before Mrs. McLean telephoned Means last March 4, Means had asked Robert F. Fleming, a Maryland real estate man, to put him in touch with Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, brother of Harry Guggenheim and a friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Fleming arranged a meeting for the same day. Rover said, but Means failed to keep it because Mrs. McLean entered the picture. Several days later, however, Means did meet Guggenheim and several others at Fleming's home, Rover continued, and there it was arranged that Means should deliver the baby to Guggenheim.

Failed to Hear From Means.

Following Means' directions, Guggenheim later secured the use of the private automobile and liveried chauffeur of the Austrian minister, Rover said, for the delivery of the baby. But, added Rover, Guggenheim never afterward heard from Means.

The prosecutor told of Means' alleged negotiations, carried on with colorful details of underworld verbiage, machine guns to insure the "kidnapers" against false moves by Mrs. McLean, and with representations by Means that he was in contact not only with the real kidnapers, but with those with whom John H. Curtis, of Norfolk, supposedly was negotiating, and with those to whom the "Jafsie" of the want ads actually paid $50,000 in a futile attempt to recover the baby.

Mr. Rover said that Means cautioned Mrs. McLean against telling her lawyers anything about their negotiations, and provided a secret code by which he, Means, and Mrs. McLean should communicate with each other. Under this code, Means was to be known as "Hogan," because Mrs. McLean had a lawyer, Frank J. Hogan. The code also provided that "the fox," the name of Albert W. Fox, another of Mrs. McLean's lawyers, should signify any of the kidnapers or their gang. The Lindberg baby was to be referred to by any of the three words, "package, manuscript, book."

Assigned Numbers.

Mrs. McLean would be known under the code by the number "eleven," or figures adding to this sum. Means also assigned numbers to himself and the kidnapers.

Telling how Mrs. McLean borrowed $100,000 in cash from the National Metropolitan Bank, and handed it over to Means—for ransom—in the presence of the Rev. Francis Hurney, a Catholic priest, Attorney Rover also described how she went to South Carolina and the Mexican border in the hope of receiving the baby.

On March 17, after Mrs. McLean and Father Hurney had waited all night in a Maryland cottage of the McLeans, to which Means had promised to bring the baby, Rover said Means told Mrs. McLean that the baby had been on the way to her cottage, but that a decoy automobile, traveling ahead of one carrying the baby, had run into trouble, and so the baby had been taken back. Later, at Aiken, S. C., Means brought to Mrs. McLean a man whom he called "The Fox," Rover said. The "Fox" showed Mrs. McLean a little street in which he said the baby would be returned, the prosecutor continued.

"'I will deliver the baby right over here,'" Rover said "The Fox" told Mrs. McLean. "'At each end of this street there will be a car with machine guns. If there is a false move they will use the machine guns.'"

Kidnapers Did Not Appear.

But the kidnapers did not appear, Rover continued, and later Means went to El Paso, telephoned Mrs. McLean that "everything was fine," and she joined him, expecting him to produce the baby. There, however, Rover said, Mrs. McLean learned of difficulties between Means and "The Fox." The prosecutor said Means told Mrs. McLean that he would get the baby even if he had to have "The Fox" "bumped off."

Mrs. McLean, said Rover, cautioned Means against this, but told him that she had some sleeping powder which, if necessary, Means could give to the kidnapers to incapacitate them temporarily, while the baby was being returned.

Then Rover told of continued promises to return the baby and later excuses by Means, until finally Mrs. McLean demanded the money back, later bringing in her lawyers. Rover said that Means' explanation was that he gave the $100,000 to a strange man in nearby Alexandria, Va., when the man "identified himself by using the number eleven."

Rover declared Mrs. McLean had instructed Means to deliver the money to Father Hurney, and to nobody else."

SLAYING OF DEPUTY CAUSES TROOP CALL

Three Kentucky Miners Are Arrested in Killing of Guard at Shaft.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 8 (A.P.).—A plea for national guard troops and arrest of three miners were results today of the slaying yesterday of Deputy Sheriff Wallace Myers. Myers was shot to death while on guard at Empire Mine No. 6, in the latest outbreak of mine labor troubles in the western Kentucky coal fields.

Stating that civil authorities probably could not control the situation Circuit Judge Ira D. Smith and county officials today telegraphed Gov. Ruby Laffoon for a guard detachment immediately. The plea followed a swift investigation by Sheriff Barrett Brown of the death of Myers and the arrest of Paul Davis, Maxie Long and Goldie Fisk, miners.

Bloodhounds from Nashville, Tenn., were called into action at dawn. Officers said they followed a trail to Davis and Long at Mannington after taking the scent from the attackers' hiding place near Empire Mine.

The shooting yesterday, which was the outcrop of a strike which began at Empire Mine No. 6 several weeks ago, occurred as working miners emerged from the pit. Myers was the only one hit by the bullets.

Two Ohio Mines Reopen.

Columbus, June 8 (A.P.).—Two more Ohio bituminous coal mines resumed operations today following an all-night demonstration of strikers while in another field deputy sheriffs and a National Guard airplane routed a group of women pickets alleged to have been hurling stones at workers and arrested two as leaders.

The two workings reopened were Milliford No. 6 Mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., with 41 men employed, and Chauncey No. 25 of the Manhattan Coal Co., which reported mine workers working. School and church bells sounded the tocsin for a great demonstration and parade through Chauncey, following which 300 strikers gathered on the picket lines near both mines, but no disorder was reported.

Gas Bombs Bring Arrests.

Ida Stevens, of Byesville, and Mary Sabo, of Trail Run, were arrested on charges of inciting to riot after officers and guardsmen had broken up a threatening crowd at Harriett Mine, in Guernsey County. Thirty-two men pickets were taken into custody accused of rioting when the lines reformed today.

The clash with the women pickets occurred when a barrage of stones met workers as they emerged from the tipple. A National Guard observation plane, piloted by Lieut. Karl E. Bushong, dispersed the crowd by dropping tear bombs.

Jury Indicts Former U. S. Bank Examiner

Galveston, Tex., June 8 (A.P.).—W. B. Sellers, of Dallas, an ofncial of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and said to be a former national bank examiner, was indicted by the Federal grand jury here today on charges of making false entries in bank records and in a report to the Comptroller of the Currency.

The indictment alleges that on June 29, 1929, Sellers was vice president and director of the First National Bank of Brownsville, Tex., and that he made a false entry of $6,000 in the general ledger and daily statement of the bank, and that on July 6, 1929, he made a false entry of $6,600 in a report to the Comptroller of the Currency.

Student Is Found Shot To Death; Held Suicide

Williamstown, Mass., June 8 (A.P.).—Malcolm E. Erskine, 22, of Stamford, Conn., a senior at Williams College, was found shot to death in a clump of bushes today. Medical Examiner James W. Bunce said Erskine had committed suicide.

Erskine's body was found by Christopher W. Stanwood, of Wellesley, and Joseph O. Eaton, jr., of Cleveland, Ohio, fraternity brothers of Erskine, who had been searching for the senior since he left the fraternity house Monday night. Officials of the college and friends said they knew no reason for the suicide.

Bravery of Life-Term Convict Wins Freedom

Salem, Oreg., June 8 (A.P.).—Leroy Hanson, who was sent to Oregon State Prison for life, will leave the penitentiary next month a free man, because he saved the life of the warden, James Lewis. The prisoner was informed today Gov. Julius L. Meier has commuted his sentence.

Last April the warden was attacked and seriously injured by an insane convict, who ran amuck with a knife. Hanson plunged at the bad man, braving the swinging knife, and succeeded in overpowering him.

Paradox—Maid and Magi To Make Goat Into Man!

By JOHN J. DALY

At the sign of the next full moon, British and German psychic investigators will meet atop the magic mountain, Brocken, the loftiest summit of the Harts range, and there conduct an age-old experiment, one that has not been tried since medieval times.

It all came out of an old manuscript, "High German Black Book," discovered in the National Laboratory of Psychical Research, London, the formula prescribing that the ceremony must take place either 24 hours before or after full moon.

A beautiful damsel clad in white will be escorted to Brocken's topmost point. Then, a pine fire will be lighted, the magi drawing a circle around it and scratching magic symbols on the ground.

Within the magic circle the lovely maiden will step, leading a white goat on a silver cord. She will anoint the beast with blood, honey, and the scrapings of church bells, taking care, of course, that the goat does not eat the scrapings. Then, finally, she will drape a sheet over William, the billy goat.

* * * *

At this point, High Magic comes into play. The assembled guests—and they are coming from all parts of the continent—will begin chanting incantations, keeping up the chatter till the moon is obscured "and only a pin of light cometh from the Tower of Kassel."

Then, according to the ancient manuscript, the sheet will drop and, lo! and behold, a handsome youth will take the place of the goat.

It may and it may not work.

So many things have come to pass, since medieval days, to chase the spirits out of the world—the roar of the locomotives, the back-firing of the automobile, and the rasping of the radio, to mention only a few disturbing influences.

While the men on the mountain top may not be able to produce a handsome youth from the form of a goat, they could, mighty easily, make a goat out of any handsome young man, especially with a white damsel in the magic circle.

The scientists seem to be going at their tasks backwards.

WOMEN IN SEATTLE FOR PARLEY TODAY

Mrs. Poole, President-to-Be of Federation, Favors Rum Referendum.

Seattle, June 8 (A.P.).—The vanguard of delegates to the twenty-first biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs arrived today. The ten-day session opens here tomorrow.

Headed by Mrs. Grace M. Poole, of Brockton, Mass., the unopposed candidate for the federation presidency, 200 arrived here early today.

Preceding Mrs. Poole and her party, Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the organization, arrived last night.

An avowed "dry," the president-to-be of the federation nevertheless favors a referendum on the liquor question.

"I am still for temperance," she said, "but not for prohibition as it exists now."

CAPTIVE TELLS OF 5 MONTHS WITH REDS

Kidnaped American Declares Inhuman Bandits Rule Chinese Sector.

Shanghai, June 6 (A.P.).—Charles Baker, American steamboat captain, who was abducted by Chinese brigands last winter, arrived in Shanghai today and told his story of five months of terror in which he was threatened with death 50 times.

The captain, 30 pounds underweight as a result of exposure and filthy food—all he had to eat was half-cooked rice and fish—will remain in Shanghai to get back his strength and then he will join his family in Oakland, Calif.

Although his captors frequently threatened to kill him unless a ransom of 50,000 Mexican dollars was paid, he finally was released without any money changing hands. American missionaries arranged it.

"I was threatened with death 50 times," he said. "I never expected to survive.

"These half-civilized, treacherous, inhuman bandits, who call themselves Communists, are conducting a wholesale kidnaping business. Their victims are any foreigners or wealthy Chinese they can lay their hands on, who, they believe, would be capable of paying huge ransoms."

The captain was kept prisoner in the area above Hankow on the north bank of the Yangtze. For a distance of 200 miles along the river, he said, lawless, brutal men are in full control. "They hold the whole country in an iron grip, terrorizing the peasants and bleeding them of every possible cent.

DO YOU INHALE?

Silence may be golden

. . . but is that why other cigarette advertising is generally silent on this question?

WHEN the truth hurts—it's only natural to avoid the subject! Inhaling has long been an "untouchable" topic in cigarette advertising. And no wonder! In every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, every smoker inhales some part of the smoke from his or her cigarette, Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

SEND VETERANS HOME.

The demagogues who encouraged the march of veterans upon Washington are now trying to exculpate themselves. They can not succeed. They are responsible for the present dangerous situation, and will be morally responsible for any disorders that may occur.

The parade of veterans on Tuesday evening made a very favorable impression upon all beholders. Those who marched are true Americans. They are not trying to stir up mischief. Many of them are pitifully misinformed. Others have learned much since their arrival, and would be glad to dissuade veterans from coming if they could.

More veterans are on the way. Their presence will make matters worse. With all the good will in the world, these men will not remain peaceable if they do not have food.

Congress is now grappling with the national problem of emergency relief. If that problem can be quickly solved, the problem of feeding and demobilizing the bonus army can be solved also. It is proposed that money shall be lent to the States for relief of the unemployed. Congress can provide that a sufficient sum to feed the veterans and to transport them to their home States shall be charged against the allotment to each State, in proportion to the number of veterans from each State. The States, and not the United States, should be made to pay the cost of the veterans' expedition to Washington.

The veterans should be advised that unemployment relief must be sought at their homes, where they are known, and where the only fund for the purpose will be available. They should be provided with transportation back to their home States as soon as possible.

Unless the cost of feeding and dispersing the veterans' army is made a charge against the unemployment loan to the States the country will be confronted with the beginning of the Federal dole system. Once begun, the dole will expand until the total cost will exceed the $1,000,000,0000 now paid annually to veterans.

Congress need not wait until the emergency relief legislation is completed. Both houses and the administration have virtually agreed that there shall be an unemployment relief fund to be distributed through the States. Therefore the comparatively small sum required for feeding the veterans in Washington and sending them home can be appropriated at once, and charged against the loans to be made to the States.

GARNER DEFEATS HIS PARTY.

Democrats and insurgent Republicans in the House have put through that body the Garner pork barrel bill. Ten Democrats refused to support the bill, and twenty-one so-called Republicans voted for it. With these exceptions the vote was on party lines, Democrats supporting the grab and Republicans opposing it.

The Post today prints a compilation of the villages, towns and cities which would receive "pork" if this bill should become law. Practically every congressional district is included in the proposed distribution of money to be extorted from the taxpayers and squandered for buildings which in many cases are not needed, and which are not wanted by the communities supposed to be benefited. City councils, chambers of commerce, and business clubs are sending in protests against appropriating money for unnecessary buildings.

A glance at the list of proposed buildings reveals the astounding and unprecedented nature of this proposed raid. It is well described by President Hoover as the most gigantic pork barrel bill ever laid before Congress.

The certainty that this bill can not become law is the only reassuring feature of the situation. The House vote discloses that the bill can not pass over the President's veto. Opposition by Senate Democrats to the Garner brand of folly makes it improbable that the bill will pass that body.

That the House, just after passing the tax bill, should adopt the Garner bill and thus try to unbalance the budget and deal another deadly blow to public confidence is melancholy proof of the utter breakdown of statesmanship in one branch of Congress. Speaker Garner's leadership has been wanting when most needed for the national welfare, and most potent in promoting bad legislation. The record of the House is not quite complete, as a vote on the soldiers' bonus is expected; but even if the House should fail to cap the climax by voting the $2,400,000,000 bonus bill, the Democrats of the United States have before them a spectacle of incompetence which they can not explain away. Their party is responsible for the action of the House of Representatives. What will they say in the forthcoming national convention? How can they defend the record of their party in the House, on all matters in which Speaker Garner and his lieutenants attempted to make political capital by proposing to squander public funds?

The Democratic national convention will go into the campaign under the heavy handicap of party failure in the House. The candidate for President, whomsoever he may be, will be on the defensive from the beginning, because his party was weighed and found wanting at a time of great national stress. No matter how glittering his promises may be, the country will still be smarting with resentment at what the Democratic House has done and failed to do. Speaker Garner and his party colleagues in the House have done all they could possibly do to prevent the election of a Democratic President.

THE FURLOUGH SYSTEM.

The Senate has pursued a wise course from the national economic viewpoint by substituting the furlough plan for the proposed cut in the basic pay of Federal employes.

The system of furloughs without pay will work great hardship upon thousands of Federal workers, who are running behindhand even when working full time. But the furlough system is preferable to a pay cut, because it maintains the basic rate of pay and therefore encourages all industry to maintain wages. Federal workers, if the Senate plan should prevail, will be deprived of the opportunity to work full time for full pay, but they will at least be owners of the idle time, and in many cases can turn this time into extra money. They will have the satisfaction of knowing that their basic pay is undisturbed, and that a renewal of national activity will require the Government to command their full time again.

President Hoover explored this question thoroughly many months ago. He chose the furlough plan as the lesser of two evils, not because he wished to conserve Treasury resources at the expense of underpaid public servants, but because he foresaw that the depression would drive all wages downward, and he was anxious to prevent a precipitate countrywide slashing of wages. By conference and counsel he succeeded in persuading industry that prosperity would not be recovered by cutting wages. As one industry after another has been forced to economize or go bankrupt, it has been found that the furlough system in many cases has wrought less hardship than basic wage-cutting. The workers often use their extra time to good advantage, and most of them accept the situation cheerfully and with a wholesome spirit of co-operation.

The furlough system should not be adopted for Federal workers if Congress can find any better method of economizing. Economy in the true sense will not be enhanced by skimping the service given by the Government to the people. The lopping off of unnecessary pork-barrel projects is true economy. But Congress is obdurate in this regard, even in these hard times, and the great appropriation bills to maintain the executive departments will carry needless items in spite of public and presidential protest. The President can not veto a departmental appropriation bill, even if some of the items in it are unconscionable. Such a monstrosity as the Garner pork-barrel bill can be beaten, however, and in doing it to death the President can lay emphasis upon pork appropriations generally, hoping that public opinion will deter legislators hereafter from making these political raids upon public funds.

SOUTH AMERICAN SOCIALISM.

From several Latin American sources come intimations that the socialistic movement started in Chile may spread to other southern republics. Economic and financial conditions in Spanish American countries are much alike, and restless people feeling the pinch of the universal depression often reach the point of revolt simultaneously.

Peruvian exiles, following the successful coup of Carlos Davila, in Chile, are threatening similar action. In Bolivia one of the leading newspapers of La Paz predicts that not only Bolivia and Peru will experience revolutionary movements of the same character as that of Chile, but that Argentina and other South American nations will follow. This is doubtless an exaggerated view, somewhat natural in Bolivia, where socialization in several directions has already taken place under the existing government.

Mexico has approached this question piecemeal, two states having already passed radical laws providing for expropriation of property on a basis that amounts to virtual confiscation. The states of Hidalgo and Veracruz have delegated power to the governors to take over any private industry whenever such action is considered to be for the public good, upon payment of 3 per cent of assessed valuation, the balance being payable over a period of twenty years. In Hidalgo a large British-owned cement plant has been seized by the state and turned over to former employes for operation.

Mexican federal authorities are by no means a unit in approving this state action. El Nacional, organ of the National Revolutionary party, founded by General Calles, still the most powerful figure in Mexico, has denounced the new laws, declaring that "Veracruz has authorized the state to expropriate virtually every productive source on the ground that the public utility authorities are converted monsters. Outright Communism would be much easier and more logical." So numerous have been the attacks upon the Hidalgo law, under which all industrial, commercial and agricultural holdings are liable to expropriation, that modification of the measure is anticipated, either through proceedings that may determine it to be unconstitutional, or as a result of conferences held between Governor Vargas and President Ortiz Rubio.

Undoubtedly the ambitious plans of Provisional President Davila in setting up a socialistic state in Chile is being watched with intense interest in many Latin American republics. The burden of indebtedness and the low prices ruling on all export commodities have combined to render the situation of some of them desperately hard. Davila is promising work for every idle man within thirty days. He proposes to create three state companies, one for agriculture, one industrial and one mining, to furnish employment for all. Such state organizations could supply work on such short notice only by taking over private enterprises. The outcome of any such confiscatory plans will be awaited with general apprehension.

NAVAL RESERVE NEEDS.

The budget estimate for the Naval Reserve for next year was reduced $780,835 from the total of 1932, leaving $3,840,000, a sum which would require the enforcement of sharp economies, but which nevertheless was cheerfully accepted as necessary under present conditions. The House appropriation bill cut an additional $732,314 from the budget estimate for the Reserve, a total decrease from last year of 34 per cent.

The United States Naval Reserve Officers Association calls timely attention to the fact that the additional reduction made by the House will necessitate the elimination of the annual training cruises for the Navy's civilian component. The 40,000 officers and men of the United States Naval Reserve comprise a total much smaller than is maintained by any of the treaty powers. Exclusive of the fleet, which is now virtually in Pacific waters, there are only five destroyers and seven Eagle boats available for training purposes on the East Coast and Gulf, and five gunboats on the Great Lakes.

During its first consideration of the Army appropriations the House eliminated provisions for Reserve Officers and Citizens training camps, but these items were restored. It seems a matter of simple justice and consideration of the balanced needs of the background of defense that the important feature of training cruises also should be reinstated in connection with the Navy needs. Not all of the House reduction will be needed to provide for the cruises, $617,710 being the estimated requirement, still leaving a reduction over budget figures of $144,604, and a decrease of approximately $1,000,000 from the Reserve total for the current year. To omit the vital feature of actual training duty through failure to provide this meagre amount would mean a short-sighted impairment in the efficiency and continuity of the very necessary trained reserves required under the present minimum provision for national defense.

JAPAN'S NAVAL RATIO

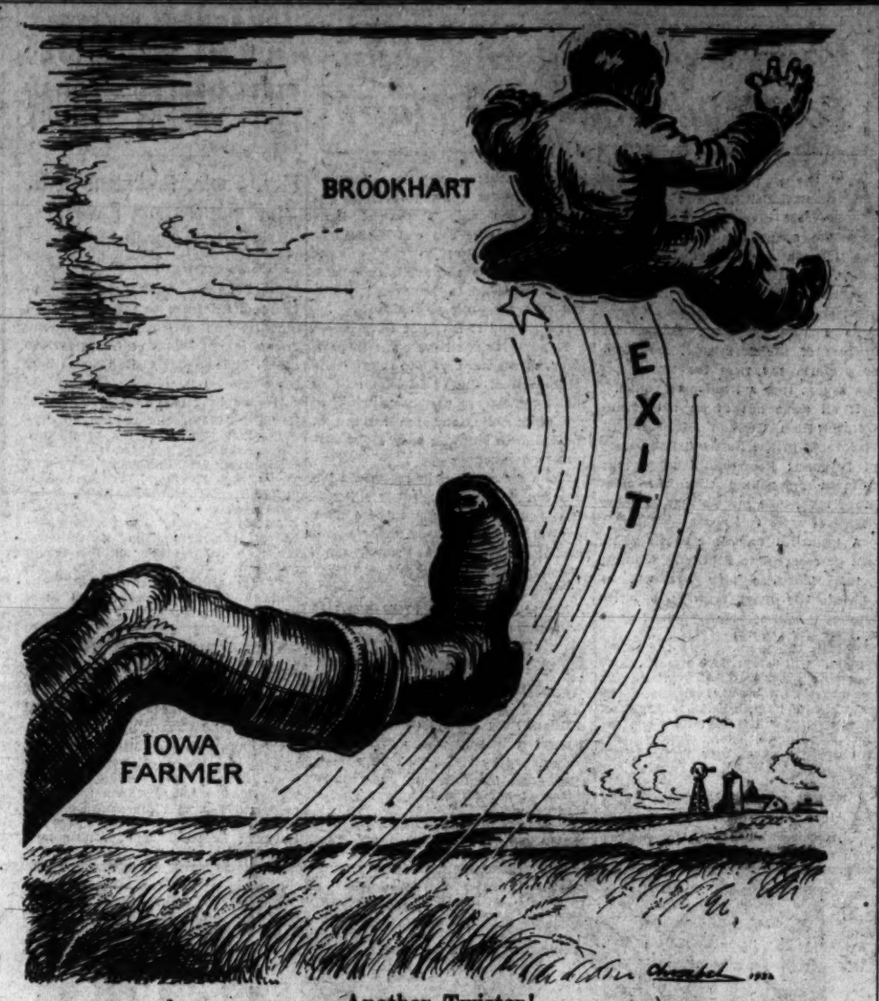
From the Los Angeles Times.

A disposition on the part of Japan to seek a new naval ratio is discerned at Geneva, where the disarmament conference is slowly working toward no apparent result. Its probable significance is not greater than to show that militarists are in control of the Japenese government, which was already known or suspected from many happenings of the past few months, but it may well be wondered what on earth—or on the ocean—Japan would do with a navy larger than she has, if she had it.

Neither the Chinese nor the Russians, either or both of which she may have to oppose one of these days, have any navies worthy the name at all. She would have to expand her navy at least three times—five times, according to Admiral Sims—to have hope of success in attacking the United States, but it is large enough as it is for successful defense of the Japanese homeland. And the Japanese yen is quoted down to 32 cents. The nation recently had to borrow $20,000,000 to pay the costs of the Shanghai and Manchuria adventures, the treasury being otherwise strapped.

In the long run, militarism can only be an interlude at Tokyo. In the long run, the commercial interests there must control, because in the long run it is only they who can raise the money to do anything. And there is no indication the commercial interests of Japan seek anything but peace, or could, being sensible men, seek anything but peace. Jingoist sentiment on the part of present Japanese rulers probably, therefore, does not mean a great deal and no one need be unduly alarmed about it.

Viscount Saito, the new Japanese premier, also says there is nothing to worry about, especially for Russia. He declares, and his declarations are worthy of note whether or not he is being entirely frank, that the open door is being maintained in Manchuria, that Russia's interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway are not endangered, and that Japan would not annex Manchuria under any circumstances. He also denies that Japan has any designs on Russian territory. The last at least is likely enough. To what extent Russian troop concentration will be affected by these remarks remains to be seen, but it should be remembered there is always another element in Russian troop concentrations. They depend somewhat on whether Stalin needs a war scare for reasons of domestic politics.



Another Twister!

POST HASTE.

The display of wettish sentiment from Iowa, North Carolina, Florida and Rockefeller at least looks something like a straw in the claret punch.

Premier Herriot advocates close international collaboration, with mental and metal reservations relating only to reparations and defense.

Evidently the Chesterfieldian Senator Lewis was caught off guard, or he would have politely requested those offending veterans to translate themselves to the abyss of Gehenna.

The threat of the new Chilean government to flood world markets with nitrates regardless of production costs runs true to communistic form.

"Scolding the politicians does not interest everybody." That's the reason why newspapers run the weather reports even in election years.

One thing the bonus army should do is to extradite Chairman Rankin and make him face the music along with codeluder Patman.

The Department of Agriculture announces continuance of the drive against the Japanese beetle, regardless of any complications this supplementary exclusion act may cause.

That explosive outburst from Senator Lewis did not sound like the words of a President, but such "language" may point to another forceful Vice-Presidential nominee.

Here's hoping that present omnipresent contact with contact in the transitive may be transitory.

The prize diagram of the situation is offered by the operation of the man who sold his 10 shares of Santa Fe stock in '29 and the other day reinvested the proceeds, buying back the 10 shares and also 10 shares each of 90 other good stock issues—910 shares for the price of 10.

DIFFICULTIES.

Out in the sandy desert where never a cloud is seen,
You can go for miles and miles without sight of a patch of green,
And the lizards will slither across your path, but never a bird will sing,
And never a breeze to your burning brow will the day or the night time bring.

Oh, it's rain you need for your garden,
it's winter and drifted snow,
For poor indeed are the tracts of earth which only the sunshine know,
And poor indeed is the human soul which shrinks from the touch of care
And seeks to live in some desert place where always the skies are fair.

For growth is born of the cloud and storm and the doubt which the morning brings,
As to and fro' twixt care and rest life's pendulum daily swings.
When pleasures and ease are commonplace, then boredom's sands sweep in
And man will yearn for a storm to face or a difficult goal to win.

Men Feared Gods of Clay Until One Dared to Offend Him.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is addressed to the moral coward, and its purpose is to suggest a remedy for the weakness that afflicts him.

What is moral cowardice? It is many unlovely things, but chiefly it is a disposition to lie out of trouble and to bully the weak.

Do you live in dread of offending your acquaintances? Do you flatter them and humble yourself to win their approval? When one of them appears slightly offended, do you pour out a flood of groveling speech in a panic-stricken effort to set matters right? If one of them unexpectedly charges you with some offense, do you lie glibly to clear yourself?

Finally, having lost your self-respect by such craven servility, do you attempt to regain it by being rude and overbearing and hateful to members of your own family because love or chivalry or a sense of duty makes them helpless to retaliate?

Then you need the remedy.

The remedy is based on the ancient truth that familiarity breeds contempt.

The boy who trembles in fear of a switch is the one who never has discovered how little it hurts. The man who cowers before a threatening fist is the one who hasn't learned by experience that blows aren't felt in battle. The soldier whose teeth chatter is the one who hasn't been under fire.

If you dread the disapproval of acquaintances, it is because you haven't learned how harmless it is.

Most people, with all due respect, are like a country hound. Turn to run and the hound will pull you down; roar at him or stoop for a stone and he will make for cover, yelping in terror at every jump.

Let people know you fear them and they will bully and abuse you for the smallest fault or accept your servile obedience in amused contempt; go your own calm way, with an indifferent shrug or an honest laugh for senseless criticism and people will say: "This must be a person of importance. He doesn't care a whoop what we think."

Try it—in fear and trembling, if you must—but try it. Once you have learned how little there is to fear, your days of moral cowardice are ended.

Everybody will join a chase, but few will start a fight.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Bonus Boys and Demagogues.
Chicago Tribune.

The march of the bonus seekers upon Washington probably began as one of the harum scarum things, juvenile in idea and spirit, which occasionally recommend themselves to segments of the democratic mind. The general category is that of flag pole sitting, marathon dancing and pie eating contests. There's a bit of the Ku Klux in it and something of Coxey. The bonus being a wholly irrational thing to propose, the bonus marchers go about in a wholly irrational manner to demand it.

They endeavor to constitute themselves as a privileged mendicant order imposing obligations upon any community they invade and expect a commissary department to be provided for them wherever they alight.

The bonus boys are not, however, wholly to blame. The chief responsibility rests with the demagogues in and out of Congress who persuaded them that the bonus payment was their due; that the country could and should pay it to them, and that they were being neglected. None of this was true, but some shysters made it plausible.

Chile Con Dinero.
Los Angeles Times.

One of the strongest indictments against the saloon has been written into the laws of Chile. With the customary wage-paying time being Saturday morning, police are charged with closing all drinking shops Friday night and sobering up their frequenters so they can line up for the money due them. The groggeries must remain closed for 48 hours in order that wives, mothers or housekeepers may have first chance at the pay envelope.

Change of Tune.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

In the times that we like to call "normal," the unrelenting cry of local political officials is for a more complete liberty to the city to manage its own affairs. The efforts of State legislatures and the Congress to order the problems of their respective areas are met with cries of interference. The extending power of Washington in local questions is pictured as a Leviathan, gobbling up in the jaws of bureaucracy the integrity of local self-government.

But how different the scene today. Now the mayors of 32 cities have met in Detroit and indorsed a three-fold plan for Federal aid to needy municipalities. The champions of local self-government suddenly have executed a volte face, and are shouting with no less vigor for paternalism from the Nation's Capital.

Are Legislators Sane?
Philadelphia Record.

A special niche in the Hall of Fame should be reserved for Assemblyman Theron McCampbell, of the New Jersey Legislature. McCampbell is the first legislator in the history of this country to stand up in a legislative hall and publicly question the ability of himself and his colleagues to handle the vital problems of the day.

"Is the New Jersey State Legislature an insane asylum?" was the question Assemblyman McCampbell thundered at his colleagues, and the answer he himself supplied was yes. He pointed out how little the Legislature had done.

While Mr. McCampbell was speaking the other Jersey legislators proved they were sane by turning out the lights in the assembly chamber, blowing police whistles and running up and down the aisles.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Bonus Marchers Fine Lot of Men, Says Mr. Perkins, but Their Cause Is Hopeless at Present.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was much impressed with the orderly manner in which the "Bonus Expeditionary Force" marched along Pennsylvania avenue. They certainly showed that they had not forgotten the military training which they received when in the service of Uncle Sam thirteen or more years ago. If the men had been in uniform instead of civilian clothes, the parade would have been an exact replica of many of the parades witnessed during the World War. I looked the men over very carefully. They did not seem downhearted; as a whole they were a fine lot of men. They marched like veterans; they conducted themselves like veterans. There certainly were no communistic tendencies present in the parade.

I think that all the onlookers were in sympathy with the veterans, and the "boys" certainly touched the hearts of every one. But that is not the point. The "Bonus Expeditionary Force" is seeking something where there is nothing. You can't get blood out of a turnip. I feel sorry for the veterans because they represent a portion of the army of the unemployed. That fact is evident, for if they had jobs they would not be here in Washington. However, I do think they made a great mistake when they started on their trek to the Capital, and I feel that those who are here have realized they made a mistake.

If the "bonus army" continues to increase, this mistake will become even more evident. The veterans who are here should warn their buddies who are on the road to turn back rather than have them come here and live under adverse conditions. The sleeping facilities are bad, there is no telling when there will be a great shortage in their food, and that means many of them will be taken sick, and some of the sickness might be fatal. The majority of the "boys" are not in the healthy condition they were in while serving in the army. They have not been under rigid medical attention and what they could stand fourteen years ago might prove too much for them today. I wish them luck, but I fear that is about all they will get; a sincere wish for luck.

R. L. PERKINS.

Praise for Gen. Glassford Instead of Criticism, Is Suggestion of Reader Who Believes He Has Handled Ticklish Situation Well.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that Gen. Glassford has received unjust criticism in regard to his actions concerning the "bonus army."

Gen. Glassford did not invite the veterans to Washington. They came on their own initiative, after having been warned by the chief of police not to come. Upon their arrival here Gen. Glassford did just what it was his duty to do. He made the best of an unpleasant situation. It is his duty to see that there is law and order in the District, and all his actions point directly to the establishment and the continual preservance of law and order among the veterans.

The parade Tuesday evening could not have been a more orderly affair. The veterans appreciate what Gen. Glassford has done for them and they will remain orderly just as long as it is humanly possible—if for no other reason, just for the purpose of showing their appreciation and gratitude to the general.

What error or wrong did Gen. Glassford commit? When the men arrived here and made it plain they were in earnest he tried to provide a few minor conveniences for their comfort. He tried to provide them with a place to sleep and bedding. He tried to see that they had enough food to keep them going. In other words, Gen. Glassford did everything in his power to preserve law and order. The former soldiers are orderly. I think they will remain orderly and I'll wager the great majority of them would willingly give Gen. Glassford the shirts off their backs if he asked them to do so.

I believe in giving credit where credit is due. There is no basis for the criticism Gen. Glassford has received. Instead of being criticised he should be praised for the splendid manner in which he has handled a ticklish situation. H. M. S.

Cutting Salaries of Government Employes Will Not Help Country.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer has just returned from a long trip through every State of the South except Oklahoma and Florida, and is well aware of the economic conditions there, but he fails to see how cutting the salaries of the already underpaid Government workers will help. Congress can not cure misery by creating misery.

If Federal taxes are high, State, county and municipal taxes are higher, and the very little saved on Federal payroll cuts would not help—especially in view of the stupendous pork barrel appropriations that are threatened.

It might be said in justification of the willingness of the Government workers to accept positions at such low salaries that they were attracted to these positions because of the very things they are now being deprived of—leave allowance and assurance of regular pay.

The Government employe is not a luxury. He renders a service to the very interests which mistakenly have been so zealously trying to undermine him. Business men are in need and constantly avail themselves of Government agencies. These business interests are bound to feel the effects of a curtailed Government personnel.

Everyday Table of Equivalents.

So often do we receive letters asking for a table of equivalents, and so often have we thought that surely we have taken care of this. But letters continue to reach us asking for advice on this subject, so today we shall enumerate a few of the equivalents which are used in everyday cookery. And, remember, all measurements must be accurate! When a recipe says a certain amount of butter, sugar, milk, &c., be sure that you measure just that amount. For to tamper with a recipe which has been tried and proved true, is to wish upon yourself a lot of unnecessary grief.

Table of Equivalents.

3 teaspoonfuls equal 1 tablespoonful.
16 tablespoonfuls equal 1 cupful.
2 cupfuls equal 1 pint.
4 cupfuls flour equal 1 pound.
2 cupfuls sugar equal 1 pound.
1 cupful butter equals ½ pound.

And now a dinner for tomorrow which must be planned around a fish dish, for tomorrow you know is Friday, the one day of the week when we plan and think it advisable to partake of food which is renowned for its brain stimulating qualities.

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Jellied Tomato Bouillon
Pepper, Shrimp en Casserole
Mashed Potatoes
Shredded String Beans
Lemon Sponge with Soft Custard Sauce
Iced Tea or Coffee

Jellied Tomato Bouillon.

Soak a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth cupful cold water and dissolve it in one-half cupful of boiling water. Strain the juice of a can of tomatoes through a cheesecloth bag and add to it one teaspoonful of sugar, pepper and salt to taste and one onion, grated. Simmer this mixture for ten minutes and strain again. Add while hot to the dissolved gelatin and set on ice to cool. Serve in cups garnished with chopped parsley.

Pepper, Shrimp en Casserole.

2 cupfuls thick white sauce
1 pound fresh shrimp
3 hard-cooked eggs (whites chopped, yolks riced)
1 teaspoonful onion juice
6 small green peppers
Salt and pepper to taste
Pimiento
Grated American cheese

Put the fresh shrimp in boiling salted water and simmer gently until the shells turn pink—about ten minutes. Wash, drain and remove the shell and dark veins. Wash, cut off stem ends and remove seeds from peppers. Parboil them in salted boiling water from five to ten minutes. Combine white sauce, shrimp, chopped egg whites, riced egg yolks, reserving some to sprinkle on top, onion juice and salt and pepper and stuff into the peppers. Sprinkle with riced egg yolk and grated cheese and lay strips of pimiento across top. Place peppers in casserole and bake in a moderate oven until cheese is melted and delicately browned.

White Sauce.

4 tablespoonfuls of butter
6 tablespoonfuls of flour
1 teaspoonful of salt
Dash of pepper
2 cupfuls of milk

Melt butter, add flour, salt and pepper and stir thoroughly until smooth. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly until it thickens.

Lemon Sponge.

1 tablespoonful gelatin
¼ cupful cold water
1 cupful boiling water
¾ cupful sugar
¼ cupful lemon juice
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve in the boiling water. Add the sugar, stirring until it is dissolved, and the lemon juice. Place in the refrigerator and when it begins to set beat with a rotary egg-beater until fluffy. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, to which the salt has been added. Continue to beat until stiff enough to hold its shape. Pile into sherbet glasses and place in the refrigerator to chill thoroughly. Serve with soft custard sauce.

Soft Custard Sauce.

1 pint milk—scalded
¼ cupful sugar
1 tablespoonful cornstarch
½ teaspoonful salt
2 egg yolks
½ teapsoonful vanilla

Mix together the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add the milk gradually, stirring all the time. Stir until thick and smooth. Place in a double boiler, cover and cook 20 minutes. Add to the slightly beaten egg yolks, return to the double boiler and cook one or two minutes. Strain, add the vanilla and chill.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me why my fig tree has had only five blossoms this spring. It is 3 years old and, while healthy, has never had any figs on it. Last season I transplanted it.

A CONSTANT READER.

A fig tree does not bear fruit until it is about 5 years old. Transplanting it may have checked its development. It will probably bear in the course of time. The fact that it has five blossoms shows it will bear a few figs this year. I had a friend who had a fig tree in a place where the climatic conditions were about the same as they are in your city, and after waiting ten years her tree bore profusely.

I was very much interested in an article I read last fall on dahlias. It said to keep feeding them and later on went on to say to give them fertilizer. What does feeding mean? Does it include rain and water?

MRS. LAURA E. W.

Feeding a plant means giving it some of the elements necessary for normal growth. There are three elements which every plant demands, namely, nitrogen, important for plant growth; phosphorus, which is said to hasten maturity and help in root development, and potassium, which contributes to the hardiness of plants and enables them to resist disease. Plants feed from the air as well as the soil, but we, of course, only feed them through the soil and through water. Dahlias require a mixed diet.

Please tell me whether it will harm a genista plant (kept in the pot all summer and well watered) if the pot is plunged in the border for the month of August.

MRS. JULIAN E. W.

No, plunging the pot is the proper way to care for a genista plant.

The vine of which I am inclosing a leaf is very thrifty but badly in need of pruning. Can I do it now or must I wait until late fall?

MRS. JOSEPH F. J.

You may prune an ampelopsis veitchii (Boston ivy) at any time.

Please tell me when to transplant Matilija poppies.

MRS. EVA A. D. H.

Spring is the best time to transplant these plants.

Will the sweet fern make a practical ground cover plant for planting on a rather high and very barren bank? MISS SADIE B.

Yes, but keep in mind the fact that it does not do well on limestone soils.

Last fall, according to your instructions, I planted some Japanese spurge. These plants are now doing very well, but they are rather thin and I think a trifle too tall. Could I nip the top out of each central shoot? When could I do this and will it tend to make the individual plant more bushy? MRS. GERALD F.

The second year the plants should be pinched back to increase their bushiness. You may do this at this time.

Will daily spraying with a hose be all the insecticide I need to keep down aphids which are beginning to attack my sweet peas? READER.

As a rule constant spraying with cold water will soon rid sweet peas of aphids. If, however, such treatment does not have the desired effect, use a nicotine spray.

My linden tree has some caterpillars on it. What shall I do?

FRANCIS F. A.

Remove and destroy all egg clusters and spray the entire tree with arsenate of lead, using 3 pounds to 50 gallons of water.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Formal evening wear is of the simplest, even though silken gloves may have an accordion pleated border to match one's hankie! (Dah-ray Selections.)

NEW YORK, June 8.—"And Pangloss sometimes said to Candide, 'All events are linked up in this best of all possible worlds, for, &c.'"

"'Tis well,' replied Candide. 'But we must cultivate our gardens.'"

And that, my dahr-lings, is just ex-actly what lovely ladies are doing the world over these days!

For apart from the esthetic release that attends a beautiful garden, the bending, twisting, sometimes even real shoveling, of gardening is a world of beautifying—to the gardener, let alone the garden!

How should one set about growing a garden? Well, firstly, one has to find a place to do it in. Then one makes a choice of the flowers one would like to have; and eliminates those that would not thrive in such a soil or temperature—which leaves really quite a lot of desired flowers that will grow. Then almost any soil, which can be treated with natural or chemical fertilizer, although this is not absolutely necessary, for flowers will produce flowers, with even less than an hour's attention a day, and of course, water.

Set aside all the plants that are difficult to grow, for the moment. Start with those that are easy to raise, and when you have found this and that out about gardening — and watched your own "flowers" of your hair, eyes and skin blossom forth from the exercise, attempt the more difficult ones.

Who would like a gardening frock and a few lovely lady gardening hints? We have world's of 'em up our sleeveless summer frocks—so if enough Dah-ray fans want them, all they have to do is say yes the next time they send for any kind of a leaflet—and we will give them to you.

* * * *

Whether for Sunday night snacks or after-the-theater "bite to eat at home" or for that luncheon and bridge—you should have one or a dozen of these bandanna handkerchief aprons that I have been raving about all week. You just know you're sick and tired of frilly, wispy useless "company" aprons. This bandanna apron—made out of two bandanna hankies for 5 or 10 cents and a half hour of your time—is chic, colorful, different and it covers so much of you and just where you want your good gowns covered, too. Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make it—quickly—they're going—going.

I told you earlier in the week how I loved the simple and yet subtly intricate things of today's mode. Simplicity, which started out about eight years ago, has grown up. Now simplicity means something as well fitting, as flattering, as elegant, as the evening jacket I sketched for you today. This can be of lame, satin, georgette, or velvet—any supple material, sometimes not even lined. And worn with the true inner loveliness and repose that makes for the success of today's "simplicity" in the mode.

Then the handerchief—a wisp of chiffon—oh, anything but merely picot around the edge. 'Tis accordion pleated around the edge, my dear—I mean the ruffle is—and who can't see the extravagance of the upkeep of that? Sh-h-h-h-h, if I were you—I would give it to the gentleman as a souvenir of the evening—with your very own and elusive perfume on it. Your gloves, matched with an accordion pleated taffeta ruffle on the edge, of course you can keep. But ah-h-h-h again—maybe the other gentleman would appreciate the accordion pleated chiffon flower? Hum. Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

A BAD HABIT.

WHEN a man speaks of sluggish liver he means sluggish colon. In more direct language, he means chronic constipation. The person referred to has a faulty bowel habit. This simply means that there is no impulse to empty the lower segment of the bowel, or that the impulse is not acted upon. In this mechanism no organ has any necessary part except the last foot or two of the bowel. The liver and the stomach, both of which organs are often charged with responsibility, are almost as disconnected with the bowel function as though they were located in other parts of the body.

The principal cause of constipation is indulgence in cathartics. This group of remedies has been slow to come under the ban. They still are found in every home medicine chest; papers that have excluded patent medicines from their advertising columns still admit cathartics; and persons take and give them with no thought of the ultimate harm they do. Not even babies escape. Popular opinion has been against the opium habit and the sleeping powder habit for a long time, but there are few crusaders against cathartics and the habit is quite general.

We have learned that we can depend on nature to take care of needs in almost every field except this one. The truth is that nature is just as dependable here as elsewhere. If a person has the constipation habit established there is a reasonably good chance that he can break it by the establishment of other habits.

The first essential is regularity. The time chosen should bear some relation to other habits. Many drink a glass of water as they finish dressing and then go to stool. Change from the prone to the upright position and from a quiet to an active state makes this an advantageous time to fix the habit. Others select some hour or time shortly after one or more meals.

When the stomach is digesting food its muscle is contracting and relaxing. This muscle movement, beginning in the stomach, tends to travel throughout the length of the digestive tract. Whatever time is set there must be no interruption of the habit. In addition, any impulse to have a bowel movement, whenever it occurs, must be acted on and not suppressed.

Diet is of service in overcoming constipation, though the diets that are of service to some harm others. Near the top of the usually serviceable foods are buttermilk and all forms of soured milk. A considerable quantity of lactose, or milk sugar, is of service. Fats are laxative. This applies to salad dressings, olive oil, fat meats and butter. To most persons fruits and vegetables are helpful.

The average person needs more wheat bran and other brans and other unbolted foods than the regular diet contains. The minority do better if their diet is softer and contains less roughage. Some get help from eating molasses, while to some other foods are laxative. Among the near foods which act partly by supplying volume and partly in other ways are agar, flaxseed and psyllium.

Many persons are constipated because they do not drink as much water as they should. Some find the best remedial method is to drink one or two glasses of water on arising. Many are served by using a glass of neutral salt solution instead of plain water. This is composed of seven grains of salt dissolved in one thousand drops, or grains, of water.

OLIVE OIL ON SCARS.

H. T. T. writes: Is there any way to remove a scar? I have heard that putting olive oil on would make it disappear.

REPLY.

Just putting olive oil on a scar, and thus removing it, would be magic. Gone, alas, are the days of magic.

Massaging a scar with olive oil mixed with patience and persistence will prove effective if the scar is not a bad one. Bad scars cannot be removed except by operation.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 10:10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:20 a. m. to 8:30 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

Turbulent influences will be in force on June 9, and it will be a trying, but not necessarily an unfortunate time. Everybody should take special precautions against accidents, as a relatively high proportion is shown. Those who have passed middle life should guard against intestinal complaints.

The child born on this June 9 will develop into a manly man or a womanly woman. There will be nothing spectacular in its make-up, but its character will not be colorless. It will be a resourceful worker, and it will not have to be reminded of its duties. It will be far more affectionate than it appears to be, and its loyalty will be a safe bet.

Born on June 9, nature started you out with a good equipment, and it was intended that you go far. You were not built to be a figurehead or a catspaw to rake the chestnuts for others. You are too vital and energetic to be a loiterer along the primrose paths of life. The mechanism of your mind is rather slow and heavy, and you go about your work in a methodical and industrious way, indicative of success and efficacy. You are cautious and prudent in the administration of your affairs. There is too little of the gambling spirit in you for you to ever land big fish. You progress slowly but steadily and build brick upon brick—your structures are made to last.

As a man, you would be a willing slave to the wants of your own family, your own unselfishness, thereby creating selfishness in your offspring. It is your desire to leave behind you a liberal competence for your dependents. You are not, however, soft and easy in your dealings with the outside world, and exact the last ounce of service or the last penny of money which is due you. You have few hobbies, and a retirement from an active life would leave you mentally and physically stranded. You will leave youth and romance behind you at an early age.

Successful people born on June 9: James Henry Darlington, bishop, head of U. S. Relief Fund to Serbia.

George Stephenson, builder of Rocket, pioneer railroad engine.

Sylvanus Thayer, "Father of U. S. Military Academy."

John Howard Payne, actor, author of "Home, Sweet Home."

Peter Henderson, horticulturist.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

To Use or Not to Use Soap on the Skin Is an Eternal Beauty Question.

THERE'S one beauty question that seems to puzzle more women, and puzzle them more than any others, and that is the question of whether or not to use soap on the skin. There are many types of soap. Soap for the body, bath soaps, shampoo soaps, household soaps and complexion soaps; but today we will confine ourselves to the study of the last, since there is more curiosity surrounding this type than the others.

Every once in so often an irate reader writes, "Why don't beauty authorities get together with themselves and settle the question once and for all—yes or no?"

And there's the rub. There is no definite "yes or no." Life and the soap question would be much too easy if we could tell the whole world in a single word to use or not to use soap and water for facial cleansing. So much depends upon the individual complexion and its reaction to the use of soap.

One of the loveliest ladies I know will tell you proudly that she hasn't washed her face in some ten years. And her skin is fine and delicate as a baby's. On the other hand, there are innumerable women who use soap to advantage every day of their lives. So there you are!

Dry Skin vs. Oily.

Some women have extremely dry, sensitive skins that feel as though they are being punished every time they are shampooed. This type had best stick to the cream for cleansing and use soap and water only occasionally if there is a feeling that you simply must use soap. Many women tell me they "don't feel clean" if they don't soap. Well, do it if it makes you feel better, but if the skin is dry or sensitive or easily irritated be sure to follow the soap treatment with a soothing and nourishing cream. Also be sure to avoid using soap and water just before or just after a trip outdoors.

The oily type of skin may use soap to its heart's content. The vary alkalinity in the soap extracts some of the excess oil and is therefore beneficial.

Application Is Important.

The type of soap you use and the way you apply it will determine the success of your soap treatment. Be sure to use a mild, bland soap, not a coarse, hard soap. For acne there are antiseptic soaps.

Now as to how to apply the soap. First moisten the skin with lukewarm water. Then work up a rich lather in the palms of the hands—do not apply the bar right to the face. Now mold the soap in upward and outward direction over face and neck, gently, as though you were caressing it with your favorite cream. Scrubbing the skin with harsh cloths, rubbing the skin this way and that and worst of all downward are some of the evils that have built the prejudice against soap. Next we come to the rinsing, which is the most important step of all. It is not the use of soap but the failure to rinse every particle that causes pores to become sluggish, clogged and enlarged. Rinse with warm water—plenty of it, again and again, then a final dash of cold.

Hard water is another reason for the war on soap—and this we will discuss tomorrow.

And in the meantime if you want to know more about soap that will save your skin, hair and hands—send self-addressed envelope for a new leaflet called "Soap Suds."

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

PERSONAL popularity gained through his radio station, KFNF, at Shenandoah, Iowa, is responsible for the race Henry Field gave United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart for the Republican senatorial nomination in the Iowa primary. Henry Field, largely through the instrumentality of radio, has developed his seeds mail-order house into a large general merchandise trade.

When Field began broadcasting in 1925 his gross sales were $900,000. In 1927 the gross sales leaped to $2,500,000. In less than eight months he is said to have sold more than $340,000 worth of automobile tires. In six months' he disposed of $50,000 worth of shoes.

Field was a pioneer of "direct selling," that is, mentioning the price of an article over the air. He developed into a popular broadcaster. Being a farmer himself, he knew the proper appeal to the agricultural audience "out where the tall corn grows." Field made his establishment a sort of community center, had week-end picnics and assemblies, listeners coming from several States to meet Field personally, look his plant over, and incidentally buy some goods. About 30,000 visitors came to a flower show he staged. A birthday celebration brought about 226,000 telegrams.

Henry Field is a native of Shenandoah, which has a population of only 5,000, and is 61 years old. He has eleven children—Frank, Faith, Hope, Philip, Jessie, Josephine, Mary, Ruth, Georgia, John Henry and Letty. He is tall, sallow, and has a large black moustache.

VERY pleasing were the piano numbers given by Greta von Bayer Tuesday evening over Station WMAL. As always, her interpretations were artistic and her playing clear, warm and vital.

Advance official information and greetings to the delegates and visitors who are to attend the two national political conventions in Chicago this month will be broadcast tonight (WRC, 10:15 o'clock) during a special preconvention program arranged by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Chicago committee in charge of all convention plans, and Niles Trammell, NBC vice president.

Speakers to be heard during the broadcast will include Hurley and Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago. All members of the Republican and Democratic national committees who are in Chicago at the time of the broadcast will be invited to the studios to watch the program.

The broadcast will also include a program of music and other entertainment, with Julius Tannen as master of ceremonies.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N. (M. C.), retired; Henry L. Doherty and Dr. Franklin H. Martin will speak during the broadcast over WRC at 1:30 p. m. of a special program under the auspices of the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine. The program is presented by the institute in connection with the annual high school essay contest on the subject of mosquitoes and their relation to health.

ALTHOUGH Amos 'n' Andy are just beginning to plan their imaginary vacations, Freeman Gosden (Amos) and Charles J. Correll (Andy) have been in Washington since Monday morning for a change of scenery. In between writing their air script, rehearsals and broadcasts they are visiting friends and going on fishing trips. They will remain until after their 10 o'clock broadcast Saturday night.

One thing is certain—President Hoover need have no fear that Amos 'n' Andy will embarrass him by giving out a presidential comment for publication as one well known radio star did a few weeks ago. They have not built their fame on that kind of a foundation. Amos 'n' Andy are the least press-agented of any of the great radio stars.

Speaking under the auspices of the national Democratic party, James M. Cox will talk on "The Grim Business of the Democratic National Convention" during the broadcast over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight. The music to be heard during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour will be Smith Ballew and his orchestra, from Valley Stream, Long Island, and Charles Agnew and his orchestra, from Chicago.

An arrangement for three pianos of Ethelbert Nevin's "Narcissus" will be played by Frank Black, Phil Ohman and Victor Arden, as one of the featured numbers on the Big Six of the air program at 8 p. m. Vocal and instrumental novelties by Lewis James, tenor; the Revelers, and Frank Black's orchestra complete the program.

NEW studios have been opened in the Washington Building by the World Broadcasting System, of New York, for use by members of Congress, officials of the Federal departments, speakers for the Republican and Democratic national committee, in making electrical transcriptions.

Continuing the musical tour of the world, German composers and their music will be featured during the broadcast of "Erno Rapee in Berlin" (WRC, 9:30 o'clock, tomorrow night).

Edwin Franko Goldman, jointly conducting his band and Nat Shilkret's Salon Orchestra, will offer one of his first summer concerts as guest of honor of the Kodak Hour tomorrow night (WMAL, 9 o'clock). The noted bandmaster will direct the massed members of both groups in Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," his own "On the Mall," and Ravel's "Bolero."

Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the Consolidated Gas Co., of New York, and of the Niagara Hudson Power Co., will be the principal speaker on the National Electric Light Association convention program tonight (WJZ network, 8 o'clock) direct from the auditorium in Atlantic City. Carlisle will speak on "The Light and Power Industry and the Public Welfare."

A VERSION of "Rip Van Winkle" will be presented by Ronald Dawson and the Northern Dramatic Company players over WOL at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night. Dawson will play the title role. * * * Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President of the United States, will speak over WMAL at 9:45 o'clock tomorrow night, discussing the question: "What Is the Matter With Congress—As a Socialist Sees It? * * * Donald Novis, well known Los Angeles radio tenor and winner of the 1928 Atwater Kent auditions, is in New York preparing for his Eastern radio debut. * * * Godfrey Ludlow, violinist, will inaugurate a new series, "The Strolling Fiddler," over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning * * * Episodes from the first passage of the Atlantic Ocean by steamboat will be dramatized during the Today and Yesterday program over WMAL tomorrow night. * * * Ray Knight, comedian, expects to be in the movies soon. He is negotiating at present to put Station KUKU on the screen and he also is working on a new series of animated cartoons. * * * B. A. Rolfe will lift the baton for his 1,200th broadcast tonight (WJZ, 7:30 o'clock.)

CAPACITY business is predicted for the Fox Theater tonight if all the friends of Stanley Bell, WMAL announcer, gather there to watch his stage appearance with Wesley Eddy.

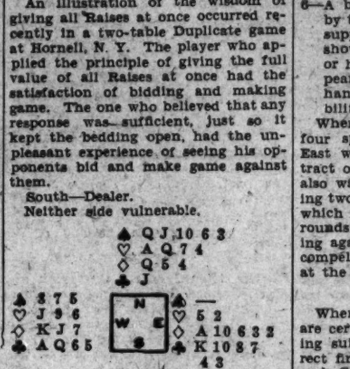
GIVE ALL RAISES AT ONCE.

IT is a fundamental principle of correct bidding at Contract that when your partner has opened the bidding and you have determined that the Opening bid is the best final contract, then all available Raises should be given at once. This holds true in every case except those instances when the possibility of a contract beyond game presents itself, in which cases, of course, the Responding Hand will have available a Forcing Takeout—that is, a Jump bid in another suit.

An illustration of the wisdom of giving all Raises at once occurred recently in a two-table Duplicate game at Hornell, N. Y. The player who applied the principle of giving the full value of all Raises at once had the satisfaction of bidding and making game. The one who believed that any response was sufficient, just so it kept the bedding open, had the unpleasant experience of seeing his opponents bid and make game against them.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



Correct Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	(1) 4♠	(2) Pass
Pass	Pass

1—While West holds 2½ honor-tricks, the barren distribution of the hand and the fact that an Overcall must be made in a four-card suit at the range of two suggest the unwisdom of aggressive action.

2—North holds more than 6 tricks in support of partner's Opening bid. Therefore the Raise to game is clearly indicated.

The Incorrect Bidding.

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♠ (1)	3◇ (2)
Pass (3)	4◇ (4)	4♠ (5)	5◇ (6)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A violent case of underbidding.
2—While the hand contains only 1½ honor-tricks, the freakish distribution of the cards justifies the bid.
3—South has no Rebid if partner has only a single Raise.
4—West feels that support for his partner's hand should be given, holding, as he does, at least 8 tricks in support of his partner's Overcall. At least the foundation is laid for a bidding defense against an opposing game contract.
5—Too late.
6—A bold bid, but possibly justified by the knowledge that partner can support the diamonds. This must show, on the bidding, either club or heart tricks. While the bid appears sure to be penalized, East's hand suggests the strong probability of game for the opponents.

Where the contract was four spades, four spades were made, and where East was permitted to reach a contract of five diamonds, that contract also was realized, the only losers being two hearts, as a spade was opened, which East ruffed, then took three rounds of trumps, successfully finessing against North's Queen, but being compelled to surrender 2 heart tricks at the end.

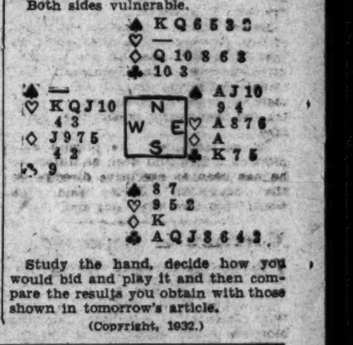
TODAY'S POINTER.

When your hand is such that you are certain that your partner's Opening suit or notrump bid is the correct final declaration, and that game and not Slam is the objective, the proper course is to give the full Raises at once.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

East—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

SHOUSE REITERATES SESSION POST PACT

Roosevelt Dictated Pledge to Make Him Convention Head, Kansan Repeats.

(Associated Press.)

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, yesterday reiterated that he had in his possession a statement dictated by Gov. Roosevelt of New York to Robert Jackson, of New Hampshire, agreeing to Mr. Shouse's selection as permanent chairman of the party's national committee.

After Mr. Shouse, on Tuesday, had told newspapermen of the paper as an aftermath of a decision of Roosevelt leaders to seek approval of Senator Walsh, of Montana, for the post, Mr. Jackson denied he had given the executive chairman such a document.

Mr. Shouse in his reply yesterday said:

"I told of the fact that a conference of some of Gov. Roosevelt's friends with me was arranged at the instance of Mr. Jackson; that Gov. Harry F. Byrd, at my request, was present at that conference April 4; that Gov. Byrd made the suggestion that Senator Barkley be recommended by unanimous vote for temporary chairman of the convention, if I were recommended similarly for permanent chairman of the convention. This proposal was enthusiastically welcomed by the friends of Gov. Roosevelt who were present, but I withheld assent until it had been discussed with Mr. Farley in person and with Gov. Roosevelt by telephone.

Quotes Jackson's Words.

"I stated, 'I have in my possession a statement that Gov. Roosevelt dictated over the telephone to Mr. Jackson, in which he consented to the plan.' * * *

"This document written in Mr. Jackson's handwriting, is as follows: 'Resolved, That the committee on arrangements commends to the permanent committee on organization of the Democratic national convention for consideration as permanent chairman of the convention the name of Hon. Jouett Shouse, of Kansas.'

"This resolution was submitted to me and approved by me before its presentation to the committee. According to Mr. Jackson's statement at the time, and according to Gov. Byrd and others who were present in the room in Chicago when the telephone conversation took place with Gov. Roosevelt, it was dictated by Gov. Roosevelt, was taken down verbatim by Mr. Jackson and was reread to the governor when completed."

Curley Attacks Shouse.

Mayor James Curley of Boston said yesterday the move to prevent Shouse from becoming permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention was, in his opinion, forced by Shouse's "unfair attitude" toward Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mayor Curley, a vigorous supporter of Gov. Roosevelt, told newspapermen that Shouse had used his post as executive director of the Democratic national committee to aid the movement to keep Roosevelt from becoming the Democratic presidential nominee.

"If he had been the private employe of a firm and been as unfair as he has been as executive director of the committee," Curley said, "he would have been fired long ago."

Morrison Is Reported Planning to Ask Run-Off

Charlotte, N. C., June 8 (A.P.).—With friends of Senator Cameron Morrison announcing that he will demand a run-off primary for the Democratic United States Senate nomination against Robert R. Reynolds, leader in Saturday's balloting, North Carolina today appeared headed for the most bitter battle over prohibition in 25 years.

Reynolds, who is seeking the nomination on a prohibition-repeal platform, announced that former Judge Thomas C. Bowie, of West Jefferson, and Frank D. Grist, State commissioner of labor, would actively support him should Morrison demand a second primary. Reynolds polled some 150,000 votes, while Morrison received 138,000.

"Busiest" Republican Is Off for Convention

Pittsburgh, June 8 (A.P.).—The man who within the next few days probably will become the busiest figure in the Republican national convention, hustled aboard a Chicago-bound train tonight.

He is James Francis Burke, dynamic, white-haired little lawyer, orator and parliamentarian. Here are a few of the major posts he'll fill:

General counsel for the Republican national committee.

Parliamentarian of the convention.

Member of the national executive committee.

Member of the special arrangements committee.

Delegate-at-large.

And he may become a member of the resolutions committee, fellow members of the Pennsylvania delegation said tonight.

LEADERS OF G. O. P. GATHER IN CHICAGO

Virginia District Contest One of Several to Precede Convention.

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—"Welcome G. O. P." signs on red, white and blue streamers were unfurled in Chicago's hotel lobbies for the first time today as leaders from nearly every State and some of the Territories arrived for the opening preliminaries of the Republican national convention.

Tomorrow afternoon rival State and district delegates from six Southern Commonwealths will appear before the party's national committee to contest for the official recognition that will entitle them temporarily to seats in the big West Side stadium where both Republican and Democratic conventions will be held, the first starting next Tuesday.

Little general interest was manifested in the contests, the buzz of conversation in the hotel lobbies and corridors centering primarily on the two questions:

"What will be done about prohibition?" and "who is going to be the new party chairman?"

Unlike the 1928 contests, when some anti-Hooverism was involved, this year's controversies over convention seats will have no bearing on the expected renominations of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis. They arise largely over Mr. Hoover's efforts, just after his inauguration, to "purify" the Republican party in the South by setting up new patronage committees. The rival groups in each instance are for Hoover, but are vying for State party control.

The principal contests will be those from South Carolina and Mississippi.

Contests from the Third District of Virginia and the First and Ninth districts of Tennessee also will be heard.

The association will close its convention tomorrow.

Brookhart Is Trailing Field by 50,000 Votes

Des Moines, Iowa, June 8 (A.P.).—Returns from all but 33 precincts in the State for senator in the Republican primary gave Field 191,148, Brookhart 141,574, while 2,040 precincts in the Democratic senatorial primary gave Murphy 47,832, Steck 28,014.

National Grocers Back Repeal of Prohibition

St. Louis, June 8 (A.P.).—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment was advocated today in a resolution adopted by the National Association of Retail Grocers, over the protest of a minority of delegates, most of them from small towns.

WETS LEADING FIELD IN FLORIDA PRIMARY

Ruth Bryan Owen Far Behind Wilcox, Repeal Advocate; Roosevelt Wins.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 8 (A.P.).—Candidates advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment or a referendum on the prohibition issue led the field in the four congressional contests of yesterday's Democratic primary that gave Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, an overwhelming preferential vote for the presidential nomination.

Mark Wilcox, West Palm Beach lawyer, who ran against Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late dry crusader, William Jennings Bryan, on a platform for repeal, was 4,931 votes ahead on the basis of returns from 301 of the Fourth Fourth District's 419 precincts. The count showed.

showed Wilcox, 31,894; Mrs. Owen, 26,963.

Other Wets in Lead.

Jacksonville's mayor, John T. Alsop, jr., a wet who advocates a referendum, and W. J. Sears, who voted dry while he represented the Fourth District for many years in Congress, but is for referendum now, were the leading candidates in the contest for representative-at-large and appeared certain to enter a second primary together.

Votes counted from 641 of the State's 1,283 precincts showed:

Sears, 21,916; Alsop, 20,316; W. D. Bell, prohibition advocate, 11,520; Lester Jennings, referendum champion, 8,635, and Asher Frank, also favoring a referendum, 4,346.

Representative Tom Yon, of the Third District, a strict advocate of prohibition, lagged behind Millard Caldwell, who favors a referendum. The count from 180 of the district's 283 precincts gave Caldwell, 8,743; Yon, 8,491, and R. G. Patterson, a referendum champion, 4,618.

Changed Rum Stand Wins.

Representative Herbert J. Drane, who has voted dry consistently but promised to cast his ballot for a referendum if returned to Congress, had more than 4,000 majority over his nearest opponent in the First Congressional District race.

The vote from 196 of 373 precincts was Drane, 14,391; Sumter L. Lowry, sr., 5,149, and J. Hardin Peterson, 10,092. Lowry and Peterson both advocated referendum.

On the basis of returns from 739 precincts, former Gov. John W. Martin led with 32,577 in the race for governor. His nearest opponent, Cary A. Hardee, also a former governor, had 26,827, and Dave Sholtz, Daytona Beach, was third with 24,947.

Gov. Roosevelt was opposed by Gov. W. H. Murray and L. J. Chassee, of Milwaukee, Wis., but they received very meager votes.

Foes of La Follette Forces Are Chosen

Wisconsin G. O. P. Conservatives' Leaders Selected for Primary Race.

Madison, Wis., June 8 (A.P.).—John B. Chapple, 34-year-old editor, and Walter J. Kohler, former governor, were today named by the State convention of conservative Republicans to head their forces in the battle with the La Follette progressive faction in the September primary.

Chapple, militant foe of La Follette, will oppose one of the heaviest vote-getters the progressive group has produced, Senator John J. Blaine, for the Republican nomination for senator. This nomination in this usually Republican State is generally equivalent to election.

Kohler, millionaire manufacturer, who was defeated by Gov. Phil F. La Follette two years ago, will return to the political lists against the son of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette as a gubernatorial candidate.

Garner's Offices Opened in Chicago

Headquarters at Sherman Hotel; Modest Manager Keeps Name Secret.

Chicago, June 8 (U.P.).—Speaker John Nance Garner today entered the Democratic convention free-for-all before it began by establishing elaborate campaign headquarters in the Sherman Hotel.

Garner put in charge a soft-voiced Texan, so modest that he wouldn't let his name be used, thus proving himself unique in the annals of campaign managers.

The modest Texan, who migrated from Fort Worth to New York, where he is vice president of one of America's big transportation companies, said he believed Garner had an excellent chance of becoming the Democratic presidential candidate if the "stop Roosevelt" movement gains headway during the balloting at the Chicago Stadium the last of this month.

New Jersey Vote Set On Dry Law Repeal

Trenton, N. J., June 8 (A.P.).—A measure to provide a State-wide referendum on repeal of the State prohibition enforcement act was approved today by the Legislature.

Acting under suspension of rules, the Assembly and the Senate passed the measure with little opposition. If the voters approve repeal in November it would become effective on December 1.

M'ADOO URGES VOTE OF PEOPLE ON RUM

Declares Special National Election Should Settle Prohibition Issue.

Los Angeles, June 8 (A.P.).—William G. McAdoo declared tonight for a vote of the people in a special national election to settle the question of prohibition.

The former Secretary of the Treasury suggested a national referendum by which a direct vote of the people could be had upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment or upon whether it should be amended to give Congress the power to regulate or to prohibit the liquor traffic.

"The people themselves," he said, "should be given the opportunity to vote through a national referendum, authorized by act of Congress.

"Suppose that a special session were called by the new President shortly after his inauguration March 4, 1933, and that the President was empowered to proclaim a national advisory referendum, after 90 days' notice, upon such question as the following:

"'Shall the eighteenth amendment be repealed? Vote "yes" or "no."'

"Or:

"'Shall the eighteenth amendment be amended to empower Congress to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic? Vote "yes" or "no."'

He suggested any other means such as resubmission, repeal or modification would take years to accomplish.

ROOSEVELT URGES QUICK REPEAL STEP

Reaffirms 1930 Stand for Return of Liquor Control to States.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

New York, June 8.—In a vigorous call for "action" on the prohibition question, Gov. Roosevelt tonight said there had been too much delay and debate, and expressed confidence the Democratic platform would "clearly indicate" a method of repealing the eighteenth amendment.

The governor, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, also declared he was confident that "in the next Congress practical machinery will be put into actual effect."

In answer to questions submitted to him at Albany by telephone, Roosevelt firmly stated his stand on prohibition had not changed since 1930, when he came out for "elimination" of the "force and effect of the eighteenth amendment" by a new constitutional amendment.

He pointed out the following paragraphs in a letter he wrote to United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, at that time, one of which said:

"The crux of the matter is that the eighteenth amendment has not furthered the cause of a greater temperance in our population, but, on the other hand (quoting from language used in a resolution adopted by the American Legion), it has 'fostered excessive drinking of strong intoxicants' and has 'led to corruption and hypocrisy,' has brought about 'disregard for law and order,' and has 'flooded the country with untaxed and illicit liquor.'

"I personally share this opinion."

HOOVER WET PLANK STAND HAS NOT BEEN DETERMINED

prohibition question should again be submitted to the voters; but leaving the method of submitting it, as well as any alternative to the eighteenth amendment, up to the Congress.

Drys Concede Defeat.

The significant thing right now is that the drys have made up their minds that President Hoover has gone over to the resubmissionists in the Republican party. The White House can make all the statements it chooses about the President having taken no position, but until they hear something specifically to the contrary, the drys are going to proceed on the theory that the Chief Executive favors resubmission.

Holding this conviction, some of the drys in the party do not like the way President Hoover is handling himself in the controversy. They suspect that he is determined to remain silent until the convention acts and then accept the prohibition plank that is adopted. As they see it, the convention will be simply a rubber stamp convention, dominated by the President and forced to do his bidding. Therefore, these drys, convinced that the prohibition plank that is adopted will be a Hoover plank, resent attempts to make it appear that the President has adopted the old Boss Murphy slogan of "let the convention decide."

Position Taken by Wets.

The wets also are doing a lot of growling, but the truth is that they have made more headway than they ever dreamed they would make a year ago. The least the convention will do, as they see it, is to adopt a plain resubmission plank, and that, they believe, will give them an "out" with the voters. Of course this doesn't mean that they won't fight for something damper.

When Postmaster General Walter Brown said that the plank finally adopted would be one to which "all may subscribe," he must have had in mind a plain resubmission declaration. Technically, perhaps, it might be argued that this kind of a plank is neither wet nor dry; that it simply is designed to give the people a chance to assert a constitutional right.

But as the drys see it, resubmission means only one thing—a move in the direction of repeal. Their argument is that of Senator William E. Borah, dry Republican, of Idaho, who insists that inasmuch as only Congress can initiate a change in the Constitution, such things should be left to Congress, and no attempt should be made by a national convention to pledge dry as well as wet senators and representatives on a constitutional proposition.

Dartmouth Professor's Dry Stand Put in Record

(Associated Press.)

A letter from a Dartmouth College professor favoring prohibition was put into the Congressional Record yesterday by Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, coauthor of the eighteenth amendment. It was inserted as an answer to a recent letter of President Hopkins, of the college, urging repeal, which was placed in the Record by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, antiprohibitionist.

The reply was a letter from Dr. Gordon Ferrie Hull and in presenting it Sheppard referred to the Hopkins letter and asked that Hull's also be printed.

Hull's letter said:

"It is my opinion that you have vastly overemphasized the evil effect of prohibition without presenting its virtues; that you have proposed no constructive policies; that you have failed to face the problem of alcohol; that you have neglected to point out that those who purchase liquor, if your charge be true, are those who 'provide a subsidy for the underworld by which criminals are being given unprecedented power and by which viciousness is being increasingly protected.'

"You express a great concern for the next generation, but it is the present generation, the young men and women of today, who presumably are looking to us for guidance. If we bring before them the clear reasons for the world-wide and age-long fight against alcohol, the next generation, though less in need of better guides, will find plenty available."

NEW POLICE OFFICE IS CREATED BY BOARD

Commissioner J. B. Diamond Is Named to Post in Montgomery.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post,
9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Commissioner John B. Diamond, of Gaithersburg, has been assigned as commissioner in charge of the Montgomery County police by the Montgomery County Commissioners. He assumed his new duties yesterday.

Commissioner Diamond's duties will include coordination of police activities and active supervision of all expenditures of the department. Through Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley, he will supervise the work of the department.

All requests for new uniforms, equipment or other expenditures will be subject to approval by the police commissioner before purchase is made, with the exception of gasoline, oil and minor repairs, which will continue within the jurisdiction of the sergeants in command of substations.

Commissioner Diamond is believed to be exceptionally capable for the new office, which, however, carries no additional compensation beyond his salary as a county commissioner. The appointment will result in even greater efficiency for the county police force, officials believe.

The joyous atmosphere of the graduation exercises at Fairland High School at St. Mark's parish hall were tinged with regret that the high school is to end its existence. It is to be consolidated with Takoma-Silver Spring High School in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Thomas L. Dawson, well-known attorney of Rockville, made the address to the graduates. Diplomas were presented by George Davis, of the board of education, and honors were announced by A. C. Bready, principal. The invocation was by the Rev. Reginald Hall and the benediction by the Rev. Melvin Lederer. Those who received diplomas were Sylvia Ellin, Grace Robey, Marie Williams, Kathleen Patton and Beulah Edwards.

The Rev. Joseph B. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, addressed the graduates at Poolesville High School. William H. McCeney, member of the board of education, presented diplomas to Harry Dunbar Darby, Edwin Deller Crult, Richard Brooks Sellman, Hazel Margaret Wood, Mamie Hubble, Evelyn Viola Cubitt and Claire Elizabeth Norris.

Montgomery County Policeman Charles Barnes, of the Silver Spring substation, was praised for his "efficient and gentlemanly manner" in aiding Mrs. Frank G. Stewart, whose car had been disabled, in a letter from her husband, Frank G. Stewart, 1319 Floral street northwest, to the chief of police of Montgomery County.

Units of the Service Company, Maryland National Guard, of Silver Spring, will engage in a sham battle July 9, it was announced yesterday. The units will be commanded by First Lieut. Joseph A. Glover and Second Lieut. William E. Warfield.

The two sections will travel under sealed orders to a point about four miles from the armory at Silver Spring, where they will contact and engage in sham battle. Capt. Ward W. Caddington and First Lieut. Louis V. Kreh will act as judges. The guardsmen will encamp for the night after the battle.

Five members of the company qualified on the rifle range at Camp Albert C. Ritchie Sunday as follows: Capt. Caddington, rifle expert, with a score of 225; Sergt. Merle Pinchum, Corpl. Malcolm Glover and Private Charles Peter, sharpshooters; Private James L. Houseknecht, marksman.

Takoma Park Firemen Plan Member Drive

Plans for an intensive membership campaign which has as its object the enlistment of every citizen of the town were discussed last night by the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department at its regular monthly meeting in the firehouse. It is hoped to raise funds sufficient to purchase a new 750 gallon American-La France pumper engine to replace the smaller engine now in use.

The department approved the report of the committee which reported favorably on purchase of the engine at $12,500. Chief Leo Moffett, Steve La Scola, Theodore Raines, John Pope and Dewey Hayes were the committee. The purchase now will be discussed by the executive committee before any definite action is taken. In the meantime, the firemen are sharpening their pencils for membership.

Charity Permit Law Facing Test in Court

Legality of Mount Rainier's ordinance requiring charitable organizations from without the community to secure a permit before soliciting funds is to be tested tomorrow night before Justice of the Peace Robert E. Joyce. A member of the Volunteers of America has been arrested through arrangement as a test case.

The Volunteers recently were denied a permit by the town council on the grounds that the organization performed no direct aid for Mount Rainier. Attorney Charles B. Calvert will represent the Volunteers, while Corporation Counsel Bird H. Dolby will appear for the town.

PARK GROUP TO ACT ON FIREWORKS SALE

Maryland Body Will Consider Prince Georges Ruling at Session Tonight.

The Maryland Park and Planning Commission will meet tonight to decide whether it will back up the stand taken by the Prince Georges County commissioners against the erection of temporary fireworks stands.

Irving C. Root, engineer of the commission, met with the county commissioners Tuesday and received their assurances that they would not issue permits for any temporary stands. Mr. Root said that the matter would be taken up by the park and planning body at tonight's meeting. The ruling of the county board does not prohibit the building of stands outside the sanitary district limits, the commissoners assured a representative of the Forestville Fire Department who appeared to ask permission to sell fireworks at the firehouse.

Mr. Root appeared before the board to present an application for a sheet metal stand on the Baltimore boulevard in Colmar Manor, made by Joseph Gilbert. The commissioners, recalling that they had already turned down an application from Beaver Heights, said that this one would also be refused when presented.

Action by either the board of commissioners or the Park and Planning Commission would be sufficient to bar stands in the metropolitan area. The Park Commission is charged with the enforcement of the zoning laws, which prohibit commercial buildings except in commercial zones. The commissioners issue building permits for all structures in the metropolitan area.

The fireworks stands were a bone of contention last summer, when several volunteer fire companies disobeyed an edict against them. However, no police action was taken against the violators. They have been the object of protests for several years.

COBLENTZ WITNESS DENIES STATE CLAIM

Michael Refutes Testimony $94,000 Note Was Not Among Liabilities.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 8.—Grover L. Michael, vice president in charge of the trust department and auditor of Central Trust Co., Frederick, was on the stand this afternoon for the defense at the trial of Emory L. Coblentz, president of the bank, charged with accepting a deposit when he knew the bank was insolvent. Cross-examination of Michael will begin when the court resumes tomorrow morning.

Michael was questioned as to the history of the Central Securities Co. and the Blue Ridge Securities Co., two of the investment groups organized by officials of the Central Bank. The witness said their organization followed an audit made by a nationally known auditing company in July or August, 1925. The audit was to ascertain the status of the bank for the purpose of protecting the purchaser of capital stock, to learn its liquid assets, slow-moving securities and those of long maturity. The Hambleton Co., of Baltimore, indicated its willingness to buy 50,000 shares and the audit was made at its request. It afterward bought the shares and paid in cash. Michael said it was planned to set up the new corporations to deal in securities.

Michael described the bonds issued in connection with the purchase of the Pittsburgh Insurance Exchange Building and the Braddock Hotel lot at Braddock Heights. Michael refuted the testimony that had been adduced by the State that a $94,000 note was not among the liabilities of the Guarantors Investment Co. account or that 150 shares of Potomac-Edison Co. stock, owned by the bank, was not at the bank.

Michael told of a committee of the board of directors of Central Trust Co. going to Washington to inspect the real estate holdings of the company. Michael said he did not know of any obligation of the bank that it had not met up to the time it closed and that he had no idea it would close until it actually did. He had never heard of the bank's failing to meet its acknowledged obligations, he said.

Abraham Hemp, Frederick, a director of the closed bank, testified that committees appointed by the bank to look into investments in Washington at intervals made visits to that city and reported back. This started when the loans began six or eight years ago.

SCARED BONDSMEN ACCUSED BY CURTIS

Shipbuilder Willing to Stay in Jail Till Trial; Bill Tracing Futile.

Flemington, N. J., June 8 (A.P.).—An assertion that ten bonding companies refused to furnish his bail because they were "afraid" was made tonight by John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, awaiting trial on a charge of misdirecting the Lindbergh baby search.

In his first public statement since he was incarcerated on May 18, Curtis declared the only reason he did not post bond was that he could not get it. He denied he himself was "afraid of anyone."

He is reconciled to remaining in jail until his trial, he said. The trial was set for June 27, but indications tonight were that it would be put over until September.

In commenting on what he called the "mighty harsh things" which have been said about him, Curtis said he could have answered on a number of occasions, but kept silent because "I do not at this time desire to get into any argument with anyone."

Under the circumstances, he observed, some of the "harsh things" might have been "justifiable."

The Daily News says any hope of tracing the slayers of the Lindbergh baby by means of the serial numbers of the $50,000 ransom paid by Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon has been dissipated.

W. A. Gilbart, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, is quoted as saying he believed all the money probably has been passed by the persons who received it.

"It is an easy matter," the paper quotes him as saying, "to change the serial numbers, inasmuch as they are not engraved, but merely printed upon the bills.

"Too, I doubt very much that the average bank clerk or teller has had the time or the inclination to look for the ransom bills since the first hue and cry died down."

Japanese Heiress Bride of American

Engineer's Bride Inherited $500,000 Estate of Foster Father.

Haverford, Pa., June 8 (A.P.).—Miss Fuji Hashimoto Hale Adamson, a daughter of Japanese parents and heiress to the fortune of a Philadelphia manufacturer, was married today to Henry L. Stephens, an engineer of Brooklyn and this city.

The couple motored to Elkton, Md., with a few relatives of Stephens and friends of both, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward T. Minor, a retired minister. The bride, who is 20 years old, inherited the estate of her foster-father, William Baeder Adamson, glue manufacturer, who died in April, 1931. He was a childless widower.

She is the daughter of a Japanese gardener and maid, who were employed by Adamson at the time of her birth. When she was an infant she became the manufacturer's ward and when she was 4 years old her parents returned to Japan. A year before Adamson's death she was legally adopted by him. At that time her father had died and her mother gave consent to the adoption. The estate she inherited was about $500,000.

Germany's Unemployed Decrease.

Berlin, June 8 (A.).—Germany's unemployed totaled 5,583,000 at the end of May, a decrease of 92,000 in two weeks.

Indians of Panama Revolt Against Election of Arias

Colon, Panama, June 8 (A.P.).—The San Blas Indians of Northern Panama were reported today to have started an insurrection because they are dissatisfied with the election of Harmodio Arias as President.

Ten boatloads of Indians carrying banners and the tule (San Blas) national flag, were reported to be attacking island residents along the northern Panaman coast, and the Governor of Colon State has recommended sending a contingent of police immediately.

Several tribes of Indians, reportedly led by one Nela Cantule, have declared their intention of separating into an independent nation. The Indians have announced their decision to burn all the islands "which voted for Harmodio Arias."

The islanders immediately appealed for government intervention, and to their request was added the recommendations of the Governor of Colon, in whose state the uprising has occurred.

The authorities in charge of the San Blas Indians, however, said they could cope with the situation.

Officials of the Panama government were not inclined to attribute any importance to the reported uprising pending further reports, but the Governor of Colon Province was authorized to act as he deemed best in handling any emergency.

The only means of communication between the islands and the mainland is by canoes. There is not even radio communication.

It was generally believed that an Indian group which supported the renovation Liberals' candidate, Francisco Arias Paredes, were unwilling to conceded the victory of his opponent.

Francisco Arias Parades polled the most votes in the area controlled by the revolting tribe, although he was defeated elsewhere by Harmodio Arias, the successful candidate, who was backed by the doctrinary Liberals.

Officials said they believed that if the menace had increased tonight other messengers would have arrived from the islands.

6. That the mayor used his office to procure this award (to the Equitable Coach Co.) in furtherance of a plan to benefit his "friend and associate," Senator John A. Hastings.

7. That the mayor was involved in a stock transaction in which the Equitable Coach Co. backers were interested.

8. That the mayor accepted a $10,000 letter of credit paid for in cash by backers of the Equitable Coach Co. and its promoters.

9. That Walker accepted "from time to time," substantial gratuities "which he calls 'beneficiences' from persons who might seek benefits from the municipal authorities."

10. That during the period of five years after he entered office, "Mayor Walker, for the purpose of concealing his interest therein, caused his financial transactions" to be conducted through and in the name of Russell T. Sherwood; that this agent during said period deposited in bank and brokerage accounts close to $1,000,000, of which upwards of $700,000 was in cash, and that the mayor has failed and refused satisfactorily to explain the sources of the moneys belonging to him and deposited by Sherwood in said accounts."

14. That the mayor "neglected his official duty in permitting his corporation counsel to designate, in city compensation cases, doctors who split their fees with the mayor's brother."

Seabury then said, in his letter, that he had "no request or petition to make" in reference to this matter, and that his only desire was that it should be dealt with "solely on its merits and regardless of any other circumstance."

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker will answer the points raised in Samuel Seabury's communication to Gov. Roosevelt "in due time," it was said on his behalf tonight.

ANNAPOLIS PASTOR REBUKED BY CHURCH

Rev. J. T. Herson Admits "Indiscretions" After Trial at Frederick.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 8.—Charges of "imprudent and unministerial conduct" against the Rev. Joseph T. Herson, suspended pastor of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, Annapolis, were dropped tonight when the 148th annual session of the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church agreed to accept his signed statement admitting "indiscretions."

Dr. Herson's trial featured the opening session of the conference, attended by delegates from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Both Dr. and Mrs. Herson were present.

Charges against Dr. Herson were preferred by the Rev. Vernon N. Ridgely, superintendent of the Western Baltimore district of the Baltimore conference, and the Rev. J. E. Kemp Horn, pastor of Howard Park Methodist Episcopal Church, of Baltimore. At the time charges were filed, Dr. Herson was pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore.

Abandons Libel Suits.

On February 3 Dr. Herson was suspended from ministerial services by a committee of preliminary investigation. He had meanwhile been transferred to Calvary Church at Annapolis and members of his congregation refused to recognize the suspension.

The trial, held in executive session, consumed the entire day. In his statement Dr. Herson agreed to withdraw two $100,000 libel suits he had filed in Baltimore courts against Dr. Ridgely and Dr. Horn.

In filing his suits, Dr. Herson recited the alleged libels against him, naming three women alleged to have been involved in the case. Dr. Ridgely and Dr. Horn denied they acted with any malice or prejudice against Dr. Herson.

Bishop Gives Rebuke.

"While not pleading guilty to what is known as immorality," Dr. Herson declared in his statement, "I am ready to confess to indiscretions that have proved embarrassing to myself and to the church and I express my sorrow therefor."

Dr. Herson said he would pledge himself to avoid all actions that are "calculated to put my ministry at a disadvantage" and promised to observe the decisions of the tribunals of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

After the charges against Dr. Herson were dropped, he was rebuked by Bishop Edwin B. Hughes, of the Washington area.

YEGGS ARE BLAMED FOR FATAL OHIO FIRE

Toll of Blast in Cleveland Is Now Ten, With Seven Still Missing.

Cleveland, June 8 (A.P.).—As the known death toll of the Ellington apartments fire mounted to ten tonight, Safety Director Frank J. Merrick announced that there was evidence in the blackened ruins to indicate the holocaust was caused by amateur safe crackers.

Three residents of the building were still missing and four others unaccounted for as police and firemen dug into the ruins of the six-story building to find indications that the safe of the Cleveland Savings & Loan Co., housed in the building, had been tampered with. Merrick expressed belief that an attempt to blast open the safe with nitroglycerin may have been made.

Working crews continued through the night removing the tons of debris and twisted steel in the hopes of learning the fate of those still unaccounted for. Only about one-fifth of the debris had been cleared away tonight, nearly 48 hours after 150 persons were forced to flee the inferno in night attire.

Three bodies found late today lay almost side by side. An opened prayer book, badly charred, and a crucifix lay with them.

The list of dead:

Mrs. Anna Mitchell, 70.

W. C. Werner, 68.

A body identified both as Virginia Stokes and Cora Stokes, her sister.

Two unidentified men.

One unidentified woman.

Three bodies so badly burned their sex could not be determined.

Rescue of Volcano Bodies Is Deferred

Cables to Allow Descent Into Firepit Must Be Tightened.

Hilo, Hawaii, June 8 (A.P.).—Improper functioning of cables stretched across Halemaumau, firepit of Kilauea volcano, today delayed the descent of R. Kunishi, Japanese contractor, into the pit in an attempt to recover the bodies of Sylvester Nunes and Margaret Enos.

Additional tractors were brought into use to stretch the rigging. When the apparatus is finally ready it will be tested under the direction of E. P. Leavitt, superintendent of Hawaii National Park.

Kunishi will then don a gas mask and descend into the pit for the bodies, which have laid on a projection 900 feet down since last Thursday. Nunes shot his 17-year-old sweetheart and jumped into the volcano with her because she refused to marry him.

"Aim Is Only 10% of Billiards"

"True aim is only the starting point of a billiard champion," says the wizard of 18.2 balkline. "Eye—to guide that aim; nerves—to keep it steady under stress; touch and timing—to control it; endurance—to combat fatigue; and above all, a chess brain—to see ahead and plan accordingly; all these are equally essential. FORCED LOAN FACES PRUSSIA'S WORKERS

Salaries Cut and New Taxes Levied in Try to Balance State's Budget.

Berlin, June 8 (A.P.).—The Prussian government imposed a levy on Prussian civil servants of 2½ per cent of their salaries in the form of a forced loan today in an effort to balance the state's budget.

The levy was imposed by emergency decree while reports persisted that Chancellor Franz von Papen planned to place a dictator over Prussia. The reports were officially denied.

In an attempt to cover an estimated deficit in Prussia, the Prussian government also imposed a tax on cattle for slaughter from which it hoped to raise 90,000,000 marks (approximately $21,250,000).

A hope among Rightists that the federal government would intervene in Prussia was based partly on the financial situation in that state, which brought about today's measures.

A declaration by Von Papen that the Reich would not pay 100,000,000 marks now due Prussia for realty transfers brought the estimated Prussian deficit to 150,000,000 marks, the other 50,000,000 being represented by an estimated deficiency in the State's revenues.

Unmarried civil servants were required to give up 5 per cent of their salaries and the heads of families 3½ per cent in the forced loan. The loan is repayable to them in monthly installments beginning July 1, 1937.

Meanwhile the National Socialist party of Adolf Hitler planned to drive ahead in the coming Reichstag elections expected to be called for July 31. Gregor Strasser, the party's propagandist, coined a slogan, which is: "Our striking force must be so perfected that no power on earth can keep victory from us."

3 Colored Schools Hold Drills Today

Cadets of Cardozo, Dunbar and Armstrong to March at Stadium.

Indications from both Armstrong and Dunbar High Schools point to a real contest today at Griffith Stadium, with Cardozo High School also a factor, when eleven companies of the Ninth Brigade of colored cadets take the field in competition for the teachers' diamond medal and other coveted awards. Armstrong and Cardozo have lost consistently to Dunbar in recent years, the latter having six consecutive victories to its credit, three of which have embodied all of the drill day honors.

Armstrong and Cardozo students have put in extra hours in the early morning and late afternoon in the endeavor to excel. Maj. Gen. Van Horn Mosely, deputy chief of staff, United States Army, will be the reviewing officer.

Capt. William Creigler, Capt. Charles Stedman and First Lieut. Richard R. Queen will serve as judges of the competition, with Lieut. Sylvester T. Blackwell as alternate. The drill will begin at 9 o'clock, various companies competing until 11:30. It will resume at 1 o'clock, the companies competing at half hour intervals until 4:30 o'clock, when noncommissioned officers will give a silent exhibition drill, to be followed by the brigade review at 4:55 o'clock, and presentation of prizes and awards at 5:15 o'clock.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

DURING the recent epidemic of choosing the ten best of everything even remotely relating to the playhouse, there was scarcely a list—if, indeed, there was any at all—that did not include Katharine Cornell among the foremost ladies of the theater. Her tentative plans for the new season, therefore, are of more than passing interest to those who persevere in their staunch fidelity to the traditional forms of theatrical activity.

It is, as you may have suspected, from Ray Henderson, Miss Cornell's superlative stentor, headquartering for the moment at the Curran Theater in faraway San Francisco, that word comes that Thornton Wilder, author of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," is translating Andre Obey's "The Rape of Lucrece" from the French for Katharine Cornell, who will act this drama in the Belasco Theater, New York City, next season, following her production of Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn." The plays will not be given in repertoire. Both will be presented as long as there is public demand to see them.

Wilder is better known for his novels than his dramas, though he has written four one-act plays, staged by the drama students of Yale and Vassar last December in the Yale University Theater, New Haven. In addition to "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," his most famous work, he is the author of "Cabala" and "The Woman of Andros." He now is finishing an adaptation of the Hungarian comedy, "The Bride of Torozko," by Otto Indig, which Gilbert Miller has announced for this fall.

"The Rape of Lucrece," which successfully was played in Paris and in London a season ago by Jacques Copeau's company, will give Miss Cornell a role which is a distinct departure for her. The story more or less follows that of Shakespeare's poem. Though the treatment is modern in feeling, Obey somewhat has stylized his adaptation to the Greek mode of tragedy.

The author, in other words, has obeyed that impulse to reflect the O'Neill influence!

Speaking of Miss Cornell reminds me that of all the actresses on the American stage she, perhaps more than any other, has been compelled by a peculiarly perverse popular legend to sail unwillingly under false colors.

Only five out of the sixty or more plays in which Katharine Cornell has appeared have cast her as a lady of sin. This is a small percentage, as such things go. So is it to be wondered at that the actress sometimes wearies of being accused of having had a too exotic—or perchance erotic is the word some prefer—stage past?

Her present role of Elizabeth Barrett in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" is certainly beyond reproach in the matter of personal morals. Her next part in "Alien Corn" will present her as a girl who looks on life and love and remains steadfast to her aspirations, while the French drama, "The Rape of Lucrece," will show her as chaste as the dawn in temperament if not in eventual history.

There are vehicles which repertoire players find it arduous to enact, and others, as goes without saying, from which they derive the keenest enjoyment. The current offering of the National Theater Players, "Elizabeth Sleepa Out," less shockingly known as "Murray Hill" in its earlier incarnation as a New York hit, seems to fall in the latter category. I judge this from the fact that at Monday night's first performance of the Leslie Howard comedy more than one of the principals—tricked out in costumes of the voluminous Victorian era—had an excessively tough time trying to keep from laughing right out in meeting!

Each, no doubt, was thinking of the others, "Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us," &c.

Mitzi Green, the precocious little mimic, is far from through in pictures. RKO-Radio has just signed her to a three-year contract. She will do eighteen short subjects under the terms of the new document, six each year, and in addition will be starred in "Little Orphan Annie" at the same studio.

This is quite a break for the youngster, who before the release of "Girl Crazy," starring Wheeler and Woolsey, if you must know, was supposed to be at "that awkward age."

Reverting briefly to those National Theater Players, they will be seen next week—next to the last of the summer stock season, by the way—in a revival of that serio-comic mystery-thriller, "The Ghost Train."

A mystery of mysteries, "The Ghost Train," starts out to baffle the audience, and succeeds so well that the final curtain is down before its "inside story" is fully grasped, if then!

Clifford Brooke, director of the company, will again appear in the role of the English detective. The other members of the company are congenially cast in hair-trigger parts.

The open air parks, Glen Echo, on the Potomac, and Seaside Park, on Chesapeake Bay, find profit in the law of natural compensations—if there is any such thing. When the weather is stiflingly hot, their respective swimming pools do a landoffice business; when the weather is cool, the other amusement devices reap the major part of the public's "play." Both make ample provision for picnic parties and both have handsome ballrooms, with excellent dance music. So why not?

On Friday night of this week, at 8:20, Don Mullally's American-born comedy, "Laff That Off," will be presented as their last offering of the season by the East Washington Community Players in the Auditorium of Eastern High School, Seventeenth and East Capitol streets.

The new features announced for the week, beginning Saturday at the Earle and Friday in all the other picture houses, will be as follows: RKO-Keith's, Ricardo Cortez, Helen Twelvetrees and Robert Armstrong in "Is My Face Red?" Loew's Fox, Sari Maritza, Gene Raymond and Marguerite Churchill in "Forgotten Commandments," and Loew's "Parisienne" revue; Earle, Carole Lombard and Chester Morris in "Sinners in the Sun," and Frank Richardson headlining in the vaudeville; Palace, Fredric March and Sylvia Sidney in "Merrily We Go to Hell;" Metropolitan, Wynne Gibson and Pat O'Brien in "The Strange Case of Clara Deane;" Columbia, Victor McLaglen in "While Paris Sleeps."

And don't you wish you hadn't put those blankets away in moth balls quite so early!

New Citizens Will Attend D. A. R. Reception Tonight

A reception for new citizens of the United States, sponsored by the District of Columbia Chapter of the D. A. R. and the Americanization School Association of the District, will be held tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Central High School.

The reception, with Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, member of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia, presiding, will be comprised of tableaux and songs, so arranged to show the motivating spirit that led to the framing of the Constitution of the United States.

The tableaux show Columbus and his mates on the high seas and then the settlement of the thirteen colonies, followed by a group depicting leading events in the life of George Washington.

Certificates from the naturalization school will be presented the new citizens by Miss Maude E. Aiton, administrative principal of the school, and a presentation of flags will be made by Mrs. Harry C. Grove, State regent of the D. A. R.

EGAN MURDER CASE WITNESSES VANISH

Man Hurls New Charge at Suspended Public Defender in Court.

San Francisco, June 8 (A.P.).—The unexplained disappearance of two important witnesses against Frank J. Egan, suspended public defender, and two of his followers charged with murdering Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, friend and benefactress of Egan, made prosecuting officers uneasy today.

Egan and his accused employes were arraigned, but they withheld their pleas and were ordered to appear June 14. As Egan was being led to the courtroom from his cell a man sprang from a row of spectators screaming:

"So they got you at last; I'm one of your victims."

Police said the man was Edward J. Cook, whose wife was a client of Egan's. Her death last February was attributed to overindulgence in alcoholic drink. Cook, dissatisfied with the circumstances, demanded an accounting of Egan for $6,000 which he said he (Cook) had given Mrs. Cook.

The trio was indicted after Doran, former chauffeur for Egan, confessed he and Tinnin killed Mrs. Hughes on Egan's orders. In financial trouble, Egan allegedly plotted the death of Mrs. Hughes in the hope of obtaining money from her estate.

Funds of Charities Near Exhaustion

Associated Body Renews Plea to Congress for $600,000.

With less than $100,000 still available, the Associated Charities will have exhausted its balance of funds from the Community Chest appropriation by August, it was announced last night at the meeting of the board of managers of the organization.

Discussion of this situation by members developed the urgency of the need for appropriation by Congress of $600,000, as recommended for relief in the District by the President.

The fact that the employment committee of the District practically ceased operations on April 1 has thrown many families formerly aided by work relief back upon the Associated Charities, it was reported.

THURSDAY JUNE 9, 1932 SPORTS

RECORD CROWD OF 15,000 SEES BONUS BENEFIT FIGHTS; CHISOX SNATCH GAME FROM NATS IN 9TH INNING, 3 TO 2

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

AND the District Commissioners said "there was no sentiment for boxing" in the District of Columbia.

There was no sentiment for boxing in the board room of the District Commissioners, they meant.

Washingtonians to the number of 15,000 who turned out for the bonus benefit bouts at Griffith Stadium proved the eminent Commissioners quite wrong; oh, so wrong.

If there is "no sentiment for boxing in the District," as the Commissioners noted in their veto of a recent boxing bill, then the 15,000 who massed at Griffith Stadium last night never drew a breath; in fact, they don't exist.

But the cheers that were raised from the crowded grand stand and ringside as the amateurs and professionals flung leather for the benefit of Washington's encamped bonus army, testified that 15,000 Washingtonians not only nursed a genuine sentiment for boxing, but were willing to go down in their pockets for the pleasure.

Washington, the Forbidden City, as far as boxing is concerned, due to an antiquated penal code, went for the fights last night in a grand way. The slinging of fists, under rules and regulations, hitherto forbidden fruit to Washington's sporting appetite, met with a tremendous reception by the 15,000 privileged to observe by the need of succor for the veterans seeking the bonus here.

Clock-like precision marked the conduct of the program which saw no delays in any particular. Fighters streamed in and out of the ring for nearly four hours. In the dressing rooms had been set up a remount station for taking the gloves on and off the gladiators.

That they were fighting only for charity and glory did not deter the participants. They threw leather every moment, and the 15,000 were treated to a fistic carnival unlikened to any staged anywhere.

The entire program was the result of a high degree of teamwork by the committee headed by Maj. Heinie Miller, who developed the affair in only five days following the first announcement of the plans.

Not a snag marked the committee's arrangements. More boxers, both amateur and professional, volunteered their services than could be accepted. Never was there a suggestion that any fighter be paid.

The program set another mark. Not one cent was entailed as expenses. The entire intake, approximating $3,000, can be devoted to relief for the veterans here. Not a single expense item marked the affair.

The total of contributions was lower than was expected. The fans seemed to forget the 1917-18 slogan of "Give Until It Hurts." But if any department was mismanaged, it was the contribution angle. Only the surface of the crowd was scraped by the firemen and police who passed the hats.

Much more could have been collected had more workers been available. The crowd, beyond all expectations, was too large to be canvassed by the comparatively meager force.

One fan didn't shirk. He was Fred Buckholtz, Washington restauranter. Mr. Buckholtz's check for $200 was tendered to Gen. Glassford in the ring by Announcer Jimmy Lake.

Another type was there too, in a small number. The pile of coins revealed several washers and phoney medals and obsolete foreign coins of many countries. But some people are like that.

ROSENBLOOM WINS.

Pittsburgh, June 8 (A.P.).—A shivering crowd tonight watched Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized in New York as the light-heavyweight champion, cuff his way to an easy decision over Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, in ten rounds.

Burke Cheated of Victory When Myer's Error Sets Stage for Berry's Triple

Sox, Held to 3 Hits Until Ninth, Fill Bases, and Catcher Makes Decisive Hit Against Brown.

Nats Gain 2-Run Lead Off Ted Lyons; Burke in Trouble Only Once Before Fatal Ninth.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 8.—Any one seeing the Nationals play day in and day out can not help but think that some of the Washington pitchers lack fight and are thrown out of stride entirely too easily. Several games have been lost this season because an error, which in itself has done no particular harm, has sent the pitcher "up in the air." This happened here this afternoon, the result being a 3 to 2 loss to the White Sox in the ninth, when everyone in the park conceded victory to the Nationals.

For eight innings Bob Burke had pitched super ball, holding the Sox to three hits and looking like the best pitcher in the world. Entering the ninth with a two-run lead, Blue, first out was an easy victim. Then Myer went behind second for Hodapp's grasser and threw high to Judge for an error. Selph lined to West for the second out, and then Burke suddenly went wild. With the count three and two on Fothergill, the latter singled to left. Burke's first two offerings to Kress were balls and he was yanked in favor of Lloyd Brown, who finished what Burke started. This filled the bases and put it up to Catcher Charley Berry.

All Runners Score On Long Triple.

Berry fouled one and took a strike, then watched a couple of balls pass him and then met one squarely on the nose for a long looper to right-center. It went as a triple, all three runners scoring, and the Nats, who are talking pennant baseball but not playing it, lost a game in almost criminal fashion.

Of course, but for Myer's error, Burke would have gone the route and been credited with a shut-out. However, errors are to be expected the same as hits and the pitcher still had a chance to win the game with any kind of pitching.

Previous to this sad ninth, Burke had been in trouble but once and had pulled out in great style. This was in the third, when Kress opened with a double and Berry shot one to Kerr in deep short. The latter took time out to keep Kress from advancing and then got the ball to first too late to get the runner. Lyons sacrificed both along and Burke held Funk to a pop to short left and Sullivan to a roller to Bluege.

Lyons Lifted for Pinch Hitter.

The veteran Ted Lyons, who lost a 14-inning verdict to the Nats in Washington last month, was cheated out of victory today by being yanked in favor of a pinch hitter. Pete Daglia, Coast rookie, hurled the first half of the ninth and was credited with the triumph.

Lyons held the Nats to seven hits, but had one bad inning—and it wasn't very bad, netting three hits and two runs. In the sixth with one dead, Rice walked and West, Reynolds and Judge singled the two markers home. Kerr then rolled into a double play. The other four Washington hits came in as many different rounds.

West, with a double and a single, led the Nats' attack, while Berry, credited with a triple and a single, was high gun for the Sox. Bluege made several good stops to steal fielding honors of the fracas.

Top Flight to Seek Belmont Purse Today

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—With a chance to improve her position in the American turf's money-winning list, C. V. Whitney's Top Flight, champion juvenile of 1931, will make her third start of the year in the Coaching Club's American Oaks at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Ten 3-year-old fillies were named today for the 1¾ miles feature of the closing program at Belmont. If all start, the race will be worth in excess of $15,000 to the winner.

Jockey Pryor Injured As Horse Breaks Leg

Cleveland, June 8 (A.P.).—Jockey Willie Pryor was injured seriously late today when he jumped from his mount, Bourbonite, which had broken its leg in a race at the Bainbridge track.

Pryor's scalp was severely cut as his head struck a post.

In the Wake Of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 8.—Prof. Monte Weaver will be seeking his ninth victory and to give the Nats the edge in the series when he opposes the White Sox in the third game here tomorrow. He probably will find the veteran Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas opposing him.

Manager Lou Fonseca did some juggling of his line-up in the hope of adding some batting punch. Luke Appling, who hit around .400 earlier in the season, has fallen down to around .250 and was benched. Selph was shifted to second and young Billy Sullivan put on third. Then just to show how inconsistent a manager can be, Appling was used as a pinch hitter for Lyons in the eighth—and Lyons is no weak sister at the bat, either.

Neither Dave Harris nor Wes Kingdon had arrived here at game time, as was expected. The former would have drawn the left field assignment.

Sarazen is leading the field with Smith only a stroke behind. Armour, the defending champion, is five strokes in the rear with his 75 score.

GROVE HURLS 10TH IN ROW FOR MACKS

Home Run Ties Score as Tribe Bows by 3-1 Margin.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 8 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove pitched and batted his way to his eleventh victory of the season and his tenth straight today as the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 1, and mounted into third place in the American League.

The Indians' hopes of beating Grove after eight straight setbacks in the last two years rose in the seventh when Porter hit a home run, but Grove tied the score at 1-1 when he caught Harder's first pitch for a hard clout over the right field screen in the eighth.

Bishop, Cochrane, Simmons and Coleman followed with singles to bring in the other two scores, allowing the Athletics to rise from fifth place over the Indians and Detroit, which lost to New York.

Until the eighth, Harder had held Philadelphia to three hits with visions of improving Cleveland's record against Grove of one victory and eighteen defeats since 1928.

His troubles piled up, however, when Cleveland lost a chance for a double play as Johnny Burnett tossed Jimmy Foxx's grounder to Cissell, who was upset by the sliding Al Simmons, and threw too late to catch Foxx at first for the second out.

HOMERS GIVE YANKEES VICTORY

Ruth and Gehrig Hit for Circuit; Gomez Beats Tigers, 5-4.

DETROIT, June 8 (A.P.).—The Yankees' big three, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Vernon Gomez, got together today to take a close game from the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4.

Ruth and Gehrig drove in all the New York runs, the Babe hitting his seventeenth homer in the first inning and Lou providing the winning runs with his twelfth four-bagger in the seventh. Gomez was in trouble only through wildness. He allowed five hits and fanned thirteen but gave nine walks. Billy Rogell hit a homer in the fifth after two men had walked to keep Detroit in the running.

Lewis-Shikat Bout Tonight, Expected to Draw 40,000

On-the-Level Match Promises Huge Crowd for Opening of Garden's Stadium; Headlocks vs. Torture Holds of Shikat.

By STUART CAMERON.

NEW YORK, June 8 (U.P.).—Wrestling, once the ugly duckling of professional sports, promises to reach an all-time high when Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Dick Shikat, formally dedicate Madison Square Garden's new Sunken Bowl, tomorrow night.

Theirs will be a finish match for the benefit of Lewis and Shikat and the New York milk fund. More important, the event is generally believed to be a "shooting match," which means that not even the contestants know who will win.

The Lewis-Shikat exhibition (New York State law prohibits wrestling being advertised as matches) ought to be a large evening for those who like the sport, and somewhere between 40,000 and 50,000 are expected to walk down the stairs of the new Sunken Garden.

Lewis and Shikat have at one time or another been somewhat widely hailed as world champions.

Shikat was once huzzahed as champion of what the wrestling world terms the Curley group. Jim Londos is now the Curley world champion. He saw fit to avoid a meeting with Lewis when the wrestling powers decided that time was ripe for an intergroup contest. Londos was threatened with a mandatory order to meet the Lewis-Shikat winner or else—the else being robbed of recognition by the New York State Athletic Commission as their particular champ. He then showed contracts which would keep him too busy to engage in such a match, and the sword of disqualification was swung from his handsome head.

Lewis will depend upon his famous headlock. This grip is so nearly like the barred strangle hold that he has had many an argument with referees. It's a genuinely devastating hold. In fact, there are those who say it is because of Lewis' proficiency with it that Londos doesn't want any part of the Strangler.

Shikat has no pet hold, but goes in heavily for the trips that cause torture. He's a past master at the toe-twisting and leg-splitting holds, and he seems to take an almost inhuman delight in fastening them on his playmates.

Sarazen's 70 Tops British Open Play

U. S. Pro Takes Lead by Stroke Over Four With 71's.

Mac Smith Tied for Second; Sarazen in Strong Finish.

By FRANK H. KING.

SANDWICH, England, June 8 (A.P.).—The spectacular spurt of Britain's youth faded today before the grand golf of a chunky New York professional, Gene Sarazen, and the United States once more took command of the British open championship.

Leaving the shooting of 60s to such youngsters as Don Curtis and Eric McRuvie in the qualifying rounds, Sarazen opened the throttle wide in the first round of the championship proper today, hammered out a brilliant 70, 4 strokes under par for Prince's long and difficult layout, and led the field of 100 by a single stroke.

Playing as if every stroke meant the title, Sarazen went out in 35 strokes, 1 under par, and then came back with another 35, 3 under par, finishing with two birdies to lead the perennial Scotch-American contender. MacDonald Smith, and three British pros, Percy Allis, W. H. (Willie) Davies, and Charles Whitcombe, by a stroke.

Tommy Armour Among Group of 75.

There were six 73s in the first round of the 72-hole medal play, sixteen 74s and sixteen 75s, and among the latter was Tommy Armour, defending champion and third of America's major hopes.

Although Britain was deeply disappointed that the youngsters who sparkled in the qualifying rounds had wilted under the strain of title play, there was considerable satisfaction in the great display of the American they had made the favorite.

Apparently beaten off in his chance to lead the field, Sarazen came down to the final four holes, the most difficult, needing two birdies and as many pars to get his 70. For for the stretch is 4—4—5—5, and Sarazen scored 4—4—4—4.

Allis Falters Near End.

In marked contrast to Sarazen's finish was the stretch play of Percy Allis, one of Britain's chief hopes, who came to the fourteenth 4 under even 4s and headed for a 69 as Sarazen stroked his final putt. But Allis frittered away a stroke, finished in 5—4—5—5 for a 71.

Mac Smith went out in 34, 2 under par, sinking long putts and playing beautiful golf, but a couple of long ones failed to drop on the way and he had to be content with a 71.

Armour's putts wouldn't drop at all, six of them bouncing out of the can in a round that might have been a 69. A pulled drive and a bad spoon shot put a 6 on his card at the eighth, but he shot birdies on the tenth, thirteenth and eighteenth to stay in the running.

Bradbeer Has Card of 76.

A. R. Bradbeer, young professional who won the qualifying medal with 70—71—141, needed 76 today, while McRuvie shot a 77 and Curtis 74.

Walter Pursey, Seattle professional, also had a 76, but two American amateurs living abroad, Robert Sweeney and Douglas Grant, carded 78 and 82, respectively.

Cubs Regain Lead; Down Robins, 7-5

Quinn Weakens in 14th; Hartnett Slams Triple; Grimm Injured.

Brooklyn, June 8 (A.P.).—The Chicago Cubs staged a successful uphill fight today to defeat Brooklyn, 7 to 5, in fourteen innings and regain the National League lead from the defeated Boston Braves.

Trailing, 2-5, at the end of the sixth, the Cubs tied the count in the eighth and Charley Root outpitched Jack Quinn in a six-inning duel between relief pitchers. Root allowed only one hit, while Quinn weakened in the fourteenth and three blows, including a triple by Gabby Hartnett and a double by Bill Jurges, brought in the winning runs.

The Cubs lost the services of Charley Grimm in the first inning when he dislocated his wrist in a play at first base. Hartnett took his place for the rest of the game.

Greatest Fistic Turn-Out Watches Slashing Battles For Bonus Army's Relief

Barry Wins Close Decision Over Charles, Tow Defeats Gallagher in High Spots of Pugilistic Carnival.

Overalled Laborers Rub Shoulders With Milady Fans; No Dull Moment as Amateurs and Pros Stage 26 Bouts.

By JACK ESPEY.

FIFTEEN thousand sport-loving Washingtonians went out to Griffith Stadium last night and opened their eyes and their purses as a half-hundred boxers fought for charity. They answered the call of the hungry and homeless, the thousands of veteran bonus seekers who have become public charges in their quest of congressional relief.

A record crowd for boxing in Washington, the audience presented a cross-section of humanity. Sitting side by side were overalled laborers and daintily clad ladies, men in tattered sweaters and young fashion plates, but they applauded, cheered, slapped one another on the back as the participants in the ring engaged in lively contests.

A steady stream of athletes, amateur and professional boxers, paraded in and out of the ring, which was pitched over the infield of the baseball diamond. The bouts were of three 2-minute rounds, and there was never a dull moment during the long entertainment.

5,000 See First Contests.

Worked to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the boxers' masterful performances, the spectators were in a responsive mood when Announcer Jimmy Lake asked for contributions which will be used to defray the bonus brigade's expenses during its sojourn in Washington.

More than 5,000 fans were seated as the first bout started between Bill Willoughby and Walter Jenkins, amateur welterweights. Willoughby and Jenkins waded into each other in mad fashion and soon the crowd was on its feet cheering lustily as the combatants strove mightily for victory. Jenkins drew first blood with a stinging blow to Willoughby's nose, but in the second round Willoughby found the range of his foe's jaw and won on a technical knockout.

A couple of flyweights, Joe Green and Al Ditterman, fought the next bout, with Green winning the decision after three fast rounds.

By 8:45, one half-hour after opening, the crowd had increased to more than 10,000 and the runways from the entrance to the stands were still crowded with hurrying hundreds who sought vantage points only to find the best seats filled.

Carrier-Jameson In Fast Bout.

A whirlwind clash between Stanford Carrier, American Legion, and Lou Jameson, Walter Reed, brought the assemblage to its feet, so fast and zealous were the combatants. Carrier, who rushed his opponent all the way and planted telling blows on Jameson's pale face, earned the decision after three rounds.

Two Baltimore boys stole the show with a hilariously funny bout of three rounds. They were Benny Horn and Albert Presto, who tumbled about the ring like acrobats, tossed punches at Referee Charlie Short and generally roughed each other until they were exhausted.

Reds Barry, Washington's leading heavyweight, was given a real battle by Tim Charles, another local product, and Reds barely won The Post's decision. Billy Schwartz, Alexandria light heavyweight, came out of retirement to gain a draw with Billy Strickler.

Bob Tow, Birmingham, Ala., heavyweight, conceded Marty Gallagher, Foggy Bottom pride, 17 pounds and outpointed him in a fast contest that ended in a sensational slugging exchange. One of Tow's long rights shook Marty to his toes.

Interest was maintained at a high level until the very end, which came at 12:30 o'clock, with Kid Sullivan, old-time lightweight, who once defeated Battling Nelson, sparring three rounds with Danny Lewis, another veteran of the prize-ring, toward the close.

U. S. Davis Cupmen Play Brazil Today

Shields Draws Pernambuco in Opening Singles at Forest Hills.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—The tennis forces of Brazil and the United States reached into a silver bowl today to decide that Frank Shields, ranked No. 2 on the national list, would face Ricardo Pernambuco in the opening singles match of the American zone Davis Cup final at Forest Hills tomorrow afternoon.

The second grab paired Wilmer Allison against Nelson Cruz for the second singles match. The doubles teams, meeting Friday, will not be named until 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The draw was made by Sebastia Sampaio, consul general of Brazil, and Louis J. Carruthers, president of the U. S. L. T. A.

Although, it is considered certain that Allison will team with John Van Ryn to represent the United States in the doubles Friday, the Brazilian doubles team so far is made up of only one player, Ivo Simoni. Carlos Aranha, another member of the team, who arrived here only today, will pair with Simoni if he is in condition. Otherwise it is expected that Cruz will play with Simoni.

BILLY JONES SCORES IN WASHINGTON PARK MILE FEATURE

Maiben Rides 5-1 Shot to Victory

Beats Monk's First by 1-2 Length in Stretch Drive.

Barometer Captures Belmont Chase as Favorite Falls.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 8 (A.P.). — Johnny Maiben turned in another of his fine rides at Washington Park today to pilot Billy Jones home first in the feature race over 1 mile.

Billy Jones took the lead in the stretch and was hustled home to win by a half length over Monk's First, which closed with a rush. Thistle Ace was a strong third. The winner covered the distance in 1:39 4-5 over a good track and paid $13.60.

Favorite Falls in Belmont Chase.

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., June 8 (A.P.).—Devotees of cross-country racing had an inning here this afternoon with the Meadowbrook, a handicap of two a half miles, heading the card. The event resulted disastrously for favorite players. Gladys Whitney's Beacon Hill, 3-to-5 choice in the field of three, fell at the last jump. E. R. Bradley's Barometer, well backed at 8 to 5, galloped home with fifteen lengths to spare over T. W. Durant's Watsonia.

Barometer was well handled by Fred Bellhouse, the English rider, and picked up $2,550 by his victory. The time was 4:46 2-5. J. E. Widener's Indigo was withdrawn early from the contest.

THREE GOLFERS TIE FOR MEDAL IN MID-ATLANTIC TOURNEY

73 by Curtiss Equaled by Sasscers

Washington Youth Is Tied by Baltimorean and Brother.

Pitt Among Stars to Miss Championship Flight.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE contest for the medal in the qualifying round of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association tournament, on the course of the Columbia Club yesterday, resulted in a triple tie. Thomas W. Sasscer, of the Baltimore Country Club; Leroy D. Sasscer, his younger brother by a year and nine months, and a member of the Indian Spring Club, and Byrn Curtiss, who is young enough to be a son of either of the Sasscer brothers, and former junior champion of the Indian Spring Club, although now affiliated with Beaver Dam, each had cards of 73.

They led the field by one stroke, for J. William Harvey, jr., Indian Spring; Richard H. Lunn, Chevy Chase, and Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, each finished with 74s.

All of the leaders figuratively wept bitter tears as they recalled their rounds and remembered how easily they might have captured the medal except for sad mishaps. Tom Sasscer, for instance, was in four traps, three on the outward nine and one on the homeward journey, and if he had escaped any one of these penalty strokes he would have coasted home with a 72.

Curtiss Troubled By Traps.

Curtiss would also have won by an easy margin if it had not been for traps on the fifth and seventh holes, a shot into the ditch on the fifteenth and a ball out of bounds from the eighteenth tee. Roy Sasscer's mistakes were three putts on the sixth green, a shot that rolled off the green on the fourteenth and a three-foot putt that missed the cup on the ninth.

There were other sad stories, also, from the golfers who had 74s instead of 73s, notably the tragic tale of Richard H. Lunn, Chevy Chase, who 3-putted three greens on the outward nine and then missed 6 putts, not one over 6 feet long, which would have given him birdies instead of pars on the incoming nine. Perhaps the prize for hard luck, however, ought to be awarded to Maj. E. A. Noyes, of the Army-Navy Club, who was out in 38 and on the eighteenth tee needed only a par 4 to give him a fine 77 to qualify in the first sixteen. Did he land in the championship flight? He did not. His first ball was out of bounds, then he played into a trap, then he landed in another trap, and finally with 3 putts holed out in a disastrous 8, which placed him in the second sixteen.

When all the cards had been turned in there were five contestants with 77 for one place in the first sixteen, but when R. P. Davidson, of the Chevy Chase Club, failed to respond to his name he automatically dropped into the second sixteen and a playoff was avoided. With 96 players qualifying in the six sixteens, the highest score to qualify was 93. There were three competitors at this figure with one place remaining, including Hugh H. Saum, of the Columbia.

Saum Draws Own Card.

As Saum was standing by the scoreboard, he was requested by Donald Woodward, the president of the association, to draw one card. He reached over, pulled a card from President Woodward's hands, and then he smiled. The card bore his name. "I have drawn myself out of the tournament," he said, and received the sympathetic condolences of the assembled golfers.

When cards of 78 were crowded out of the first sixteen, Harry G. Pitt, former Middle Atlantic champion and winner of the recent Baltimore Country Club invitation tournament, withdrew from the tournament, as his score of 78 would have placed him in the second sixteen. The cards of three leaders were:

SANDLOT DUST

THE latest story concerning "Lefty" McIntire (Washington's own "Dizzy" Dean) is being circulated around the sandlots. "Lefty," so the story goes, was pitching in a game out in the suburbs recently, and was tossing them in there with the old zip on them. As the game progressed the crowd began to razz the umpire for his decisions behind the plate. The razzberry crop flourished to such an extent that the poor man could stand it no longer.

Striding out to where McIntire stood on the mound he pleaded, "Listen, 'Lefty,' throw 'em a little slower so I can see 'em, will you?"

Cards Slam 20 Hits To Rout Braves, 15-8

Boston, June 8 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals today came out of their batting slump and captured the series opener by pounding four Boston pitchers for 20 hits and a 15-8 victory in a weird game that lasted almost three hours.

The defeat pushed the Braves into second place in the league standing, the Cubs regaining the lead with a 14-inning victory over Brooklyn.

Frankie Frisch, still limping from his Charley-horse, returned to the Cards' line-up and made a terrific impression against the opposing pitching, getting three singles and a double out of six. The fielding gem was turned in by "Pepper" Martin, who robbed Wes Schulmerich out of a double, at least, by making a leaping catch of his drive three feet from the fence.

Phils, Outhit, Beat Pirates by 11-10 Score

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh outhit the Phils in a slugging bee here today, but lost the decision, 11 to 10, when Burt Shotton's men halted a Pirate uprising in the ninth inning after three runs had trickled over the plate. After getting away to an early lead on an attack in the first inning that produced four runs, the Phils were forced to come from behind to gain the decision. They knotted the count at 7 to 7 in the seventh inning, and went to the front with four additional runs in the eighth inning. Lee and Barbee hit for the circuit.

Browns Hit Red Sox Pitchers to Score, 11-4

St. Louis, June 8 (A.P.).—Three Boston pitchers each allowed six safeties as the St. Louis Browns smashed out an 11-to-4 victory over the Red Sox today. Jolley knocked out a homer in the third with the bases clear, but Goslin's circuit clout the same inning scored two ahead of him. Gray, who relieved Hebert in the second, held the Red Sox to six hits the rest of the game.

Giants Bunch Blows To Trounce Reds, 9-2

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Failure to hit in the pinches cost Cincinnati a 9-2 decision in a game with the Giants at the Polo Grounds here today, and sixth place in the league standings. The Reds poled the offerings of Fitzsimmons for 10 safeties but were safely held in check when hits meant runs. The Giants bunched their blows in the third and fourth innings for eight of the winning runs.

LINES ON THE RETIREMENT OF JOHN McGRAW.

HE wasn't always tactful—
He made mistakes to spare,
But, all in all, the figures
Disclose the kid was there.

His methods weren't polished—
His style was crude and rough,
But there is no denying
The fellow knew his stuff.

No saint was he or angel—
His shoulders grew no wings,
But he was pretty nearly
The baseball king of kings.

SOFT ways? They didn't fit him;
His rule was "Make a fight!"
And in the field of baseball
The guy was close to right.

He had his awful seasons—
Oft tarnished was his fame,
But he took all the burdens
And dodged no mite of blame.

He wasn't any "softie"
No matter what the case,
But he had what it takes to Come through and win a race.

He made his share of errors
Like lots of other guys,
But this you've gotta hand him—
He made no alibis.

NO pussyfooter crafty,
He battered and he smashed,
And no one knew much better
How baseball's heights were crashed.

A tough one in his tactics,
He loved to swing and sock,
But he will live in baseball
As greatest of the flock.

Jawn had his faults—and many;
He could get tough—and would,
But looking o'er the record,
The guy was pretty good!

INSULL YIELDS REINS OF UTILITIES EMPIRE

Noted Industry Builder Quits More Than 50 Corporations; May Get Pension.

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull has withdrawn from all his rail interests and 32 other corporations and made complete his abdication from the vast utility empire he founded, it was learned today. Meanwhile, a Federal Court audit was being made of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., to determine if there is any personal liability of officers and directors.

Should such liability in management of the half billion dollar trust company during the last two years be shown, Federal Judge Walter Lindley told attorneys for investors, civil action should be taken to recover from the officers "such funds as could be obtained."

Almost at the same time Judge Lindley was revealing the audit was in progress, Mr. Insull was preparing and signing the resignations which removed him from the control of the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines, Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad, Chicago, South Shore and South Bend Railroad and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Railroad, in addition to the 52 others.

Earlier in the week he had relinquished the reins of his three large Chicago utility companies and their interests to James Simpson, head of Marshall Field & Co., and yesterday his resignation as coreceiver of large holding and trust companies was accepted by Judge Lindley.

The man who rose from the obscurity of an English immigrant-secretary to Thomas Edison, at 72 years of age, has severed his connections with his whole family of corporations, most of which he founded himself or helped build in his rise to become one of the most imposing figures in the history of American utilities.

Today it was reported Insull's banking and other creditors have decided to vote him a pension of $18,000 a year and from persons close to the former magnate said he would sail for Europe soon with Mrs. Insull to rest from the strain of the last few months in which he tried to save his huge holding companies from receivership.

He owns a residence in Reading, England, on the Thames, but it was said he would first spend some time in Paris.

MONEY MARKETS

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Dollars developed late firmness in today's foreign exchange market, although they had earlier shown some easiness, presumably because of unfavorable reactions abroad to relief legislation passed by the House.

However, gold currencies sagged from their early highs and the dollar was gaining as the market closed. French francs at 3.94½ cents were at a level which permitted almost no profit for gold takers, while the belga, off 8 points net, was comfortably under the gold level. Dutch guilders lost virtually all of their forenoon rise, and Swiss francs finished unchanged.

Sterling firmed fractionally to a closing cable rate of $3.67½, up ⅝ cent. Canadian dollars sagged again, but the reichsmarks improved slightly.

Rail Heads Meet To Study Industry

Discussions at New York Also Include Plans to Combat Competition.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Several leading railroad executives met today to discuss the problems confronting the railroad industry. The session, held at the American Railway Association offices, was attended by Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Railroad Co.; J. J. Pelly, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford; J. E. Gorman, head of the Rock Island System, and R. H. Aishton, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

The discussion of the executives, according to a statement by M. R. Aishton, covered the railroad situation, not only as to the effect of the depression common to all industries, but also as to the methods of meeting competition with various agencies of transportation now unregulated.

Other matters discussed by the executives concerned methods of bringing about further economies in the operation of the railroads, either by additional research or by cooperative action, coordination, or by the combination of these factors.

"The conference today," said Mr. Aishton's statement, "was for the purpose of giving consideration to the many suggestions received from widely spread sources. No conclusions were reached and no definite statement can be made at this time as to any further conferences. The situation necessarily will have to be discussed at a general meeting of railroads at a date to be later determined."

Sheet-Tube Dividend To Fail for First Time

Youngstown, Ohio, June 8 (A.P.).—For the first time since its initial dividend, nearly 30 years ago, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. will omit the $1.37½ dividend on its preferred stock for the current quarter.

Directors announced that while the company is in excellent financial condition, it was felt that cash should be conserved in view of continued poor earnings.

The company has not paid a common dividend for a year.

MARKET COMMENT

Robert C. Jones & Co.—We believe the present reaction is based on the weakness in commodity prices, especially wheat, and the fear of relief legislation which will involve the issuance of new Government securities. However, with the new bond pool functioning, and the prospect of an early adjournment of Congress, we favor the constructive side on all days of weakness.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—Those seeking reasons why stocks should be bought now have difficulty finding many strong ones. Probably the best is that a very large number of equities are cheap, either on present operations and earnings of probable results given even a mild upturn from present low level of business activity, which, according to one of the most comprehensive private indices, is 57 per cent below the normal line. That reason will stimulate informed purchases of stocks on weakness, but will hardly cause competitive bidding for them.

The G. M.-P. Murphy & Co. New York Bank stock index reached a high for this year on March 8, when it stood at 61.47. A decline of 51 per cent brought the index to a low of 30.17 on May 31. This rapid decline in the market value of leading New York City bank stocks can only be accounted for by forced or indiscriminate selling and by an absence of buyers due to lack of investment confidence in all securities regardless of their nature. By June 4 the index had advanced 24 per cent to 37.35. This rapid "comeback" would appear to offer a cue to the future market movement of well selected New York City bank stocks under improved conditions in the general security market.

Westheimer & Co.—Attitude of uncertainty now growing in speculative circles appears to dictate caution in making market commitments at this time. Price averages are now in the neighborhood of their old lows, which should make for an early test of values.

Waggaman, Brawner & Co.—Passage of the Garner bill by the House had some depressing influence. The stock market was dull and heavy, but bonds, bank stocks and insurance stocks were much steadier in comparison. We believe the firmer tone of the investment market gradually will have more influence on the stock market.

The following reviews of yesterday's financial markets abroad are from the regular European service of the Associated Press:

London—Business was moderate on the stock exchange. Foreign bonds and industrial issues improved, while gilt-edged securities, American issues and others were easy. The closing was uncertain. Sterling exchange eased on a better demand for the dollar.

PARIS—Disappointment over the weakness in Wall street caused prices on the bourse to break sharply in all sections, especially bank and international issues. The market closed heavy.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse closed generally unchanged, specialties showing a stronger tendency.

PRICES AND RECOVERY

(Is prosperity impossible during a period of falling commodity prices? In the following discussion, Mr. Laurence Stern emphasizes stable exchange relationships, as against the movement of the commodity index, as the basis of good times. These excerpts present the conclusions of an article by Mr. Stern in the forthcoming issue of The Magazine of Wall Street, through whose courtesy the accompanying graph also is reproduced.)

THE efforts of mankind to control prices, particularly through the hocus-pocus of manipulating money or credit, is almost as old as commerce itself. Many an ancient king, hard-pressed to pay his debts, hit upon what seemed to him the happy idea of debasing the currency. This created the illusion, for a time, of advancing prices, although what actually happened was that money went down. The public usually became intensely annoyed. Sometimes it deposed the king. In later years one of the reforms it clamored for most urgently was divorcement of the currency from political influence or power.

* * * *

In all history there is not one scintilla of convincing evidence that man possesses the knowledge or the power to govern the basic price trend to any important extent or for any important length of time. Whenever an abnormal advance in the price of goods has occurred corrective decline has followed—as inexorably as the force of gravity.

In its extremes the pattern of price fluctuation has always been relatively simple, as is strikingly shown by the chart which accompanies this article. We have here 132 years of price history based on data prepared by the United States Department of Labor statistics. It shows three major cycles during this great expanse of time. Looming up like mountains are three gigantic price peaks—one in the year 1814; one, still higher, in 1865, and the third, highest of all, in 1920.

Each of these peaks was thrown up by a major war, as mountain ranges have been thrown up by earthquakes. Each of these wars violently disrupted normal economic currents. Each called forth currency debasement or artificial credit expansion, or both, in order that hostilities might be financed. Each was followed by a return to price normality along the rough and painful road of deflation. Each deflation resurrected the age-old agitation among pinched debtors for "cheap money" or controlled prices. Each such agitation up to the present time has failed to achieve any substantial result.

* * * *

DESPITE the present pessimism, which is merely the counterpart of that which has invariably prevailed in the late phases of all past depressions, we have already made great progress in cyclical adjustment. Capital savings and consuming demands are accumulating. Debts are being steadily liquidated. It is likely that a certain unpayable proportion of debt will remain, to be adjusted through default, the writing off of capital losses and, in many instances, the transfer of property ownership.

Completion of the cycle can certainly lead to some degree of economic revival and to some improvement in the price situation. Neither in the cyclical nor the secular price factors now visible, however, is there any reason to believe that such improvement will take the form of any substantial advance in the general commodity level.

Important price improvement is possible without a lifting of the wholesale average. The damage which has been done is the result not of the present level in itself, but of the dislocations caused in the process of change to that level. If all prices, wages and fixed charges had gone down together and in proportion, the exchange of goods certainly would not have been disrupted to the present degree. There has been, instead, a lag in the adjustment of fixed charges and of wages, and the utmost variation has been shown in the declines of individual commodities.

The wheat farmer's problem is not the dollar price of his product, but its reduced exchange value in terms of the finished goods which he must buy. It will, obviously, take some time for the prevailing maladjustment of commodity relationships to be corrected or for production and distribution to adjust themselves to more or less permanently changed relationships.

Regardless of secular causes for declining prices, it appears likely that the present stagnation will be broken by at least moderate advance in many raw materials which are selling below production costs, by decline in prices of finished goods which remain out of line and by completion of cost adjustments relating to wages and fixed charges upon capital obligations.

* * * *

IT appears very unlikely that the result of such an adjustment will show up in a rise of any substantial proportions in the average price line, for recovery in some of the more depressed items probably will be offset, as it should be, by lower prices for finished goods. If it were possible by artificial means to raise the general level, the essential difficulty of maladjustment in exchange values would remain unchanged. That is, if all prices should go up, the farmer would still have to pay too much wheat for a tractor, a pair of shoes or a suit of clothes.

But if a more equitable basis of exchanging goods is established, as it ultimately will be through the automatic regulation which price itself forces, trade activity and business prosperity will not be dependent upon rising prices. It will be possible to prosper upon stabilized prices or even upon declining prices, if the annual rate of decline is sufficiently gradual to permit constant business adjustment to it. That we can have prosperity under such conditions is conclusively demonstrated by the fact that we often have had it in the past, without price inflation.

We have had booms and panics on rising prices and booms and panics on declining prices.

Present average prices are no worse, in fact a slight bit better, than the average which prevailed during the forty years between 1820 and 1860 and the thirty-three years between 1880 and 1913. As for the 1926 price level—that is so far above the average of the last 132 years as to put a stamp of folly upon any hope of getting back to it. A great war would put us back there, and probably destroy the world in the process. Any other form of inflation would merely delay the adjustment now being successfully worked out.

Moreover, generally low prices are not to be deplored but, on the contrary, much to be desired. They establish many problems of economic and social adjustment, but fundamentally they are not incompatible with relatively high standards of living. If there is any justification for technical progress, it can only lie in declining costs, declining hours of labor and advancing production and consumption.

Rush to Buy Gasoline In Advance of U.S. Tax

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—A rush is reported in oil trade circles to buy wholesale gasoline in advance of the Federal tax of 1 cent a gallon, which will go into effect shortly under the new revenue law covering gasoline sales by refiners. Standard Oil of New Jersey is expected shortly to advance tank car gasoline prices one-quarter of one cent a gallon.

Gasoline Price Higher As Jobbers Buy Supply

Tulsa, Okla., June 8 (A.P.).—Gasoline prices stepped up another quarter cent a gallon today as jobbers continued to buy tremendous quantities before the one-cent per gallon Federal tax becomes effective June 21.

Only a few refiners were quoting as low as 4¾ cents as bottom price. The top grade was selling around 5½ cents per gallon.

NATIONAL CITY BANK SAYS CHILE IS QUIET

Financial Houses Are Closed in Santiago; Government Plans Awaited.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Officials of the National City Bank, who have been in direct telephonic communication today with Santiago, Chile, said that conditions in the South American country, following the recent revolutionary coup, were reported comparatively quiet.

L. D. Welch, manager of the National City branch in Santiago, speaking from the Chilean capital, said that little was known of the new government's intentions but that, thus far, there was no evidence of any counterrevolutionary movement.

All of the Santiago banks are closed, Mr. Welch said, but it was thought they might be allowed to reopen tomorrow with the government placing a limit on withdrawals.

Life in Santiago, the banking manager added, was proceeding about as usual and there were no signs of war-like or revolutionary demonstrations. He did not believe the new government would repudiate Chile's international obligations or would attempt to expropriate foreign property.

New World Parley On Oil Is Expected

Conference May Be Called at Paris or London Early in July.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Another world conference to deal with the question of stabilization of foreign oil export markets will open either in Paris or London late this month or early in July, according to reports today in authoritative quarters of the oil industry.

C. E. Arnott, president of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation, who acted as spokesman for the unsuccessful conference held here recently, today characterized reports of a new conference as "premature," but it became known that Mr. Arnott and H. F. Sheets, vice president of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation, are scheduled to sail for Europe early next week.

It was said that direct representation for Roumanian oil producers will be one of the developments in the present arrangements for further conferences abroad.

BUILDING IN SOUTH TOPS $35,000,000

Award of Permits Increases 35 Per Cent Over April; Under Last Year.

Baltimore, June 8 (A.P.).—More than $35,000,000 in building and engineering contracts in the sixteen Southern States, the largest monthly total this year, are reported today in the current issue of the Manufacturers Record.

The figure represents a 35 per cent increase over awards for April and compares with $69,047,000 in the same month last year. The publication points out, however, that the comparison with last year is "an encouraging showing when it is considered that the valuation of construction awards each month this year, for the country in general, has been at a rate of about one-third the total for the corresponding month of last year."

Total awards in the South for the first five months of the year are given in the review as more than $124,000,000, along with an estimate that inclusion of small contracts not reported would raise the sum above $165,000,000.

Road, paving and bridge construction continued to gain last month, as contrasted with preceding months, awards aggregating more than $14,260,000 compared with $12,833,000 in April. Proposed work of this character announced last month totaled $16,256,000, and the building survey predicts a sharp upward trend in that field should the bond market improve.

The Record adds that indications the Federal Government may provide funds for public works of this character has revived talk of a projected $15,000,000 bridge over the Mississippi at New Orleans and a $10,000,000 span over Chesapeake Bay.

City, county, Government and State projects let to contract last month aggregated more than $10,482,000, and miscellaneous projects, $6,220,000. Sewers, drainage and water works jobs came to $1,848,000, while apartment houses and hotels, association and fraternal structures, bank and office buildings, church edifices, store and school buildings made up the remainder.

Dwellings costing over $10,000 accounted for $735,000 of the total.

Stock Losses Slash Gains Of Last Week to One Point

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tue.
Number of advances	66	119
Number of declines	333	287
Stocks unchanged	99	116
Total issues traded	498	522

Stocks.

Public buying appears to have been driven off again by the threat of the House and Senate relief bills, although informed quarters understand neither measure can be enacted. The 90-stock average closed yesterday at 36.2, against last week's low of 35.

Bonds.

High-grade corporates traded in a comparatively narrow range, but the rails were soft. U. S. Governments were firm and four Treasury issues came off with modest gains.

Curb.

The utilities were the weak spot in smaller trading. Bears are making the most of the relief bills.

Wheat.

Canadian selling abroad again dominated the Chicago trade. July sold down to 49⅝ cents at Chicago, with the market closing ⅞ to 1⅜ cents down for the day, and roughly 10 cents a bushel under last week's top.

Cotton.

Wall street selling in the last hour pressed July to 5.03, or within 3 points of last week's low. The general market closed at net declines of 11 to 13 points.

French Finance Head Predicts Budget Deficit

Paris, June 8 (A.P.).—Louis Germaine-Martin, minister of finance, said today that France is confronted with a serious financial situation and that probably the 1932 budget deficit will be between six and seven billion francs.

He called attention to the probability that Germany will not resume reparations payments when the Hoover moratorium expires, and said that the government intends to introduce a measure for major reduction of expenditures and reorganization of administrative services. Thus, he said, it may be possible to balance the budget with a minimum of sacrifice.

Lack of Support Is Blamed With Uncertainties for Downward Trend.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Stocks made heavier drafts on last week's gains today and when the market closed little more than a point of that advance remained.

Trading was quiet, but failure of support to appear during the third successive day of declining prices somewhat discomfited brokers who watch for technical symptoms. Bonds eased, yet maintained a relatively steady undertone.

Trade news was on the debit side. Also, some tape students thought uncertainties in which Federal relief and economy measures appeared to be involved had acted as a damper. On the whole it seemed that prospective buyers were awaiting signs of business gains before going to market with their money.

Foreign exchanges were firmer for a time but tended to favor dollars in the later dalings.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Drag.

Weakness of Brooklyn-Manhattan stocks imposed a drag on the market from the start. Common shares of this New York City traction slumped 4 points and the preferred issue dropped 10. Wall street's readiest explanation being the possibility of dividend changes in connection with a note maturity on August 1.

American Telephone softened appreciably in the last hour when it broke through the old low, closing 3½ down. Pacific Telephone lost 8, Western Union 2⅝, Peoples Gas 5 and Consolidated Gas of New York, 3.

Santa Fe sagged 2, Union Pacific 2¾, New York Central 1¾ and Norfolk & Western 8. U. S. Steel duplicated its old low at 25¼ but cut its loss moderately, finishing 1¾ down. American Can, Bethlehem, Case, Allied Chemical, Woolworth, Westinghouse, American Tobacco B, National Biscuit, General Foods, and Du Pont were off 5 to slightly more than 2.

Volume totaled 975,200 shares, the largest this week.

Weekly statistics of the state of the steel industry provided poor fare. On top of word that May production had been the smallest since 1921 came the Iron Age estimate that activity had currently sagged to 20 per cent of capacity, a dip of 3 points from last week.

Raw material prices have again weakened.

Demands on steel production from automobile consumers are lightening. Motor car makers turned out 20 per cent more cars last month than in April, although an important part of the gain seems to have been due to Ford's program, since General Motors May sales were lower, totaling 66,739 units against 78,359 in April, a decline of nearly 15 per cent. A decrease in U. S. Steel Corporation's backlog is expected when the May 31 figures are reported Friday.

Average Is Lower.

Stocks used in the Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite averaged 2.2 points lower, closing at 36.2 against last week's low of 35. Thus the loss in three days has been 5.2 points out of a total advance on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week of 6.5 points, as measured by this gauge.

On the other hand, today's average decline in bonds was nominal, rails showing the largest recession. That group had made the best gains, however, and profit-taking was doubtless a leading factor in the setback.

The big bankers' investing corporation has made some bids, but it is understood that its orders, which are probably being limited to highest grade liens are being placed under the market.

The stronger dollar was reflected in the daily gold statement. Withdrawals for export amounted to just over $30,000,000, but there was a decrease of nearly $12,000,000 in metal held under earmark.

BOND SALES ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

WHEAT VALUE DROPS TO LOWEST FOR 1932

Price Falls Below 50 Cents Per Bushel; Offerings From Canada Blamed.

Chicago, June 8 (A.P.).—Crashing downward below 50 cents a bushel for the 1932 crop, wheat today went under any prices ever reached here, excepting only last October.

Speculative buying dwindled to almost the vanishing point, and selling pressure enlarged, influenced notably by reports of urgent offerings of Canadian wheat abroad at prices cheaper than quoted on wheat from the United States.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, ⅞ to 1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ½ cent down; oats at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to a rise of 2 cents.

July delivery of wheat here sold as low as 49⅝ cents whereas Canadian wheat, allowing for difference of currency, was about 47 cents. On the downward sweep of the Chicago market, prices went to more than 10 cents under last week's top, and many holders were forced to quit as a result of automatic execution of stop-loss orders.

Bearish News Is Factor.

Bearish trade developments at Washington were apparently a pronounced factor among the many that deterred new buyers.

Reports presenting a favorable picture of Canadian crop conditions attracted special notice. Comprehensive unofficial summaries emphasized the Canadian government outline, which put the growth percentage at 106 in Alberta, 89 in Saskatchewan and 96 in Manitoba.

Advices were also current telling of good prospects for the United States spring crop. Domestic winter wheat too was officially reported as showing improvement, particularly in western Kansas.

Houses usually identified with Farm Board interests were conspicuous on the selling side.

Corn and oats showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, despite weakness of wheat. There was talk of export demand for corn, but no actual business overseas was confirmed.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

PAGEANT TO REVIEW HISTORY AND FLAG

Military and Civic Bodies to Honor Washington in Event on June 14.

The history of the United States of America and its flag will be told in a vast pageant spectacle and procession on the evening of Flag Day, June 14, in Washington, by hundreds of marching units representing military organizations, veteran, patriotic and civic groups, State societies and our insular possessions, and foreign-American bodies, from various parts of the United States.

This patriotic demonstration will be in honor of the memory of George Washington, founder of our Nation, and is being sponsored jointly by the United States and the District of Columbia Commissions on the Bicentennial.

Plans that have been in preparation for many months will see fulfillment on Flag Day, when beginning at 7 o'clock in the evening, the procession will march from Constitution avenue at Seventeenth street along Pennsylvania avenue to the Peace Monument, and north of the Capitol Grounds, to the East Plaza.

President to Review Units.

There, at 8 o'clock, the President of the United States is expected to review the marching units of its citizenry accompanied by military bands and splendid floats.

Heading the procession will be the grand marshal, Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, U. S. A., with his aids, Lieut. Col. James M. Lockett, U. S. A., and Capt. Horace Smith, U. S. A., followed immediately by units of the military establishment of the United States.

The National Guard of the District of Columbia will play a large part in the procession; and the D. C. Department of the American Legion will have 1,500 uniformed marchers in its ranks, accompanied by a float, and two drum and bugle corps. There will be found, in this procession, the Grand Army of the Republic and the National Womens' Relief Corps, Military Order of the World War, Society of the War of 1812.

Patriotic Bodies Included.

There will be many patriotic bodies included in this giant tribute to George Washington and the Flag, among them, the American Womens' Legion, Military Training Camps Association of the United States; Department of the Potomac Women's Relief Corps; Eva Allensworth Auxiliary No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans; Department of the District of Columbia Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans; Sons and Daughters of the Republic D. A. R.; Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Washington Post, Society of American Military Engineers and others.

Among the civic organizations will be the Daughters of America, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Southeast Civic League, Girl Scouts of the District of Columbia; Association of Oldest Inhabitants, National League of American Penwomen, District of Columbia Council, Boy Scouts of America; American Order of Pioneers and Boone Family Association, Washington, D. C. Lodge No. 15, B. P. O. Elks, and others. Many organizations will have historic floats with their units.

The majority of the societies of the 48 states will take part in the procession, many of them entering floats of specific interest from an historical point of view; and all will bring to this procession a wonderful array of flags, flags dating back to the beginnings of our country's life. There will be many foreign-Americans too, in this assemblage of citizens, marching in honor of George Washington's memory and in tribute to the Flag, on the evening of June 14, in the Nation's Capital.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

HIGH tide or low, the ferry which carries guests between their hotel on Burgh Island, off the coast of England, and the mainland, makes its trip on wheels. When the tide is out, this locomotive monstrosity runs on dry ground, and when the tide is in, it courses through the water, its wheels on the ocean bed.

Power is furnished by a tractor motor which rides high and dry among the passengers. Instead of a rudder, the vehicle is equipped with automobile wheels which steer it in the conventional manner. The sea tractor makes regular calls at Bigbury-on-Sea at South Devon.

Needless to say—passengers are conveyed at their own risk.

Oxygen is necessary to all processes of burning, or oxidation, whether it be the flame of a torch or the slow burning of rust on iron. Burning is, in fact, the chemical process of combination of oxygen with other element or compound.

Oxygen alone, however, cannot burn, because unless there is some other substance with which it may combine, the burning process cannot take place. The nearest approach there is to oxidation of oxygen, is the generation of unstable ozone in pure oxygen itself in slightly different molecular construction.

Any reader wanting futher proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Total sales of General Motors Corporation to dealers last month were 66,739 cars and trucks compared with 78,359 in April and 153,730 in May, 1931.

May sales to American consumers totaled 63,500 units against 81,573 in the previous month and 122,717 a year ago, while sales to American dealers aggregated 60,270 units compared with 66,029 in April and 136,778 in May of last year.

Steel Tonnage Shrinking.

New York, June 8 (A.P.).—Unfilled tonnage figures of the United States Steel Corporation as of May 31, to be published on Friday, are expected to show another decrease, according to general opinion in the steel trade. A drop of 100,000 tons may be expected, according to some of the current estimates.

Gasoline Prices.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD ORDERS U.S. WORKER TO DROP CANDIDACY

Partisan Phases of Elections in Alexandria Are Held Basis of Action.

PRECEDENT SET IN CASE OF GOSNELL AND RAUTH

250 on Petition Asking That Federal Men Be Allowed in Local Offices.

Cementing the warning action which it took in the cases of two Arlington County residents, the United States Civil Service Commission yesterday instructed J. Edward Shinn, a machinist in the Washington Navy Yard, that he must withdraw from candidacy for election to the city council of Alexandria.

The commission yesterday informed Representative Howard W. Smith, of the Eighth Virginia District, that permission could not be granted to Federal classified civil service employes in Alexandria to participate in political affairs or hold political office.

250 Sign Petition.

Representative Smith had personally appeared before the commission and presented a petition signed by 250 Alexandria residents pleading that Federal employes of that city be allowed to hold local or municipal offices.

This privilege was denied on the grounds of, first, that Federal employes living there constituted only 4 per cent of the population and that it was not deemed necessary to the domestic interests of those employes that they hold office and take part in politics, and second, that Alexandria has no nonpartisan primaries or elections.

Warned by Commission.

All political elections in Alexandria are party affairs, the commission said, and ruled that it is not practicable for a person to participate in activities or hold political office except on a partisan basis.

This action conforms with the ruling of the commission in the cases of Fred A. Gosnell and John Rauth, both Federal employes, who ran in the fall elections on the Republican ticket for office as members of the Arlington County Board.

Three weeks ago these two men were warned by the commission that they could take part in county political affairs only on a nonpartisan basis. In the election of last fall, Gosnell was elected and Rauth defeated. Gosnell at present holds the position as member of the county board.

Winner of Record Test Sings Again

Virginia Sellars Appears on WRC as Another Step in Career.

A program over Station WRC at 4 p. m. yesterday marked another forward step in the musical career of Virginia Sellars, talented young soprano, who was brought to public notice through the recent Washington Post recording contest, in which she won first prize in the amateur classification.

Following her selection from among several thousand contestants, Miss Sellars made her first radio appearance on Station WOL. Since that time she has been selected as guest artist during the week-end cruise of the Washington Board of Trade, aboard the steamer Southland; enjoyed her first airplane ride to receive a formal audition at the R. C. A. Victor laboratories in Camden, N. J., and has made two subsequent radio appearances, including yesterday's program from Station WRC.

Encouraged by the reception she has received from local music lovers, Miss Sellars, who is only 20 years old, plans a joint recital with Phila Belle Burk, pianist, at the Playhouse, 1814 N street northwest, Wednesday, June 22.

New York State Society Elects F. W. Krichelt

F. W. Krichelt was elected president of the New York State Society at a meeting Tuesday night at the Willard Hotel.

Child Care Group Directs Institute

"Nutrition" Is Theme of Session of Social Workers.

Under the auspices of the child care conference committee of the Council of Social Agencies, a nutrition institute, designed to acquaint the executives of the various social work agencies of Washington with the newest ideas in providing food for their clients, was held at the Grace Dodge Hotel yesterday. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the council, and Mrs. Mary F. C. Leute, secretary of the committee.

Among the speakers were Dr. Hazel K. Stiebling, senior food economist of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, who spoke on "Getting the Most for Your Food Money;" Miss Mary Lindsley, manager of the Dodge Hotel, who spoke at luncheon on "Food Purchasing and Management;" Mrs. Helen Nebeker Hann, assistant home economist, Bureau of Home Economics, Department of Agriculture, who spoke on "Menus and Food Preparation for Children's Groups," and Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpender, associate nutrition specialist of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, whose topic was "Building of Good Food Habits."

A number of social work executives attended the institute.

Girl's Dress Ablaze, Father Is Burned Trying to Help

Child, 8, Is in Hospital After Accident at Home.

A little girl was painfully burned yesterday when her dress caught fire in her home at 1336 North Capitol street, and her father was injured when he went to her rescue. The child is in Emergency Hospital with second degree burns of the face, shoulders and chest. Her father was burned about the hands when he stripped the flaming clothing from her body.

Emily Louise Genella, 8 years old, returned from St. Patrick's School yesterday afternoon and entered the house through the kitchen. In some manner the scarf of her dress passed over a flaming jet on the gas range and ignited.

The girl did not notice the fire until her dress became a mass of flames. She ran to the bathroom and attempted to put out the flames with a shower attachment, but in her excitement pulled the rubber hose loose from the faucet. Then she screamed for her father, Joseph M. Genella, 37.

Miss Lee Feldman, who occupies the apartment above that of the Genellas, called the Fire Rescue Squad.

EMILY LOUISE GENELLA.

Four Homicides Boost Death Rate in Capital

Seven deaths from automobile accidents and four homicides contributed to an unusually large death rate for the week ended June 4 in the District, Health Officer William C. Fowler reported yesterday.

There were 178 deaths during that week, or a rate of 18.8 per 1,000, as compared to 12.6 per 1,000 during the corresponding week last year. There were 16 deaths from tuberculosis the same week this year.

ARMED THIEVES COW 5 IN GROCERY STORE

Escape With Loot of $67, in Spite of Chase by Manager.

A daylight holdup of a Sanitary grocery store at 2634 Georgia avenue yesterday afternoon, while the manager, two clerks and two customers were cowed by a revolver, netted two colored robbers $67 and resulted in their escape despite the fact that the manager trailed them following the robbery.

As the two holdup men entered the store, police were told, one of them drew a large nickel-plated revolver and ordered the occupants into a rear room. This command was countermanded by the other man, who went to the cash register and removed its contents.

Then the men backed out of the store, the manager, Edward Collinson, told police. They got into a cab and drove off. He followed them out, and, getting in his own car, trailed the taxi to a house on N street near Second street northwest.

They alighted from the cab and entered the house from an alley. He ran around to the front, he said, thinking they would leave by that entrance. Instead, they left the house from the rear, escaping him.

Collinson then went to the Tenth Precinct Police Station, where he reported the robbery. About 30 minutes after he had given police the license plates of the taxi, No. 8 scout car located it on U street northwest.

The driver, Mengie Owens, 30 years old, colored, of 1709 B street northwest, was taken to the station house and questioned. He said that he had taken one man to the store and was instructed to wait outside for him. He was charged with "investigation."

Others in the store when it was robbed were the two clerks, M. P. Hillman, of 1466 Columbia road northwest, and George R. Snider, of 1510 Hopkins avenue southeast, and two women customers.

Optimists Provide Boys' Operations

Doctors of That Organization to Give Services to Club for Young.

Members of the Boys Club of Washington who are in need of an operation for tonsils or adenoids and who are unable to pay for medical attention may have these operations performed without charge by Dr. Wade H. Atkinson, past president of the Optimist Club, it was announced yesterday.

The director of the boy's organization, Charles M. Fyfe, yesterday appealed to the Optimists for this service. An immediate response was made through Dr. Atkinson. He will be assisted in the work by Drs. P. S. Constantinople and George Dewey.

Dr. Walter Watts, also a member of the club, tendered his services for members of the boy's club in need of dental attention.

DISTRICT LEADERS DEFEND DETECTIVE

Brutality Charges Denied by Fihelly on Stand at Own Trial.

An imposing list of character witnesses yesterday took the witness stand in the District Supreme Court in defense of Detective Sergt. Arthur T. Fihelly, now suspended as the result of his indictment several months ago on a charge of simple assault upon Joseph W. Birch, 1610 Thirty-third street northwest.

Harry King, president of the Chamber of Commerce; former District Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, People's Counsel Richmond M. Keech, Assistant United States Attorneys Walter N. Shea and M. Pearl McCall, and two judges, Isaac R. Hitt and Robert E. Mattingly, were among those who were called to the stand by William E. Leahy and Edmund Toland, defense attorneys.

All said they knew Fihelly and that they held him in high regard. None had ever heard anything bad about him, and William S. Shelby, retired former assistant superintendent of police, said that he valued Fihelly's services as a detective very highly. Other character witnesses were Police Inspector O. T. Davis, Charles Schwartz, Attorneys Austin F. Canfield, Ringgold Hart and Robert I. Miller, Martin D. McQuade, who has twice been foreman of the grand jury, and Postal Inspector William G. Satterfield.

Through Assistant United States Attorney John Fitzpatrick, the Government contended before Justice F. D. Letts that Fihelly struck Birch while he was in the Sixth Precinct station, September 6, 1930. Fihelly, who occupied the stand most of the afternoon, entered a vigorous denial of the charge. The case is the last of the so-called police brutality indictments.

MORLEY DESCRIBES NEWLY DISCOVERED MAYAN METROPOLIS

Scientist, of Carnegie Institution, Tells of Long-Forgotten City.

CALAKMUL WAS FOUND BY HUNTER FOR CHICLE

Vast Ruins Now Covered by Jungle Growth of Ten Centuries.

A forgotten city whose frenzied life of ten centuries ago lies buried beneath a verdant tangle of tropical jungle; forgotten, and yet made a page of history, was described last night by Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Metropolis of the ancient Mayas, Calakmul, whose pyramids and temples, lost in the lush forest of southern Capeche in Mexico, summon the archeologist down the dim corridor of a thousand years, echoed again its smothered glory to the world through the words of Dr. Morley.

Recently discovered, the crumbling monument to that ancient civilization was carefully described by the scientist who has just returned from his exploration.

Description of Lost City.

"The city is of large extent, the civic and religious center alone being a mile and a quarter in length by a half a mile in breadth," he said. Throughout this area there are numerous courts surrounded by lofty pyramids and temples with rows of sculptured stone shafts outlining the boundaries of the courts.

"This forgotten city was situated on the northwest frontier of the old Mayan empire. It was perhaps the most important center of the Mayan area in which it was situated.

"If one may be permitted a comparison, it is perhaps fair to say that Calakmul, among the Mayan cities of that early day, was of as great importance relatively as Pittsburgh, St. Louis and San Francisco are today among the cities of this country.

"Today this metropolis is overgrown by a vast tropical forest. No longer are these temples, palaces, courts and plazas thronged with the busy life of the time. The relentless forest has smothered them all. Trees of gigantic size have taken root on the sides of pyramids and cover them to their very summits.

Found by Chicle Hunter.

"The same agency has brought about the almost complete destruction of every building in the city. The terraces, platforms and pyramids, overgrown as they are, may be mistaken for wooded hills and it is not until one notices the regularity of the outline of these hills, repeated on every side that realization comes of the fact that he is walking through deserted courts of a city, now the haunt of the jaguar, the peccary and the monkey.

"The whole region surrounding Calakmul is uninhabited save for the chance visits of the chewing-gum hunters, 'the chicleros,' who search for the 'chico sapote' tree, from the milk of which chicle is extracted."

The city was discovered last February by an employe of the American Chicle Co., C. Longworth Lundell, who had come upon the vast ruin and secured photographs of its monuments.

J. J. Payette Asks $100,000 for Hurts

Film Official Names Cab and Power Companies in His Lawsuit.

John J. Payette, Warner Bros. general manager here, yesterday filed suit for $100,000 damages for alleged personal injuries September 30, 1931, when a taxicab in which he was riding collided with a truck at New Jersey avenue and H street northwest.

Payette named as defendants the Black & White & Yellow Cab Co. and the Potomac Electric Power Co. It was a truck of the latter company that crashed into the cab, he charged in his suit, which was filed by Attorneys Daniel Thew Wright and Philip Ershler.

Payette claimed that he had been permanently injured and that his position with the Warner Bros. had been impaired. He said that he held a contract for a salary of $600 a week at the beginning, with $50 weekly raise each year, the contract to run three years.

Husky Detectives Defied By Seized Midget Auto

One of those pint-size automobiles yesterday caused two detectives, H. G. Bauer and R. A. Williams, some embarrassment when they attempted to drive it from Wisconsin avenue and Davenport street northwest after they had arrested Robert S. Dyke, 42 years old, the driver, on a charge of possession of four pints of liquor.

Both men are large, and one of them almost got stuck in the midget machine. Then the other essayed his hands at the controls and he met a similar fate. After that they turned the driving over to a person of smaller frame and all went well. Dyke was held for action of the grand jury. His bond was set at $1,500.

HONOR STUDENTS OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Harris & Ewing.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS OF BOYS' AMBITIONS

Dr. Ballou and 5 Principals Also Are Entertained at Luncheon.

Honor students from Washington's five leading high schools, as special guests, talked of their aspirations for the future at the luncheon meeting of the Washington Rotary Club, held yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

President S. Percy Thompson introduced Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who was in charge of the program. He presented to the club Dr. Abram Simon, president of the Board of Education; Assistant Supts. Stephen E. Kramer, Jere J. Crane and Robert L. Haycock, and five high school principals, Harvey A. Smith, Central; Frank C. Daniel, McKinley; Elmer S. Newton, Western; Allan Davis, Business, and John Paul Collins, assistant principal, representing Charles Hart, of Eastern High School.

The honor students as introduced by Dr. Ballou were: Robert Clyde Gildart, Western, who expressed preference for an Army career, following which John Graham, Central, told of his interest in naval architecture, which profession he hopes to follow. Raymond Massey, Business, inclines toward the law, but is not definitely committing himself. Paul Ochnann, McKinley, acknowledged a responsiveness to the call of commerce, and Robert Slye, Eastern, hadn't yet made up his mind.

Dr. Ballou paid tribute to the high school records of the five club guests, pointing out that each one had been a leader in general school activities as well as in scholarship. He expressed the appreciation of the staff and pupils of the public school system for this annual recognition of the work of the high school students as sponsored by the Washington Rotary Club.

Announcement was made that at the Seattle convention of the Rotary International the Washington club would be represented by Samuel J. Prescott, James Sharp, George W. Harris and Mrs. Ethel Ward, secretary.

CODE TO BE CHANGED TO ALLOW PICKETING

Maj. Gotwals Tells Labor Men Future Ban to Be Removed.

Modification of one provision of the District sign regulations so as to prevent any future ban on labor picketing under them was assured yesterday at a public hearing when Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, told labor representatives that the Commissioners had no intention of prohibiting picketing when they adopted the paragraph under fire.

Although the drafting committee had no intention of discriminating against labor when it framed section 16, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride held that union placards came under the ban when the case of the local fur workers' union came before him recently. R. M. Brennan, chief clerk of the Engineer Department, therewith rejected an application for a permit.

Among the labor representatives who sought to amend this section yesterday were Mark Lewis, counsel for the fur workers' union; John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist, and Edward J. Tracy, of the legal information department of the American Federation of Labor.

Four other proposed changes in the sign regulations were also considered at the hearing, and arguments were advanced by sign companies and business concerns.

Particular protest was aimed at the high fees required by the Commissioners for the repainting of signs. David Horstein, representing the Sign and Pictorial Painters' Union and the United Food Stores, Inc., proposed that the fee for repairing or repainting a sign be reduced from $10 to from $1 to $3, depending on the size of the sign.

Hoover to Review Flag Day Parade

Plans for Procession Next Tuesday Are Completed by Organizations.

Plans for the Flag Day procession in tribute to George Washington and the flag of the United States on next Tuesday were completed yesterday at a mass meeting of all participating organizations at which Dr. George C. Havenner, executive vice president of the District Bicentennial Commission, presided.

Every State in the Union, insular possessions, fraternal organizations and civic groups will be represented in the parade, which will require two hours to pass. One of the features of the ceremony will be the "Tableau of the Flag," which will be staged on the east steps of the Capitol in the presence of President Hoover, who will also review the marching units and floats in the procession.

The ceremony on the Capitol steps will be presented by the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. of Washington, and members of the Girls Friendly Society of the Diocese of Washington. Clad in red, white and blue, the girls will form a pageant and will be assisted by units of the Army, Navy and Marines in the performance.

Nominations Made by Hill 'Convention'

President Hoover and Vice President Curtis were nominated for re-election by the Republicans of the "Little Congress" last night at a meeting in the caucus room of the House Building.

Gov. Roosevelt and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, were the nominations on the Democratic ticket.

The Republican nominations proceeded in an orderly manner, with unanimous vote for Hoover and Curtis. The Democrats, however, staged a stormy session, with five nominees for President on the ballots. They included Speaker Garner, former Senator Reed, of Missouri; Newton D. Baker and Al Smith. It took an hour of fiery oration to decide upon Roosevelt and Walsh.

On the independent ticket, members of the "Little Congress" voted unanimously for Will Rogers for President and Eddie Cantor for Vice President.

Mrs. Frances Howard is Speaker of the "Congress," which is composed of secretaries to senators and representatives. George Harvey, of Missouri, presided at the meeting, using the "filibuster buster" gavel lent by Vice President Curtis.

George H. Morrison and his wife, Rosa C. Morrison, of 248 Madison street northwest, yesterday filed two suits in the District Supreme Court for $50,500 damages, with the Washington Railway & Electric Co. named as the defendant.

The suits charged that a bus owned by the traction company struck Mrs. Morrison as she was crossing the street at Vermont avenue and K street northwest, January 28, this year, seriously and permanently injuring her. Mrs. Morrison's suit asks for $50,000 and her husband filed his suit because of medical expenses incurred in having her treated. Attorney Claude A. Thompson filed the suit.

His condition was reported as serious.

A colored woman, the only witness to the accident, reported to Arlington County police that apparently the steering wheel locked as Via attempted to negotiate the turn. The car was proceeding at a reasonable rate, she told police.

U. S. SAVES $125,000 BY OFFICE CHANGES

Radio Commission to Move From Press Building to Interior Department.

Transfer of the offices of the Federal Radio Commission from the National Press Building to the Interior Department is the principal move being undertaken by the Public Buildings Commission in a transfer of several offices and storage arrangements calculated to save the Government approximately $125,000.

Moving to the Interior Department Building, where it formerly had offices, the Radio Commission alone will save Uncle Sam about $60,000 a year.

Other moves include Government property from a garage at 1707 Kalorama road northwest and from a garage at Third and Canal streets northwest to a storehouse at Twenty-fourth and M streets northwest which is expected to save $13,000.

Several offices of the Treasury Department and the General Accounting Office will be moved from 920 E street to the old Patent Office at Ninth and F streets. It is estimated that this will save $12,500.

Another savings of $30,000 will be effected when the Federal Board for Vocational Education changes from the Lenox Building, Fifteenth and L streets, into the Architects Building at Eighteenth and E streets.

The American Battle Monuments Commission will move into the new Department of Commerce Building from the Investment Building and will thus save $2,500 annually.

DISTRICT MEASURES PASSED BY SENATE TOTAL 12 FOR DAY

Blaine Bills to Regulate Real Estate Practices Among Them.

AUSTIN'S EFFORT FAILS TO GET MERGER ACTION

Another Field Day Is Promised in House Today by Mrs. Norton.

Twelve District measures, including the Blaine bills for regulating release of deeds of trust, foreclosure of mortgages and real estate practices in the District, yesterday passed the Senate in record time.

A vain attempt was made to get unanimous consent for consideration of the District traction merger. Despite insistence by Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, that the measure is badly needed and should be disposed of by the Senate now, Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, demanded it go over.

Minority Merger Report.

Senator Blaine, with Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, filed a minority report objecting that the bill is not in the public interest.

The District will have another field day this afternoon in the House, when Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District committee, will be given an opportunity to call up 25 local measures.

Two of the bills that passed the Senate yesterday already have been approved by the House, and now go to the President for his signature. One authorizes the erection of a miniature sphere representing the Earth in Meridian Hill Park, and another provides a $5,000 pension for Mrs. Jennie Bruce Gallahan, widow of a District fireman killed in line of duty.

Barber Shop Closing.

Two bills for the industrial development of Buzzards Point were among those passed. One authorizes the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad to run tracks into the area, and the other gives the Commissioners power to close streets in the section at the site of the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s projected $5,000,000 power plant.

Other bills passed provide for closing District barber shops one day in seven, the closing of streets at the site of the Keene School in Northeast Washington, creation of a wild bird and game sanctuary on the Potomac, provision for children born out of lawful wedlock, a 50-cent increase in the daily allowance for families of District prisoners, and tax exemption for District property of the Sons of the American Revolution.
